ing arrangements to entertain 600 at supper
at the conference meeting next week.

-Mr. Herbert Potter entertained the Guild, a party of twelve gentlemen, at dinner at his home on Walnut Park, Thursday evening.

-The annual meeting of the W. C. T. U.
will be held Monday, April 10, in Y. M. C.
A. hall at 3 o'clock. Address by Mrs. Fessenden. A full attendance is most earnestly requested.

-Saturday, April 22, marks the anniversary of Dr. Hudson's seventeenth year in business in this city. He has witnessed many changes during that time, especially in the development of Newton's trades' interests.

-The Ladies' Tuesday afternoon Whist
Club had their gentlemen's night at Mrs.
Calkins', Park street, Thursday evening,
when an elaborate dinner was served, and the gentlemen were afterwards entertained at whist.

-Miss C. Blanche Rice is to give a

Boston. She will have the assistance of Mr. H. Gittus Lonsdale, baritone, (by permission of R. J. Field, Esq.) Mr. Bertram Lincoln Shapleigh, pianist, and an orchestra.

-The services in Elliot church on the evening of Good Friday called out a congregation that filled the church. Rev. Dr.
Calkins, Rev. Mr. Hornbrook and Rev. Mr.
Broton, who attended the evening service,
and the Rev. Mr. Merrill conducted the devotional part of the exercises.

-Rev. Mr. Hornbrook went to Providence, Wednesday, and read a paper before the Channing Conference, and came back and attended a funeral service in Newton in the afternoon, and in the evening he went to South Natick and assisted in installing
a pastor over the church there.

-Fire caught in the grass on the south side of the railroad, between Church and Bellevue streets, Saturday, and ran quickly over the whole field. Fortunately it was extinguished before any damage was done,
but those who saw it were reminded of what they had read of prairie fires.

-Mr. Calvin H. Cram of Gorham, Me., who has been passing the winter with his daughter, Mrs. Geo. Agry, Jr., Hovey street, died on Wednesday of this week, aged 76 years. Services were held at the house today at 1.30 and the remains were afterward taken to Portland for burial.

-Mr. Arthur Felch, who has been filling the position of head clerk at Hudson's pharmacy, has entered the employ of the Rice County, wire cloth manufacturers,
Lowell. He commences his new duties
Monday and the wishes of a host of friends follow him in the hope of a full measure of success.

-The marriage of Miss Kitty Gilmore and Mr. Everett U. Gray was celebrated last evening at the residence of Mr. R. W.
Gilmore, Huntington avenue, Boston. The ceremony was private and was followed by a reception at the Hotel Oxford. Mr. and Mrs. Gray will be residing at their new residence on Vernon street, this city.

-The credit of finding the coat, which contained a purse and a large sum of money, the property of Charles Bisconti, at the fire early Wednesday morning, belongs to Othello Taffe. It was Officer Taffe, also, who passed the cradle and its occupant
down the ladder from the roof of French's block. The report of the fire in another column is incorrect in these particulars.

-At the annual meeting of the parish of Grace church, Monday evening, the following officers were elected: Wardens, Geo.
S. Bullens, George A. Flint; clerk, William
P. Wentworth; treasurer, Ephraim S.
Hamblin; vestrymen, C. W. Emerson, C.
W. Leonard, J. C. Elms, Sr., J. E. Hollis, J. H. Wherry, J. D. Wetters, A. E.
Pattison; delegates to convention, G. S.
Bullens, G. A. Flint, C. F. Wood.

-The Ladies' Wednesday afternoon
Whist Club had their gentlemen's night,
Tuesday evening, at Mrs. Geo. T. Coppins.
The evening was very enjoyable, and the bill of fare, after which ten tables were filled with wist players. The first prizes for the evening were won by Miss Liver-more and Mr. E. H. Haines, and the second by Mr. George Gross and Mrs. W. P. Elison. The next meeting will be with Mrs.
Simpson on the afternoon of the 19th.

-The annual meeting of the Newton Baptist church Society occurred on Thursday evening. The following officers were elected: Clerk, Herbert Bent; treasurer,
G. W. Brighland; collector, S. D. Sheppard; standing committee, Geo. S. Harwood, Stephen Moore, E. P. Tuttle, John T. Lathrop, E. J. H. Estabrooks, F. D.
Adams, Fred J. March, Robert K. Sheppard, Henry W. Downes. The reports showed a prosperous condition with a balance in the hands of the treasurer.

-A good deal of sympathy is felt for Mr.
C. S. Decker, whose stock is a total loss, as his insurance had run out a few days before the fire, and the sympathy is taking a substantial form. The fire occurred at an unfortunate time as he had just received a stock of spring goods and had a number of suits made up and in process of making.
He has worked hard to build up a business
and has an excellent reputation for doing good work, and his misfortune is much to be regretted. Those who wish to testify to their sympathy for him can communicate with Dr. Madison Bunker.

-A case of vandalism has come to the attention of the police authorities. This week which is now being investigated, and will probably lead to the punishment of those concerned in the outrage. It seems that a valuable painting, part of the wall decoration of the chapel in the convent on Adams street was ruined by dabs of coloring applied with a brush. Four boys were found in the building Sunday who are believed to be responsible for the destructive work. The case is to be prosecuted with the vigor which the character of the offence demands, and every effort will be made to bring the guilty parties to a realizing sense of their wrong doing.

-The second regular meeting of the Newton Camera Club was held at the residence of Mr. J. W. Davis, with over forty members present. A constitution was adopted and the following officers elected: President, Dr. E. B. Hitchcock; vice-president, J. Wesley Barber; secretary and treasurer, Chas. H. Fewkes. These officers
ex-officio together with Mr. F. E. Stanley and W. F. Bacon were elected to form the executive committee. An animated discussion of plans for suitable rooms for the use of the club brought forth many ideas, and it was decided to reconvene the matter to the building committee for further consideration. The next meeting will be held at the house of Mr. T. M. Clark,
No. 1 Mount Vernon Terrace, Newtonville,
Wednesday evening, May 3rd.

-The millinery opening at the Juvenile was the most successful Miss Robbins has ever held. Some sixty-five trimmed hats and bonnets were shown, and a majority of them were sold during the opening days,
while many very complimentary evidences of Miss Robbins' skill in pleasing the ladies of Newton. The rooms were beautifully decorated with the latest styles in spring
millinery materials, flowers, ribbons, velvets, lace, etc., and the trimmings of the new millinery made a very handsome effect. The new colors are very attractive, and the shades of heliotrope which are so popular, shading from a purple down to the lighter shades of pink. Jet in many designs is to be much worn, and a new thing is shown in straw laces and ribbons which are very attractive, and in many colors.
Flowers to be worn in great profusion
this year, and an audience of ladies will resemble a flower garden, roses being a favorite. Something new in flowers made of tapestry and crepe reminds one of forty or more years ago when they were popular,
and some beautifully colored orchids are a close imitation of nature. Some of the quaint and becoming white leghorn hats,
with various shapes, and trimmed with roses, lace and ribbon were shown for summer wear and many were sold. Small lace and jet bonnets, covered with flowers and ribbon were shown, one with the new
"velvins" shades being especially attractive. Atoth with a gilt crown, and trimmed with black lace and flowers was very tasteful, and a bonnet of iridescent
straw was so attractive that it was taken the first prize. Some very quaint wicks of black straw with a lace trimming of flowers after the style of long ago were shown, and also many turbans which will be popular for street hats for young ladies.
Miss Robbins has gained a wide popularity
among the ladies of Newton and she has customers who come from Boston to give their orders, as her styles are many of them
excellent, and the ladies find her work and prices more satisfactory than that of Boston milliners.

Lectures on the English Puritans.

Next Sunday, April 9, at the morning service of Elliot church, Mr. Calkins will begin a series of lectures to be continued
every alternate Sunday morning in April,
May and June.

1 The Puritans and their times. 2

Peter Cartwright and the early Puritans.

3 George Abbot, the Puritan archbishop,

and the Church Puritans. 4 John Milton,

the Puritan iconoclast. 5 Richard Baxter,

the Pastor. 6 John Bunyan and Puritan working men. 7 George Fox, the Puritan missionary.

Base Ball at Newton High School.

Active steps are being taken at the Newton High school in regard to base ball matters, and the outlook is more favorable than it has been for some time. The team has been trying to enter the Inter-scholastic
B. B. League and may yet be successful;
if, however, they fail in this, they will play the various schools of Boston and Cambridge, several classes in "Teck," and teams in the vicinity of Boston and its surroundings. The team has not as yet been permanently chosen, but the following will no doubt be the players and positions:
Brown, c.; Ryan, i.; Filz, (substitute);
Page, 1b.; Inman, 2b.; Lesh, s.s. (capt.);
Bradley, 3b.; Benedict, 1f. (manager), and Bosson, Hinckley, Cotton, Priest, Waters
and Walworth, also candidates for the remaining positions in the team. The home games will be played on Walworth's field, (on dates not conflicting with the Newtons),
and it is hoped that the citizens of Newton and the scholars of N. H. S. will help to bring this organization a success, as the High school of Newton ought certainly be able to "cope" with any High or Preparatory school in the state.

A Touching Charity.

The King's Daughters of Newton are striving to take care of two little blind
children, and last year they gave a series of parlor concerts by which enough money was secured to provide a home in the country for the summer, for the children. This year they are trying to raise money for a similar purpose, and should meet with a cordial response from the kind-hearted people of Newton. To give a summer's pleasure to two helpless
and unfortunate children is something worthy striving for. As a further inducement to subscribers to this fund, an invitation organ recital is planned to be given April 17th, Mr. Wallace Goodrich
having kindly volunteered his services,
and Miss Gertrude Edmonds, the famous singer, has generously consented to appear. Further information of the charity will be given by the King's Daughters
who have the matter in charge.

Y. M. C. A.

The regular Sunday afternoon men's meeting, conducted by the Y. M. C. A., will be addressed on next Sunday at 4 o'clock
by Prof. S. Edward Warren.

The boys' meeting conducted by the junior branch of the Y. M. C. A. at 3 o'clock on Sunday afternoon will be led by Albert Whittemore.

Kitchen Garden Work.

Mrs. M. B. Tobey will give an exhibition of Kitchen Garden Work, for the benefit of the Newton Cottage Hospital,
at the Unitarian church parlor, West
Newton, Saturday, April 8, 2.30 p. m.
Tickets, 50 cents; children, 25 cents. 2t

CITY GOVERNMENT.

THE STREET RAILWAY QUESTION RECEIVES MUCH ATTENTION.

The board of aldermen met Monday evening with all the members present. Mayor Fenno presided and the minutes of the last meeting were not read.

Dr. J. R. McLaughlin was appointed inspector of animals for the production of milk, provisions and animals for slaughter.

Business from the Common Council was disposed of in concurrence.

The Waltham city council asked to have the boundary line perambulated, and the chairman of the Highway committee, the City Engineer, and the Superintendent of streets were appointed a committee to take charge of the business, in conjunction with a committee from Waltham.

The report of the Inspector of Provisions was received and filed.

J. H. Wheelock and Dr. A. B. Jewell petitioned for a concrete walk on Hunnewell avenue.

NEWTON STREET RAILWAY.

A petition was received from G. D. Gilman and some 400 other prominent residents of Newton, protesting against any location being granted to a street railway in Newton or Centre streets, as the majority of the residents were opposed to such street railway, the streets were too narrow now for the travel, and a railway would make the streets dangerous, especially for children and asking that no location be granted unless the streets are widened. The travel on such railway especially on Sunday and holidays would bring in an objectionable element, the railway would lessen the value of all estates on streets through which it passed, and the remonstrants believed it would be for public interests to report adversely to such a railway. Referred to street railway committee.

Alderman Roffe presented a petition signed by R. M. Saltonstall and some 20 others asking that all street railway petitions be referred to the boulevard commission.

WATERTOWN STREET.

A hearing was held on the change in location of Newtonville and Watertown street railway, from Walnut street to Watertown, instead of on Lowell street, and as there were no remonstrants the hearing was closed.

John O. Smith and others asked for a crosswalk on Lincoln avenue.

Chas. W. Lamb and others asked for an electric light on Mossfield road.

B. F. Butler asked for sidewalk on Erie avenue.

A. H. Fewkes asked for sidewalk on Hyde street.

WELLESLEY STREET RAILWAY.

Alderman Plummer presented the remonstrances of Oliver L. Briggs, Albert Brackett and other real estate owners against granting a location to the Newton and Wellesley Street Railway on the south side of Washington street, claiming that it would be a constant source of danger.

John Atkinson sent in a communication in regard to the turnouts on said street railway, and said he could find none on the plans at City Hall, and the city clerk to whom he applied also was unable to find any.

Alderman Plummer read a letter from Mr. S. L. Powers, who stated that the turnouts were never included in the first plan of the location, but that they had to be determined upon subsequently, when a hearing was granted to those interested. All were referred to the street railway committee.

An order was presented by Alderman Rumery, granting the free use of City Hall for April 18th, for an entertainment for the benefit of the Cottage Hospital.

M. C. Bragdon gave notice of intention to build house 30x40 on Lake street.

James Wild, house 30x40 on Oak street, Ward 5.

On motion of Alderman Thompson, Chas. Dickens was granted a license for a slaughter house in Ward 6.

W. W. Ward asked for license to move building from California to Alliston street.

On motion of Alderman Bothfeld the water board was authorized to lay 202 feet of water pipe on street off California street, at a cost of $300; 620 feet on Orchard avenue $700; 850 feet on Windermere road, $910.

WIDENING.

Alderman Thompson presented the petition of Seward W. Jones and fifty others, asking that the city accept the 6 or 8 feet of land offered by H. J. Patterson for the widening of Lincoln street, and pay for the changes made necessary in the sidewalk, etc. Referred to highway committee.

DRUGGISTS' LICENSES.

Alderman Roffe presented the petitions of the following druggists for 6th class liquor licenses: W. M. Russell, John J. Williams, W. C. Gaudet, J. G. Kilburn, Chas. W. Kinder, John F. Payne, Geo. H. Ingraham, H. Snow, A. F. Wright, E. W. Keyes, W. P. Thorne, S. M. Sears, B. Billings, J. H. Green, J. S. Waterhouse, B. B. Buck, A. R. Gardiner, J. J. Noble, Fred A. Hubbard, Wm. Hahn, Arthur Hudson. An order was passed that the licenses be advertised in the two Newton papers, the number being equally divided between them.

N. G. Gray asked for a license for two pool tables at the boat house at Auburndale.

Olive G. Eager asked for sidewalk on Summer street.

W. P. Thorne was granted a license for an illuminated mortar, on the post at the corner of Auburn and Lexington streets.

POLICE.

On motion of Alderman Hunt an order was passed establishing the number of patrolmen at 32, an increase of 4.

HYDE SCHOOL.

The secretary of the Newton Highlands Improvement Association, Horace W. Taylor, sent in the vote passed by the society urging the city council to give careful attention to the petition presented for a new school building, and endorsing the report made by the school board, and the petition already presented by Newton Highlands citizens.

A hearing was given on the petition of the N. E. Telephone Co. for location for poles on Centre street, between Gibbs and Cotton streets. No remonstrants appeared and the hearing was closed.

A batch of junk licenses were granted. E. C. Dudley and Eliza H. Shaw, by their attorney, E. H. Mason, presented claims for the land taken for the widening of Beacon street, some 14,784 feet, for which no compensation had been granted them for the land, or for the change made necessary in grading. Referred to highway committee.

HIGH SCHOOL LOT.

Alderman Thompson presented an order authorizing the public purchase of a lot to purchase 45,201 feet of Mr. Claffin, south of the High school, at a cost not to exceed $7,835, to be paid for by a 10 years' note at 4 per cent. interest. The order was passed.

C. W. Higgins asked for license for stable 20x20 feet on Melrose street. D. L. Guilford asked for stable, also 20x20 feet, on same street.

Thomas M. Grath gave notice of intention to build house 18x30 feet, on Orris street.

E. C. Champney gave notice of intention to build house 32x45 feet on Faxon street.

J. Tapley gave notice of intention to build house 30x42 on Faxon street.

James Maguire, house 30x16 feet on Crescent street.

A license was granted for the building of a car station and waiting room on High street, Upper Falls.

WELLESLEY STREET RAILWAY.

The hearing on the change of location of the West Newton and Lower Falls street railway was then opened. Mr. Geo. W. Morse said the change had been made to meet the wishes of the citizens and would not be on the side of the street and not cross Highland street, and he thought this would satisfy every one.

Mr. Joseph R. Smith appeared as attorney for residents on Washington street, who remonstrated against having the railroad on the southerly side of Washington street. On looking over the ground he could not see why such a location had been asked for. They did not object to the street railway, nor wish to place any obstacles in its way, but objected to having it on the South side from Wales to Auburn street. If on either side it should be on the north side, but the proper place for it was in the center of the street.

Mr. Morse said this matter was all disposed of at the previous hearing and now the only question was as to the change in the location.

Mayor Fenno said he knew that it was a re-opening of the question, but he had decided to allow it to go on unless the board objected.

Mr. Smith said if the railroad was on the side of the street it should be near the sidewalk and not compel the passengers to cross the street. There was a sidewalk most of the way on the north side but none on the south side. Second, there were 5 houses on the north side and six from the top of the hill to Auburn street, while on the south side there were 13 houses from the top of the hill to Auburn street.

Third, the lay of the land made the location on the south side very objectionable and would do irreparable injury to the land. The driveways were most of them descending, and would cross the tracks at an angle, which would be very dangerous. Beacon street, a travelled thoroughfare, met Washington street at an acute angle and descended sharply to Washington street, and many accidents happened there now. It would be hard to find a place where tracks would be more objectionable. The public safety demanded that teams coming from Beacon street should not be compelled to cross the tracks of an electric street railway, on which cars would be run at a high rate of speed. The tracks on the side would ruin the house at the corner of Beacon street. As far as he could see, the location had been the policy to put street railway tracks in the center of the street. Washington street was a main thoroughfare and was no wider than Walnut street, where the railroad ran in the center, except for a short distance along Belknap's pond.

The incorporators had of course a selfish interest in this matter, but looking the question all over he could see fewer objections to putting the tracks on the north than on the south side.

The Cottage Hospital would be seriously injured by placing the tracks any nearer to it than was absolutely necessary, and that was something in which all Newton was interested. He read a letter from Mr. J. N. Bacon, stating that although he had withdrawn his name as a remonstrant, he thought the centre of the street the most desirable for the tracks and any other location would be a mistake.

Mr. L. E. Leland said he had 500 feet of land at the end of Beacon street on the hill, and car tracks on that side would injure him materially. The corner of Beacon street was a very dangerous one, he had lived there 24 years, and had known of four serious accidents there, and many more that were not serious. It was almost impossible to control a horse in coming down the hill, and it would be difficult to keep from colliding with the cars.

Wales street would be another dangerous place, and last Sunday evening without the cars, a man was thrown out there and taken up unconscious, and it was doubtful if he recovered. The city should look after these dangerous places and not make them any worse. In front of the store was another dangerous place, the street was very narrow and it would be difficult for teams to pass there. He did not object to the middle of the street, but if the city gave away the franchise it should not do damage to the real estate on the street.

Mr. Morse asked if there were any hitching posts in front of his land.

Mr. Leland said there were two. He had room for four more houses on his land, if the lots were sold.

Dr. Paine said he owned about 1000 feet of land along the south side of the street and he objected to having the tracks on his side of the street. His driveway descended to the street and tracks on that side would make it very dangerous. He hoped the road would go through, but he objected, for another thing because it would interfere with his placing buildings near the street in the future. The question ought to be treated, he thought, in a broader way. The sewer would soon have to go up Washington street and would naturally be placed in the center, and if the street was dug up all this summer for the street railway and the sewer, it might have to be dug up again next year, for the purpose of being widened, and it ought to be widened now. The tracks ought to be placed right in the first place. He would not object to their being placed on the side provided they could be removed at any time on petition of a certain number of property owners.

Mr. Frederic Johnson said he started the organization of the road not for any selfish motive, but to accommodate the guests of the Woodland Park hotel, who found it difficult now to get to the railroad stations. He thought many would object to having the tracks in the center of the street. Mr. E. B. Haskell had said he would oppose a location in the centre by every means possible and others felt the same way. He, himself, had no selfish end to their bidding, care which side of the street the tracks were laid. He hoped to wake up the dead land by means of the road, and he had the approval of most of the large land-owners. Mr. Bacon had offered land for a car house and withdrew his name from the remonstrants. Mr. Joseph Lee paid some $2,000 a year into the city treasury, and deserved some consideration.

Mr. Smith said he should like to know why the road was placed on the south side.

Mr. George W. Morse said he was surprised that any one should ask why it was located on the side of the street. The reason was apparent. No capitalist would ever build in the center of the street, and it is beginning to be recognized that the side of the street was the only place for a street railway. On this road we must have rapid transit or it will be of no value, and we can't have rapid transit in the center of the street. There was not much enthusiasm any way about building the line, a little opposition would kill it. But sometimes foreign capitalists will come in and build it if we do not, to connect between Boston and Framingham. The syndicate in charge are substantially the same as have built the other roads in Newton and they have shown that they intend to give good service. They desire to be in perfect accord with the city council. The fact is this road will not give much return on the cost for years, but it is being built for the future.

Mr. J. F. Lyman said he had a small frontage on the street, but he thought anyone conversant with the grades and angles of the side streets and driveways could see that a railroad on the south side would be very dangerous. We talk about the dangerous grade crossing, but here we would have a dangerous grade crossing at every intersecting street. The north side would be far less dangerous.

Mr. Johnson said he was perfectly willing to leave it to the judgment of the board, which side the tracks should be placed.

The hearing was then closed.

A. L. Edmonds and others asked for a main drain and sewer on Hyde avenue, from George to Sargent street.

SEWERS.

Alderman Hunt read a large number of long orders for sewers on the following streets:

Private way off California street, Green street, Green court, Claffin place, Gay street, Centre street from George to near Sargent, Prince, Berkeley, Lenox, Lowell, West, Watertown, Chapel, Appleton, Walnut, Lowell, Highland avenue, Otis, Vista, avenue, Union Seminary avenue, Claffin place, Jewett, Hunnewell avenue, Elmhurst road, Lakeview avenue, Grove Hill avenue, Wiswall, Central, Hancock, Auburn, Maple, Grove, Woodland avenue, and Washington street.

Hearings were appointed on the private lands to be taken for May 1, before the aldermen and May 8 before the common council, at 7:45 o'clock.

Orders passed for sewers, last year, were again passed, in order to remove all question of any illegality.

REFERENCE OF STREET RAILWAYS.

Alderman Bothfeld exploded a bomb shell in the board by moving to refer all petitions for street railways, except the Needham street railway, to the boulevard commission, with the request that they report a general system of street railways for Newton. He called attention to a petition for such action, signed by 350 such citizens as H. E. Hubbard, I. T. Burr, Geo. S. Bullets, A. F. Luke, W. P. Ellison, and others who have signed, and said to him that this was the way to reach the best solution of the question, and dispose of all these applications which are coming up at every meeting, and to refer them to the street railway committee, but the boulevard commission were considering the question of street widenings and allied questions at every meeting, and they were men conspicuous for their ability and fairness, and could give more time to considering the matter in its broader aspects, than the aldermen could do.

Mayor Fenno said the street railway committee would have to be discharged first.

Alderman Bothfeld said that the street railway committee would decide wisely if they could not see the merits before him, but they did not, and he moved that they be discharged.

Alderman Roffe said he should be glad to be relieved from responsibility, but it was hardly fair for the petitioners to make them wait till 1894. It would be better to give them leave to withdraw and bring in a new petition later on. It would be hard to keep the company together for so long a time.

Alderman Bothfeld said the report of the boulevard commission would be forthcoming before long, and this would be a relief.

Alderman Plummer said he would be glad to be released but he did not think the petition was entitled to much respect, as many of the signers had signed petitions for the locations and now they have signed another against it. He thought the expense of so much street widening and boulevards ought to be taken such matters out of the hands of the board.

Alderman Rumery moved to lay on the table the next meeting.

Alderman Bothfeld said he was willing to favor the alderman, but disliked to see a man here in the interest of the railroad suggesting to a member of the board he should make, and he did not think the board should take suggestions from an outsider.

This created quite a sensation, and Alderman Rumery replied that Mr. Morse had made no suggestion of that kind to him, and he whispered to him in reference to another matter. He made the motion on his own account.

The motion to table was then passed. The Newton and Boston Street Railway asked for a concrete walk on Walnut street; referred.

The board then went into executive session.

Judge Dunbar Exonerated.

The hearing before the judiciary committee of the Legislature has picked the bubble of James W. Stillman's charges of "malfeasance in office" brought against Judge James R. Dunbar of the superior court. The case was finally sifted down to this: Mr. Stillman charged that Judge Dunbar gave a decision against a preponderance of evidence; that evidence contradicted and unimpeached, was passed over by him, and that in giving a verdict against evidence of that kind Judge Dunbar was guilty of malfeasance. The argument which Mr. Stillman made upon this proposition certainly showed that he was not as well balanced as many persons are, and his citation of authorities did not seem to impress the committee as pertinent.

When asked if it was his opinion that a judge who makes a ruling contrary to law is open to impeachment, the petitioner answered in the affirmative, but when his attention was called to the law reports filled with decisions overruling the acts of judges he modified his opinion on that subject. In fact the hearing showed that but for the undue publicity given to this matter by sensational journals, it would be too absurd for comment. This was evidently the opinion of William G. Russell, Solomon Lincoln, Charles W. Bartlett, and other prominent lawyers who clubbed it. It is the Boston bar association, said to the committee that he thought there was no excuse for any remarks by any representative of the bar. He intimated that the case made out was too weak to be worthy of serious notice.

Clubbing the Official Tree.

From Harper's Weekly.

It is all very nice to say that the office should seek the man; but these people know very well that this is a delusion. You might as well say that apples will pick themselves. The boys who get the fruit are those that climb the tree and shake it. And that is what the boys are doing now. They have rushed to Washington by the thousands, and those who cannot climb the tree are clubbing it. It is one of the most striking things in our quadrilateral spectacle. Talk about patriotism! Talk about decay of interest in the government in a republic! Here is an army of men willing to give up home, occupation (if they have any), to assume responsibility, to endure criticism, in order to serve their country in any capacity or incapacity, from holding up the Washington Monument to learning French in Paris. It is a splendid onset and exhibition of vitality. If there happened to be a war, and this army were uniformed, it would clean out any host of government soldiers, office-holders and all. And the sad part of it is that there are not half officers enough for this army; there are ten men clubbing a tree where hangs only one apple.

Newton Bicycle Club.

The riders of Boston and vicinity little know that one of the oldest cycling clubs in this section of the country that has enjoyed an uninterrupted existence is the Newton Bicycle Club.

This, however, is a fact. Within the past 11 years covered by the existence of the N. B. C. many clubs have come and gone.

The old Boston club, with its grand clubhouse at the South end and Back Bay; the Massachusetts club, with its celebrated Massachusetts clubhouse, now a part of the Art Club on Newbury street; the Crescents, Cambridge club, and many others of more or less importance, have experienced the rise and fall of fortune, and gradually sunk into oblivion, some to rise phoenix-like from their ashes and others to sleep the long sleep of forgotten days.

Most of these organizations have had an eventful history; some have had splendid clubhouses, some have been known in league or local politics of the wheel, some have elected members to the state Legislature; all have made a mark and fallen away, never to rise again to their ancient glory, however rehabilitated and rejuvenated.

The Newton club has gone on in the even tenor of its way, and maintained an uneventful but enjoyable state of existence, which makes it dear to the hearts of its old members.

Its formation was in response to the call of L. A. W. Consul Charles L. Clark of Newton, dear old Charley Clark of the Boston club, then resident in Newton.

Realizing that there was a pressing need for the formation of a cycle club in the city of Newton at that time, Charlie hitched up his old white horse and drove about, raising the enthusiasm of the riders of the wheel. It was the good old ordinary in those days, and its riders can never forget the tumbles and tribulations of old times, when riding a wheel was more widely separated in points of skill and danger, from the resemblance to reposing in an easy chair, as experienced now by riders of the new fangled safety.

Nerve and character were required factors in a man's make-up, "high wheels" were in vogue, and "tell it in Gath," the old sport of those days has a sneaking contempt for a man who never knew aught but the low wheel.

This was the sort of stock of which the Newton Club was built.

Clark called the first meeting which was held in Knights of Honor Hall, West Newton, on April 1, 1882, 11 years ago.

The original signers were seven in number; three Boston men headed the list, Charles L. Clark, Freeman Morris, W. W. Stall; following them came George F. Williams, F. H. Whiton, Edward P. Burnham and Fred W. Walker, the last our being strictly Newton men, and at that time not connected with any other club.

Meetings followed in rapid succession, and the club grew apace, at times having as many as 45 or more members.

Many prominent wheelmen have been enrolled on the lists of the N. B. C., and on turning the pages of the old records we note such names as those of Freeman Morris, an old racing man now out of wheeling; W. W. Stall, a name well known to wheelmen for the past 15 years; E. P. Burnham, at one time a prominent racing man, and still on the wheel; P. L. Aubin, a veteran on the "still existing" type, Edward W. Pope and the Colonel; following the records, we run rapidly through the names familiar to all riders and "still in the ring," such as Abbott Bassett, A. D. Claffin, H. M. Saben, "Dave" Hyams, Harry and Kirke Corey, A. A. Glines, George H. Hastings, E. S. Martin, George Pope, the late Ralph P. Ahl, George M. Hope, and others.

The Newton Club has enjoyed its meeting for years largely from the fact that this club has not failed to provide at every gathering a neat collation for the delectation of its members and friends. It has not failed to honor that old custom of an annual dinner once a year, and on the 5th inst., it will celebrate the finish of its entering year in the second cycle of its existence by a grand dinner, its 11th, at the Thorndike, when an effort will be made to collect all its old members and friends in one grand gathering and reunion, where it is hoped all veterans will be present.

While preferring to stand on one side and view the radical side of the sport with a paternal interest, the Newton Bicycle Club is not "out of the ring," but is interested in all movements for general improvement and enjoyment, and is even now a member of the A. C. C., holding a charter membership in that organization.

For an old fellow, the N. B. C. still carries a chip on its shoulder which takes a good "un to knock off, and while there is a hole showing in the top of its hair, there "is life in the old dog yet."

for 1893 is out and is being delivered to subscribers this week. It makes a large volume, and the usual excellent features are continued and some new ones added. The house directory is one of the most useful features, and special pains seem to have been taken to make it as correct as possible, and it takes up some 150 pages. The Directory, itself, takes up 310 pages and the Newton business directory, the city government, and public schools, churches, societies, city ordinances and miscellaneous information make out the balance of a book, which has become a necessity to every family. The map of the city is said to contain all the latest changes and is a valuable feature.

The Channing Religious Society held their annual meeting Monday night and elected the following officers: Standing committee, Howard B. Coffin, Frederick A. Wetherbee, Abraham Byfield, Chas. Edward Lord, Lewis H. Farlow, Clerk, Frederick W. Stone, Treasurer, George Sawin. The sum of $7,700 was appropriated for church expenses the coming year.

The Easter offerings at Grace church amounted to $1,333. There were very large congregations at all the services, and at the morning service many were unable to obtain seats. The floral decorations were unusually beautiful and numerous and the church looked very attractive with flowers massed in all the windows, pots of lilies along the main aisle on either side, and the masses of flowers and foliage plants in the chancel.

A LIVELY FIRE.

THE OCCUPANTS OF THE BUILDING ESCAPED IN THEIR NIGHT CLOTHES.

An alarm was rung in from box 115 at 2.30 o'clock Wednesday morning, for a fire in a two-story wooden building on Centre street. The structure adjoins French's block, a one-story building containing several stores. It is separated from Whitman's stable only by a narrow alleyway leading to another small wooden structure in the rear. The latter was occupied by C. S. Decker, tailor, who also had a store in French's block.

The fire, it is thought, started in the store of the two-story building occupied by Fank Shinn, laundryman. It spread quickly, and soon the staircases leading to the tenement above were burned away.

The tenement was occupied by C. S. Biscotti and family. They were sleeping soundly in complete ignorance of the blaze, and were aroused by Officers Burke and Taffe. The latter threw his billy through a window in the second story, and a few moments later the Biscottis made a hasty exit in their night clothes from a side window to the roof of the next building. Three children, who jumped, were caught by the officers, who later succeeded in getting up a ladder. An infant in its cradle was then brought down by Officer Conroy, and subsequently Mr. Biscotti and his wife reached terra firma.

While this was happening, the fire had gained considerable headway. The southern end of French's block caught, and so did the wooden building in the rear. The latter was soon enveloped in flames, but the firemen succeeded in arresting the progress of the fire in French's building, which was damaged only about $500 worth.

The burned buildings, including the two-story structure where the fire started and the one in the rear, were valued at about $3000, and were well insured. The total damage caused by the conflagration is estimated at about $7000. C. S. Decker's tailoring stock and fixtures represent a total loss of $1000, there being no insurance. C. S. Biscotti, fruit dealer, lost stock valued at $1000; insurance, $500. Fank Shinn, laundryman, estimates the value of his stock and fixtures at $300; insured.

The stores of W. A. Lamb, provision dealer; Shaw, druggist; Shaughnessy, grocer, and Burnham, restaurant keeper, all in French's block, suffered more or less damage to stock and fittings from smoke and water.

The blaze was first discovered by Officer Taffe who hastened at once to the scene of the conflagration to arouse the inmates of the burning building. Officer Burke pulled in the first alarm and then went to assist the other officers who were prompt work, undoubtedly, was the means of saving life. Officer Burke got a coat from the Biscotti's apartment which represented considerable value as in one of the pockets there was a purse containing several hundred dollars. Besides the officers, the fire department is deserving of a great deal of credit. The fire was well handled and very serious losses thereby prevented. Arrangements were made for a hasty exit from Whitman's stable. All the horses were taken out and the carriages and sleighs so placed on the ground floor that only a short time would be required for the removal of the whole equipment.

AUBURDALE.

—The stores closed Fast Day.

—Rose-Attar for chapped hands; Thorn.

—Mr. Arthur Plummer is in New York for a short stay.

—John Hart has secured a position with C. O. Harlow & Co.

—Wm. Crossley spent Sunday at his home, Providence, R. I.

—Mrs. J. B. Stewart's residence on Grove street is undergoing repairs.

—Rev. Thomas W. Bishop has gone to Holyoke to attend the annual conference of Methodist churches.

—Mr. Geo. M. Fiske has again been confined to the house by illness. His little girl is also quite seriously ill.

—The alarm from box 421 Monday was for a brush fire on Grove street which was extinguished before doing any damage.

—The ladies of the Church of the Messiah held a sale of fancy articles and edibles Wednesday afternoon and evening in the chapel.

—Mr. Horatio W. Parker, son of the late Charles Edward Parker, who has recently been engaged as organist at Trinity church, Boston, will commence his duties the first of May.

—The Auburdales Ice Co., owned by J. J. Peterson of Waltham, has been purchased by Miller & Grant, proprietors of the Newton Ice Co., who will furnish ice in this village this summer.

—The young people of the Christian Endeavor Society held an anniversary meeting in the Congregational chapel Wednesday evening. Delegates were present from many of the other societies in the city.

—A musical treat of rare excellence is to be given in the Episcopal chapel next Wednesday evening. The recital is being arranged as a benefit for Mrs. Helen L. Thayer-Bryant of Wellesley. Further particulars are given elsewhere.

—The beneficiaries of the late Thomas Cunningham, who died Sunday, and who was a member of the Auburdales Fraternal Benefit Association, received a check for $110 from the order early Monday morning. This is the first death since the association was incorporated.

—Mrs. Tryon's lecture last Saturday afternoon was a very enjoyable affair and largely attended by old and young. The subject was treated in a most interesting manner and all were pleased to hear about the little birds who were coming to spend the month of April in Auburdales. Before the lecture Mrs. Tryon was entertained at a delightful luncheon party by Mrs. F. F. Davidson of Maple Terrace.

—Thomas B. Cunningham died Sunday morning of consumption. His health had been fast falling since early in the fall when he was obliged to give up work. He worked as clerk for Mr. Vicker for several years and was liked and respected by all who came to know him. The funeral services were held Monday morning at St. Bernard's church, West Newton, and the remains were taken to Calvary cemetery for interment.

A Musical Treat.

A pianoforte and violin recital will be given in the Episcopal chapel at Auburdales Wednesday evening, April 12, at 7.45 o'clock. This recital is for the benefit of Mrs. Helen L. Thayer-Bryant of Wellesley, who will play Chopin's E minor concerto, assisted by Mrs. Henry R. Turner. Mr. S. E. Goldstein of Boston, violinist.

Cards of admission limited in number obtained of Mrs. A. F. Noyes or Mrs. H. R. Turner. Two Grand Pianos will be used.

Testimonial to Rev. E. E. Davidson.

The Congregational and Methodist churches of Auburdales desire to express their hearty appreciation of the evangelistic labors of the Rev. E. E. Davidson in connection with their pastors and members during the month March. His methods are eminently wise and effective; his religious views are sound and sensible; his spirit is devout, earnest and kind. We have been particularly impressed by the calm, quiet, orderly way in which he has appealed to the people. There has been no sensational excitement and no dubious devices for the winning of souls, but there has been a simple setting forth of the claims of the gospel, a persistent persuasiveness full of tender empathy and accompanied by the power of the spirit. A good number of souls have sought and found Christ under these ministrations, the churches have become quickened and drawn into a delightful union with each other, and the membership greatly edified.

Many prayers will follow Mr. Davidson as he goes to the home fields of labor, and we feel confident that God will continue to bless his labors in the future as he has in the past, only more abundantly.

Whereas Charles C. Burr the trustee under said will has presented for allowance the first account of his trusteeship. You are hereby cited to appear at a Probate Court to be held at Cambridge in said County on the fourth Tuesday of April, A. D. 1893, at nine o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause, if any you have, why the same should not be allowed, and said Trustee is ordered to serve this citation by publishing the same once a week in the Newton Graphic a newspaper printed at Newton, three weeks successively, the last publication to be two days at least before said Court.

Witness GEORGE M. BROOKS, Esquire, Judge of said Court, this twenty-eighth day of March in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three.

S. H. FOLSOM, Register.

LANGUAGE OF THE HAND.

Circles on any line are unfavorable signs. Red spots in the heart line indicate liability to disease.

Broad nails belong to gentle, nervous, bashful people.

A long liver line shows an excellent natural constitution.

Crooked nails are always an indication of pride, even to haughtiness.

A damp, warm palm indicates a feverish condition, often lung trouble.

A whole and clear line in one hand contradicts and corrects a broken line in the other.

The elementary hand is broad, hard and with fingers the same thickness from root to tip.

When the plain of Mars is wrinkled, the man will delight in controversy or strife of some kind.

Very long fingers belong to the artist, the designer, the man who plans better than he can execute.

Knotty fingers belong to the slow workers and thinkers, to reasoners and persons of orderly mind.

Red spots on the nails show the man to be of very choleric temper and inclined to be quarrelsome.

Pale lines on the hand indicate a revengeful disposition, intensified by long fingers and a short thumb.

The mount of Mars is on the outside of the hand, opposite the thumb, and indicates combativeness.

When the heart line goes across the entire palm, the individual will have strong affections, but much jealousy.

The man whose fingers turn backward is unjust, and the nearer his hand the more mischievous he is likely to be.

Large hands give great attention to detail, small hands to the general effect; small hands plan, large hands execute.

The thumb is supposed to indicate the strength of the animal propensities. Its base is termed the mount of Venus.

A star on the mount of Jupiter signifies satisfied ambitions; on Saturn, violent death; on Apollo, riches and misfortune; on Mercury, business dishonor; on Mars, murder; on the moon, hypocrisy and perfidy.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

GRAY HAIR.

In the United States sex appears to make little difference. Men and women grow gray about the same period in life.

Race has a marked influence. The traveler Dr. d'Aubigny says that in many years he spent in South America he never saw a bald Indian and scarcely a gray haired one.

In men the hair and beard rarely change equally. The one is usually darker than the other for several years, but there seems to be no general rule as to which whitens the first.

The spot where grayness begins differs with the individual. The philosopher Schopenhauer began to turn gray on the temples and consequently fancied a theory that this is an indication of great mental activity.

Many feeble persons and others who have suffered extremely, both mentally and physically, do not blanch a hair until past middle life, while others, without assignable cause, lose their capillary coloring matter rapidly when about 40 years of age.

Many persons begin to show gray hairs while they are yet in their twenties and some while in their teens. This does not by any means argue a premature decay of the constitution. It is purely a local phenomenon and may coexist with unusual bodily vigor.

GENERAL'S NICKNAMES.

General McClellan was called "Little Mac."

General Burnside was familiarly called "Old Rhody."

General Logan was called by his men "Black Jack."

General Hancock bore the title of "Hancock the Superb."

General Sherman was nicknamed "Uncle Billy" and "Old Tecumseh."

General Grant was called "Unconditional Surrender" Grant by his men.

General Philip Sheridan was lovingly called by his soldiers "Little Phil."

General Hooker was known as "Fighting Joe Hooker" by the country at large.

General Meade was sometimes called "Four Eyed George." He wore spectacles.

FLOWER AND TREE.

A single mahogany tree in Honduras was recently cut into boards, which when sold realized over $10,000.

It is said that the parent tree of all the weeping willows in this country was grown from a slip sent over from England to a friend by Alexander Pope.

In Switzerland very stringent laws exist for the protection of fruit trees from insects and other pests. No tree owner is allowed to treat his trees as he chooses, but a strict watch is kept over both amateur and professional horticulturists.

The mignonette may be trained into a tree-shaped plant by tying up to a stake and pinching off the side branches until about a foot high. Thus trained it becomes a desirable house plant, filling the room with its peculiar fragrance.

FAMOUS TALL BEAUTIES.

The Roman matron Cornelia was tall and commanding.

Helen, according to reports, was a large woman of great beauty.

Zenobia, the wife of Odenatus, was tall and extremely handsome.

Dante's Beatrice was nobly planned and of commanding presence.

Diana de Poitiers, the beauty of Francis I's time, was remarkably tall.

Mme. Roland described Marie Antoinette as "large and superbly modeled."

The poet Ariosto loved Alexandra Strozzi, who was a beautiful woman on a "large and magnificent scale."

WAYSIDE GLEANINGS.

More than 1,000 distinct and perfect forms of snow crystals have been enumerated and figured by the various investigators in that line.

At the beginning of 1893 there were 1,701,000,000 francs in gold and 1,257,000,000 francs in silver in the vaults of the Bank of France. It would require 683 cars of a capacity of 10 tons each to move the metals.

Three-quarters of a second is the time occupied by the fall of a knife in the guillotine. The knife is weighted by 130 pounds of lead, falls nine feet and cuts through flesh and bones as easily as through a bar of soap.

CASTORIA

for Infants and Children.

"Castoria is so well adapted to children that I recommend it as superior to any prescription known to me." H. A. Archer, M. D., 111 So. Oxford St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

"The use of 'Castoria' is so universal and its merits so well known that it seems a waste of supererogation to endorse it. Few are the intelligent families who do not keep Castoria within easy reach." CARLOS MARTIN, D. D., New York City. Late Pastor Bloomingdale Reformed Church.

Castoria cures Colic, Constipation, Sour Stomach, Diarrhoea, Eruption, Skin Worms, gives sleep, and promotes digestion. Without injurious medication.

"For several years I have recommended your 'Castoria,' and shall always continue to do so as it has invariably produced beneficial results." EDWIN F. PARDEE, M. D., "The Winthrop," 125th Street and 7th Ave., New York City.

—Mr. and Mrs. Charles Corcoran are registered at the Hotel Imperial, New York City.

—The regular meeting of the Goddard is postponed from Tuesday the 11th to Tuesday the 18th.

—John Payne rejoices in a new clock, a handsome timepiece. It was placed in position this week.

—Mrs. Leatherbee gave a charming luncheon party in the Newton clubhouse, Tuesday. Covers were laid for 20.

—Gen. Hull lodge, A. O. U. W., will confer the degree on Mr. Annie M. at the regular meeting next Tuesday night.

—There are letters at the postoffice for Mrs. Folles, H. N. Barker, Mr. J. B. Hall, Alfred A. Murray and Mrs. Fred Very.

—The Newton High school nine has organized, and a series of games will be played during the season with other schools in this vicinity.

—A very interesting Easter concert was given in the Central Congregational church last Sunday evening. At the Methodist church, there was a choral service.

—Henry W. Savage has just sold to E. H. Sprague lots Nos. 24 and 25, Norwood avenue. They belonged to J. F. O. Wilkins, and contain 28,000 square feet. The new owner intends to build on them.

—Miss Clara Bowers of the Universalist church quartet, gave a fine rendering of the solo "Rejoice Greatly," from the Messiah, at the Easter service in the Central Congregational church, last Sunday evening.

—In the event of the granting of the locations on Walnut and Watertown streets asked for by the Newtonville and Watertown Street Railway Company, a power house will be erected, corner of Watertown and Adams streets.

—The fact that ladies from the different wards will assist Mrs. Chaloner in receiving visitors during the exhibition of her husband's water colors adds a most agreeable feature. The exhibition opens tomorrow evening at Tremont Hall, when a large attendance is anticipated.

—The decorations at the Universalist church for Easter were about the finest in the city and consisted of very elaborate and tasteful arrangement of grouped palms, Easter lilies, roses and trailing vines. There was a beautiful cross on the central panel of the pulpit. The sermon was of Easter and the musical service in accord with the grand character of the day. The quartet choir was assisted by Mr. Fred Barlow, violinist.

—Miss Laura Smith's home on Washington street was the scene of a surprise party last Friday evening. There was the usual social features, music, dancing and a collation. Among those present were Miss Jones, Miss Abbott, Miss Hodgson, Miss Brooks, Miss Smith, Miss Williams, Miss Furness, Miss Pemberton, Mrs. Calaf, Mrs. Buck, Mr. Walker, Mr. Mann, Mr. Kimpton, Mr. Buck, Mr. Buntin, Mr. Cook, Mr. Paul, Mr. Hammond, Mr. Wandless, Mr. Briggs, Mr. Wilcox and Mr. Mason.

—Mr. J. G. Kilburn has just placed a new soda fountain in his store with all the necessary fixtures, representing a total cost of about $800. It is one of the finest in the city, from the manufactory of the Low & Co. The Company. The ornamentation consists of medallions forming a centre piece and the conspicuous designs of the side panels. There is an elaborate canopy top with plate glass mirror and projecting cornice, and altogether it is a very handsome and complete piece of apparatus.

—The California street home of Mr. T. W. Westwood was the scene of a very pretty party last Saturday evening, the occasion being the eighteenth birthday of his daughter, Miss Mabel. Some thirty-five responded to the invitations. Musical selections were rendered by Miss Eva Chidbourn, piano solos, and Miss Gertrude Estes, violin solos, and Miss Johnson gave several readings. Miss Westwood was assisted by her cousin, Miss Johnson. Among the out-of-town guests were Miss Eva Wight of Westboro, Miss Lella Johnson of Hudson, Mr. H. E. Fames of Holliston, Mr. C. E. Paine of Springfield, Mr. F. R. Snow of Cambridge, Mr. E. D. Seaver of Boston, Mrs. F. O. Johnson, Miss Bessie Akerman, Mr. O. A. Gould and Mr. W. W. Talley of Wellesley. Miss Westwood was the recipient of many beautiful gifts.

—The closing assembly Wednesday evening at the Newton clubhouse brought out the largest, and, perhaps, the most brilliant company of the season for an affair of so purely a club character. The large hall presented a most attractive scene during the torchlight procession, with the combined effects of gleaming lights, graceful and pretty women and the colors of decorations and handsome costumes. Some elegant gowns were worn, including many of the wonderful Parisian creations, which are only limited in this country, notwithstanding the originality and dexterity of American designers. Following the dancing, one of the prettiest scenes was the groups in the ladies' cafe, an apartment which furnishes an enjoyable study for art lovers. It was a picture with its equipment of well dressed men and women of complete social luxury and comfort. And who shall say that society has no charm, certainly not those who have met in such agreeable companionship.

—The funeral of ex-Alderman George F. Churchill took place from the Central Congregational Church, Monday afternoon. The attendance was very large. Dalhousie lodge, F. A. M., Garden City lodge, K. H., and Mt. Ida council, R. A., were fully represented. The services were conducted by Rev. J. M. Dutton, pastor of the Central church, and Rev. Mr. Herrick of the Mt. Vernon street church, Boston. There was a large number of floral tributes including pillows from Newton Royal Arch Chapter, Mt. Ida council and Newton lodge, I. O. O. F., Maltese cross from Eliot lodge, K. H., bunch palms from Newton Congregational club, floral anchor from Mayor Fenno and members of the city council and broken circle and sickle from Newton lodge, A. O. U. W. The remains were escorted to the grave by the Masonic bodies and Mt. Ida council, R. A., and the interment made in the Newton cemetery with Masonic ceremonies. All the business places were closed during the funeral services. The pall bearers were Messrs. B. F. Ous, representing the city government; A. W. B. Huff of Newton council, A. O. O. W.; E. W. Bailey of Mt. Ida council, R. A.; H. B. Allen, of Eliot lodge, K. H.; G. F. Whitmore of the Masonic orders; C. Willard Carter of Newton lodge, I. O. O. F.; W. F. Slocum of the Central Congregational church and H. F. Howe of Boston.

—A reunion of the pupils of the Allen English and Classical school is an event set down for June, which promises to be an occasion of unusual interest.

—Mr. and Mrs. Stephen W. Reynolds and little daughters are on their way home from Mexico, where they have been sojourning for a number of weeks.

—Mrs. E. N. L. Walton represented the West Newton Woman's Educational Club at the meeting in Boston recently, of the Federation of Massachusetts Women's Clubs.

—People are asking when Watertown street is to be put into condition again, as it has been practically closed to travel for a long time. A few men began work there this week.

—The number of patrolmen to be increased from 28 to 32. Now comes the civil service examination and the subsequent contest for places in the eligible list. Let the best men win.

—There are letters at the postoffice for H. W. Ball, James Currey, Mary Coughlan, Michael Fitzsimmons, Alice Hey, E. D. Goodwin, Minnie M. Johnson, Master Albert Moore, Mr. J. H. McKenzie, Avery Pether and Mary J. Smith.

—At the Congregational church Easter services were largely attended both morning and evening last Sunday. Next Sunday will be the praise services. It will be a song service. Rev. Mr. Whitteley will speak of the Mines Relief Fund, proposed by the National Council. It will be a service of peculiar interest. All are cordially invited.

—The game of Living Whist, arranged under the direction and played by the pupils of Miss Rose L. Byrne of Roxbury, will be presented for the first time by children at the City Hall in aid of the Cottage Hospital, Tuesday, April 18. Doors open at 7.15. Whist at 8 p. m. Tickets $1.00. Proceeds at the drug stores in the several villages.

—The funeral of Mrs. E. B. Wilson took place from her late residence on Otis street, Monday afternoon. Rev. Mr. Matteson, pastor of the Church of the Messiah, officiated, and appropriate selections were rendered by Newton Lodge, I. O. O. F., quartette. The floral tributes were very beautiful. The interment was made in the Newton cemetery.

—At the Pink Tea in the Baptist church, Wednesday afternoon, these young ladies poured: Mrs. Herbert Pike, Mrs. Albert Johnson, Miss Alice Bruce, Miss Mary Barbour, Miss Mary Colligan, Miss Helen Hunt, Miss Sarah McKenna and Miss Grace Lisle. The parlors were very tastefully decorated. There was a sociable in the evening and an enjoyable entertainment program.

The Ladies' Home Circle.

The Newton Ladies' Home Circle will hold a sale of useful and fancy articles in the chapel of the Congregational church, on the afternoons and evenings of Wednesday and Thursday, April 12th and 13th. A good supper for 25 cents will be served on Wednesday from 6.30 to 8.30, admission to the chapel, 10 cents. As the work of this society has been done very quietly for several years, a few words of explanation seem desirable. Its membership now numbers ninety-three, ladies from all parts of Newton. Its regular meetings are held twice each month. A relief committee from each ward, brings to the meetings reports of needy cases, and every dollar is expended with the greatest care. All the ladies give their time gratuitously to the work, besides contributing generously of their own money. Outside of its regular work the society has furnished and maintained a room in the Newton Cottage Hospital, one in the Soldiers' Home at Chelsea, and a bed in the Little Wanderers' Home at Boston. It is hoped that the public will give its generous patronage to the sale and thus help on the good work.

Lasell Notes.

Mr. and Mrs. Braden and Miss Ransom arrived at the seminary on Tuesday morning, having reached New York on the Kaiser Wilhelm late Monday afternoon. All are well and have had a most delightful trip.

The Washington party returned on Wednesday morning at 8.05. They were favored with good weather during the entire trip, and "did" the Capitol quite thoroughly. "I enjoyed every minute of the time," said one of them.

School reopened on Wednesday evening at 7.30, with comparatively few absences from the number who spent their vacation away from the seminary.

On Wednesday evening the first of a course of ten lectures on Architecture was given at the seminary by Mr. Walter H. Kilham. The lectures are illustrated and will cover the architectural styles of Egypt, Assyria, Persia, India, Greece and Rome, and of medieval and modern times. The initial lecture treated of Egyptian architecture, and the illustrations were unusually clear and fine.

PEN, CHISEL AND BRUSH.

A bronze statue of Burns is to be erected in Denver, for which W. Grant Stevenson of Edinburgh has sent over designs, both for a standing and seated figure.

John Sargent has undertaken, according to The Journal des Arts of Paris, the painting of the present British parliament, with portraits of no less than 400 members.

A view of Venice showing the Church of San Giorgio is one of the pictures painted by Mr. Seymour Bloodgood last summer while abroad. It is charming in color and poetic sentiment.

It is announced that the complete novels of Turgeneff are to be translated into English and published in London, and that Stepiak is to furnish an introductory essay to each volume.

Hall Caine, the novelist, is a connoisseur in old oak. If he can help it, he never allows his eye to rest on any article of furniture which does not at least carry the thoughts back several generations.

A picture by Van Dyke, a portrait of the Marquise Spinola and one of her children, dated 1632, was recently purchased by James F. Sutton of New York from the Comte de Caledon for the sum of 500,000 francs.

Mme. Julia Giraud Baroli of Paris is an adept with the needle, working pictures on velvet. She has been showing at the Georges Petit galleries portraits on velvet of the czar of Russia, President Carnot, Victor Hugo and Queen Victoria.

Charles B. Lewis, the humorist who writes under the name of M. Quad, has iron gray hair, wears a mustache and is about the average in height. During the war he was a gallant soldier, and the wounds he received prevent him from being active on his feet.

CROWN AND SCEPTER.

The king of Wurtemberg, it is stated, is the only crowned head that wears the monocle.

Queen Margaret of Italy usually wears two large pear-shaped pearls in her ears, pendant from small diamonds.

Nikita, ruler of the Montenegrins, is said to drive a thrifty bargain with such of his people as need loans, the interest being anywhere from 18 to 30 per cent.

The king of Greece has a salary of $900,000 and finds it all little enough when he has to foot the bills of a stud of 200 horses and to pay the expenses of his royal position.

Ex-Empress Eugenie's villa at Cap Martin will be a very picturesque structure, as the interior is to be superbly decorated, Eugenie proposing to hang the principal sitting rooms with Gobelin tapestry.

The Princess of Wales has never seen Rome, and as she has a great desire to visit the Eternal City the present yachting tour of the prince and princess through the Mediterranean has been so arranged that the desire of the princess may be gratified.

M. Lanin, the Russian writer, describes the czar as the embodiment of Trollope's hero, Lord Chiltern, "a dull, fierce man, who meant well, but had imperfect control and could not help, when strongly moved, rushing at his object like a bull." Hence the czar's nickname, "The Bull."

VALUABLE CEMENTS.

Cement For Stoves—Mix with water three parts hardwood ashes and one part soft a stiff paste. This will stop cracks in stoves or stove lids.

Aquarium Cement—Two parts by weight of common pitch and one part gutta percha melted together in an iron vessel and thoroughly incorporated by stirring.

Cement For China—To a thick solution of gum arabic add plaster of paris to form a sticky paste. Apply with a brush to each edge, and if possible tie together.

For Minerals and Fossils—Pulverize two ounces of gum arabic and dissolve it in the quantity of water a laundress would use for the same bulk of starch. Dissolve half an ounce of fine starch and half an ounce of white sugar in the gum solution, cook the mixture in a vessel set in boiling water till it becomes clear.

Litharge Cement—Litharge mixed with glycerin to the consistency of putty will stop cracks in iron kettles, mend stone jars, tighten loose joints of iron and wood, fasten lamp tops to their standards and is good to rub in the seams of old milk pans. It hardens in a few hours and is perfectly harmless. It will resist acids, heat and cold.

POWDER AND BALL.

By saturating a bullet with vaseline its flight may be recognized.

Napoleon prohibited the use of the mustache to all the infantry in his armies except grenadiers of the Old Guard and the sappers and miners of each regiment.

War and glory have been costly things to France. Between 1793 and 1815 she sacrificed one-half of the 4,500,000 soldiers whom she sent to fight her battles. War has cost her in this century not far from 6,000,000 lives.

Seventeen private soldiers of the French army in Bonaparte's time by their bravery and talents raised themselves to the following distinguished stations: Two became kings, two princes, nine dukes, two field marshals and two generals.

An improvement in the gun of Dr. Richard J. Gatling is announced by the inventor, which increases the rapidity of fire from "400 to 2,000 shots per minute." The new cartridge feeding process includes a belt driven by an electric motor.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS.

For bleeding at the nose cold water applications to the back of a cold piece of metal applied to the spine will prove effective.

If you have a cinder in your eye, the best plan is to pull the upper lid down over the under one. This increases the flow of tears and brushes the cinder out with the lashes.

In France, instead of using starch on table napkins after they are washed and dried and ready to be ironed, they are dipped in boiling water and partially wrung out between cloths. They are rapidly ironed with as hot a flatiron as possible without burning them.

Lean women who desire to accumulate a plump coating on their bones are advised to avoid worry, to cultivate calmness, to sleep eight hours every day, to take moderate exercise, to eat fattening foods, such as soup, butter, cream, fat and juicy meats, olive oil and farinaceous articles and to take warm baths at night.

RAILWAY RUMBLES.

The railroad mileage of Connecticut is greater according to area than any country of Europe except Belgium.

The plan of using separate tires for car wheels is reported by many railroad men as representing the correct principle of construction.

A fine 3-span cantilever bridge, 510 feet long, is to be built along the Pend d'Arville river, British Columbia, by the Nelson and Fort Sheppard railroad.

The railroad grade crossings in Massachusetts are fast being abolished. For 52 consecutive miles on the Boston and Albany road there is not a crossing.

The Liverpool "overhead railway," the first elevated road to be built in England, has just been completed. It occupied three years in construction, is six miles in length so far, cost $425,000 per mile, and the motive power is electricity.

FIGS AND THISTLES.

Some shepherds pay the most attention to the fattest sheep.

The man who is too poor to take a newspaper always has a dog.

No man is fit for heaven as long as he wants anybody else kept out.

It is hard for the shepherd to fatten the sheep that prefer to live on husks.

Crushing a rose always gives it a chance to speak louder and say more about itself.

The world gives nothing in the way of treasure without sending trouble therewith.

Do your enemy a favor every chance you get, and it will cut like an ax if you do it in the right spirit.—Ran's Horn.

Complied With.

"Look here, Mr. Editor," exclaimed an irate caller, "you referred to me yesterday as a reformed drunkard. You must take it back or I'll sue your paper for libel."

"Very well, sir," replied the editor. "I'll retract the statement cheerfully. I'll say you haven't reformed."—Rochester Jury.

Our Folding Bed.

Jedediah Simpkins
Was a merry little sprite;
They lost him in the morning,
And he wasn't found till night.

And when at last they saw him
Indignantly he said,
"Who's ax it pulled the trigger
Of our patient folding bed?"

—Washington Star.

A Surmise.

Mr. Nuwite—So this is cottage pudding, eh?

Mrs. Nuwite (proudly)—Yes. Can you guess how it's made?

Mr. Nuwite (Well)—er—I should think of pressed bricks, dear.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

And This Is Spring.

Yes, we grumbled when it froze,
And our ears we wrapped in plush,
And our feet we could not keep,
And we grumble now because

As the weather warms our groins,
And it thaws and thaws and thaws,
We must wade around in slush
Six or seven inches deep.

BOSTON AMUSEMENTS.

HOLLIS STREET THEATRE.—Augustin Daly's company will follow "Blue Jeans" at the Hollis Street Theatre for a period of two weeks, beginning April 10. The first week will be devoted on Monday, Tuesday evening, and Wednesday matinee to "Little Lord Fauntleroy." Wednesday evening "Love in Tandem," and on Thursday evening there will be a double bill consisting of "The Belle of the Stratagem" and "A Loan of a Lover." Friday and Saturday evenings and Saturday matinee the play will be "The Hunchback." For the second week beginning April 17, "Twelfth Night" will be produced and elaborate preparations are being made by Manager Rice to make the production noteworthy in every respect. The regular sale of seats opened at the box-office Tuesday morning at ten o'clock but seats may be ordered in advance by letter accompanied by the money. As the demand will undoubtedly be very great and as the management desire to free their patrons from the annoyance of speculators, it has been decided to limit the sale of tickets to any one person, to ten in number, for each performance. The usual Wednesday and Saturday matinees, beginning at 2 o'clock will be given.

GRAND OPERA HOUSE.—The management of the Grand Opera House announce for next week's attraction the great modern success, "The Still Alarm," and that bright little mite of versatility, Little Tuesday. With such a combination of the Grand Opera House may well congratulate themselves on the entertainment in store for them. "The Still Alarm" will be identical with the performance given at the Globe Theatre last season, except that the author, Mr. Joseph Arthur, has incorporated in it some bright fresh lines and situations and Little Tuesday has added to her repertoire of impersonations. The company to present "The Still Alarm" was never better qualified and it includes some of the best talent in the profession. The role of the hero will be played by Mr. Will S. Harkins, an actor of more than ordinary ability. Following "The Still Alarm" an elaborate production of Mrs. Frances Hodgson Burnett's famous play, "Little Lord Fauntleroy" will be presented by a company especially engaged to support Miss Annie Clarke, who will appear in her famous role of Minna, the adventures. Many of the old Museum company will be seen in the cast.

PARK THEATRE.—Hoyt's, "A Temperance Town," began its 18th week at the Park Theatre Monday last. The house was crowded to the doors and has been during the week and in the audiences have been noticed hundreds of familiar faces, those to whom seeing "A Temperance Town" become practically a habit. The faces are not those of the occasional theatre-goer, but of those who recognize an extraordinary production when they see it once and return to see it again. There are not and never have been many plays of modern years which could control a Boston public for so long a time as "A Temperance Town," and it goes to show what a transcendent power Hoyt has on the American public and how firm a claim to being at the head of the most popular school of the drama in the United States. The run of his last play at the Park Theatre will no doubt be accounted for to no little extent by the reputation of this theatre for its long successful runs.

COLUMBIA THEATRE.—"The Isle of Champagne," the effervescent comic opera by Byrnie and Harrison, will begin its second week Monday, April 10, at the Columbia Theatre, by the Seabrooke Opera Company. The sparkling humor of the piece keeps the audience constantly exploding with laughter, like the popping of many corks. The scene is laid on the Isle of Champagne, which the careful chronicler locates on "Longitude 120 west, latitude 22 south." This delightful place is ruled by King Pomery Sec'd a merry monarch, whose cares sit lightly upon him. His first appearance suggests a bottle of ancient vintage, very much cobwebbed; but he gets over that as his income is improved by the discovery of a new beverage, called water, brought to the Isle on a ship from New Bedford, Mass., that goes ashore, and whose owner, Abigail Peck, he marries, and thus enjoys the benefit of the sale of the strange drink to his people, who take quite a fancy to it.

BOWDOIN SQUARE THEATRE.—Manager Atkinson, of the Bowdoin Square Theatre, announces a return engagement of Cosgrove and Grant's Comedians in "The Dazzler," as the attraction at that house next week. This company made such a pronounced success at the Bowdoin Square Theatre last November, that this announcement will be a welcome one to the patrons. "The Dazzler" is now in its third season, and Miss Annie Boyd, the bright and pleasing soubrette, has become known as its principal attraction throughout the country. The leading comedian is Joseph Ott, whose strikingly original methods have given him equal prominence in the east with Miss Boyd, and these clever people are supported by Blanche Arkwright, Belle Sanford, Messrs. F. Ward, A. Hart, T. F. Curran, Max Miller, and other equally popular people. "The Dazzler" will be followed on April 17, by "McCarthy's Mishaps."

BOOKS AND MAGAZINES.

THE FORUM FOR APRIL.

The April Forum embraces an important discussion by eminent experts of the new political era begun with President Cleveland's inauguration. In "The Great Democratic Opportunity," President Seth Low, of Columbia College, frankly discusses the present Democratic ascendancy and the obligation of Mr. Cleveland and his party to voters; Oswald Ottendorfer points to financial danger from disagreement between Mr. Cleveland and Congress; and Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, in "Outlook and Duty of the Republican Party," carefully estimates the significance of the astonishing Republican reverse and defines the party's right attitude in the present crisis.

SCRIBNER'S.

Scribner's Magazine for April opens artistically with a rich group of illustrations by Robert Blum, who has recently returned from a two years' residence in Japan. He has written several papers detailing in the most convincing way his experiences while in that country, and each of these will be fully illustrated from the remarkable collection of sketches and pictures which are the fruit of his study in that country. This paper is called "An Artist in Japan," and is taken up with the vivid first impressions which that country made on an artist. The permanent, in another article in this number, "A New England Farm," writer and illustrators are united in one person, with the additional novelty that the drawings are also engraved by the author. Frank French, (whose article entitled "A Day With a Country Doctor" in this Magazine was, it is believed, the first example in an American periodical of a contribution written, drawn, and engraved by the same man. In the present instance Mr. French gives a delightful picture of what a city man has accomplished on an abandoned New England farm. There are many other articles of interest.

The Voice of a Flower, by E. Gerard, is the title of a forthcoming novel in D. Appleton & Co.'s carefully selected Town and Country Library. The author, whose critical "Saturday Review" has called "one of the most fascinating of our lady novelists," is the wife of a Hungarian officer, and her real name is De la Zenska. She is the author of "The Waters of Hercules" and other popular novels, and joint author with her sister, Dorothea Gerard, of "A Sensitive Plant" and "Reata."

Rudyard Kipling has completed his new book, which is to be called Many Intentions. It is understood that Mr. Kipling takes a special interest in this book, and that he has written for it three new stories which have not appeared in any of the magazines. Mr. Kipling's American publishers are D. Appleton & Co.

An account of the towing of the two Columbus caravels, the Pinta and the Nina, from Spain to Cuba, written by an officer who participated in the work, will be published in the next number of Harper's Weekly. The same number besides other matter apropos of Columbus and the Columbian Exposition, will contain a graphic description of the city of Havana, Cuba.

Edna Lyall, author of the very popular stories in the Golden Days, Donovan, We Two, etc., has written a new novel, entitled "To Right the Wrong," which will be introduced to American readers through the pages of Harper's Bazar. The opening chapter will appear in the number for April 8th.

The Easter Lily.

The following pretty little Easter story was told to a kindergarten class by a local teacher, and was thought worthy of being preserved for a wider audience:

Many, many years ago in a beautiful country where the flowers and the love to live, and where it is summer all the time, there was born a beautiful little flower; it came to this earth dressed in most beautiful white, and it smelled so sweet that everyone who passed by stopped to admire and caress it. The sun shone so warm on the little flower, and the gentle rains gave it such nice drinks when it was thirsty that the little lily (for so people named it), lifted its head in thankfulness, and grew just the best it knew how.

Flowers, you know, do not live very long, and one day a little girl passing by the lily saw it hanging its head. She knew then that the little flower that everyone loved so much, was going to die. Sure enough, every day its head drooped lower and lower, and soon people said: "It is dead." How sorry everyone felt not to see it smiling to them, and giving them its perfume.

Do you know the queerest thing about that little flower, it was not dead at all, at least not quite yet. When it went to sleep it dropped a little seed out of its tiny cup, and the seed fell into a warm bed the ground, and there it staid. The sun came to visit it, and it did the same to the little seed that it does to you in the early morning; it woke it up.

The little seed box opened and out came the dearest little plant. Not long after that the people passing by saw their little friend the lily looking so fresh and bright, and they all cried joyously: "The lily was not dead, it was only sleeping, now it is awake, it is risen."

Do you remember the little baby that was born in Bethlehem so many years ago? You remember the people called him the little Christ-child, and he was the little baby that God sent to the world, so that when he grew to be a man he could show everyone how to be good before, and then when he was grown up, this dear Christ went to sleep just like the lily, and all the people that loved him so much felt very sorry. But he did not sleep long; one morning a woman whose name was Mary, went to his grave, and there she found some beautiful angels who told her that the Lord Christ was awake and had risen.

Everyone has been so happy ever since to know that he awakened on that beautiful spring morn'g, that they have all remembered the day, and call it Easter.

A headlight is a good thing for an engine, but a light head is not good for the engineer.—Rochester Democrat.

When a girl allows a fellow to put his overcoat on without assisting him it is a sign that she doesn't want him to come back any more.—Acheson Globe.

The man who sat on the woodpile and told funny stories, expecting the wood would split, evidently did not strike a "responsive chord."—Yonkers Statesman.

A FREE LIBRARY FOR YOU.

25 BOOKS AND THE ENTERPRISING BOSTON DAILY POST FOR $3.50 PER YEAR.

It is difficult to understand how any newspaper can afford to do it, but the Boston Post is giving away 25 volumes, from the Seaside Library, with every subscription to its daily edition. There is in consequence a tremendous boom in its list of subscribers.

The Post itself, one of the newest, ablest and most interesting Boston papers, together with the 25 books, is sold for $3.50, which amount includes all postage, both on the paper and the books. With a six-months' subscription, 12 books are given for $1.75, including all postage.

Subscribers have the privilege of picking their own books by number from a catalogue of nearly a thousand titles, furnished by the Post. So liberal an offer was never made by a newspaper before, and those who wish to take advantage of it should do so promptly, as the great demand is likely to exhaust the supply of books.

The Post also advertises for agents to secure mail subscriptions on this basis, and guarantees a liberal commission. Application should be made immediately, with a letter of recommendation as to character, &c., to the Circulation Department, the Post, Boston, Mass.

Paint at $1.25 per gallon.

Ten gallons of paint at $1.25 per gallon is $12.50. Labor for painting $40. The $1.25 paint is short measure, one gallon must be added therefore to make ten full gallons of paint. Total cost $53.75. This paint may last three years, not longer. In twelve years you will have painted your house four times at a total cost of $215.00, which is $17.91 per annum.

Paint at $1.60 per gallon.

Ten gallons of paint at $1.60 per gallon is $16.00. Labor for painting $40. Total cost $56.00. This $1.60 paint, if it is the Chilton, will last six years. In twelve years you will have painted your house twice at a cost of $112, which is $9.33 per annum. Chilton Paint, as we have said, costs you a little more per gallon at the start than some other paints, but it is cheaper in the end, on ten gallons the extra cost is $2.25. The saving to you in twelve years is $103.00. "Chilton Paint Co." New York and Boston.

visiting Mrs. L. P. Bowers of Pembroke street.

—Mr. and Mrs. Thomas R. Brooke of Vernon street have returned from their trip to Florida.

—Rev. E. A. Manning supplied the Methodist pulpit last Sunday in Mr. Bronson's absence.

—Mr. Chas. S. Marsh and family leave the city today for their future home in East Hampton, Mass.

—The Newton Social Science Club will meet at Mrs. Crosby's, Park street, Wednesday, April 19, at 10 a. m.

—Mr. and Mrs. Everett U. Crosby have returned from their wedding trip and have taken apartments on Vernon street.

—Rev. Dr. Shinn presided at the Eastern convocation of the Episcopal diocese of Massachusetts at Boston on Tuesday.

—Mr. Edward F. Barnes has leased the house on Channing street, formerly occupied by Dr. Jewell, to S. P. Whitman, who is moving in this week.

—Miss Mabel Potter gave a whist party
of twenty in honor of her friend, Miss Rosier of Brooklyn, N. Y., Wednesday evening, at Walnut Park.

—Miss M. R. Bishop, of the Berkeley, Boston, is passing a few days here, preparatory to leaving for Virginia Beach, Virginia,
where she will visit her brother in April.

—The Newton Woman Suffrage Association will hold a meeting next Tuesday evening in the chapel at Lasell seminary.
Mrs. Lucy Blackwell and others will give addresses.

—It is expected that the beautiful Cantata called "The Daughter of Jairus" will be sung in Grace church on the first Sunday night in May, that being the anniversary of the choir.

—Mr. Fred A. Hubbard left yesterday on the Steamer Dorchester for Fort Monroe and Hampton Roads, where he will attend the naval review, and will be absent
about ten days.

A. W. Porter is agent in Newton for the Union Bicycle, which he sells either for cash on the instalment plan, and second hand wheels are taken in part payment. See ad.

—Rev. Mr. Hornbrook and wife left Wednesday for Washington, where Mr.
Hornbrook will preach on Sunday at All Souls' Church. They will return the last of next week.

—Rev. Mr. Bronson is attending the Conference at Plymouth, and Mr. S. M. Say-ford of this city is expected to occupy the pulpit at the Methodist church next Sunday morning and evening.

—Much interest is being manifested in the recital to be given by Miss C. Blanche Rice at Union Hall, Boston, April 20. For the benefit of Newton people seats can be secured at F. A. Hubbard's.

—Dr. E. P. Seales has been established now 30 years in this city, the anniversary day falling on Sunday, April 9. He is the senior resident practicing physician and has had a busy, professional career.

—The young ladies of Miss Wilson's gymnasium enjoyed an afternoon tea at Mrs. Walter H. Stearns', Nonantum place, last week. Mrs. Stearns received informally. It was a very pleasant, social event.

—Mrs. J. E. Tuttle of the Boston Christian Endeavor Union, will speak at the young people's meeting in Eliot church next Sunday evening at 6:30, on the relation of the Y. P. S. C. E. to the missionary societies.

—The cellars for three new houses are being excavated on Hunnewell hill. One for Mr. Trowbridge and one for Mr. Man-dell on Hunnewell avenue and one on the corner of Fairview street and Hunnewell terrace for Mr. Flynn.

—Mr. J. J. Johnson, the Thornton street
florist, gets a high compliment in the Boston letter of the American Florist, which says that "the finest Mermetts and Bride roses in Boston, coming to N. F. McCarney & Co., are from J. J. Johnson of Newton."

—Mr. George Strong, the sale of whose estate on Vernon street was reported last week, has bought a house on Commonwealth avenue, Boston, and intends to remove there soon. It is expected that Mr.
Henry W. Savage, the real estate dealer,
will occupy the place on Vernon street.

—The King's Daughters of Newton have the honor to announce an organ recital
to be given by Mr. J. Wallace Goodrich, with the assistance of Miss Gertrude Edmunds, at Eliot church next Monday evening, April 17th, at 8 o'clock. The public are cordially invited to be present.

—Mr. E. P. Burnham and W. W. Stall are representatives of the Newton Club to the Association Cycle Club, which holds a race meeting at Waltham on the 30th. Mr.
Burnham is also one of the prize committee, and has already received generous contributions, among them being a new Victor from the Overman Wheel Company,
as a first prize.

—Mr. E. P. Burnham has sold over twenty of the Victor and Lovell bicycles so far this season. He has a very light machine on exhibition in Hubbard's window,
weighing 32 1/2 pounds, called "The Ladies' Triumph" with Horally and Jeffrey's pneumatic tire, also fitted with a Dover gear case, covering the chain and sprocket wheels, a complete protection for ladies' dresses.

—An important vote was recently adopted at the parish meeting of Grace church. Hitherto the seats have been made free at the evening services for a year
at a time, but the parish has now decided to make the seats free at evening services with any reference to time. This means that for the future any seat in Grace church can be occupied on Sunday evening by any one who wishes to do so.

—Mr. Edward D. Holmes, formerly of Vernon street, but now of North Conway,
N. H., was married on Wednesday to Miss Alice Thompson, at the residence of the bride's aunt, Mrs. Harrington of Auburn-dale. Rev. F. B. Hornbrook officiated, and only the relatives were present. Mr.
and Mrs. Holmes have gone to Washington
on their wedding trip and on their return
will make their home at North Conway.

—Miss Langley of Forest Hills was thrown from a carriage on Brighton hill, Wednesday evening, by a sudden jar caused by the breaking of a harness. She was pitched over the forward wheel, striking on her head and receiving injuries which rendered her unconscious. She was taken to Hotel Hunnewell, and there attended by Dr. Winslow, who took several stitches in wounds about the head. She was afterwards taken to the home of friends on Chapel street.

—The funeral of Mr. George Leonard, the well-known real estate operator, took place from his late residence, Mt. Ida street, yesterday afternoon. The services were conducted by Rev. Wolcott Calkins, D. D., the Eliot church, quartet furnishing the music. There was a large attendance of Newton people and Boston business men. Many beautiful floral tributes were sent by relatives and friends. The interment was in the Newton cemetery.

—The eleventh annual meeting of the Newton Bicycle Club was held at the Thorndike, Boston, Saturday evening last.
Invitations were extended to all the present and past members, and twenty-one were present. The guest of the evening was Geo. A. Perkins, Chief Consul of Mass. Mr. Abbott Bassett was toastmaster and speeches were made by George Hastings, Harry Corey, W. W. Stall, P. L.
Aubin, Frank Wilson and others. The new officers of the club are the same as last year.

—The "gentlemen's night" of the Ladies'
Club of Twenty was a very enjoyable occasion, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lee J. Calley, 99 Park street, on Fast Day evening. A fine supper by Paxton was served at 6:30, after which whist was played till 11 o'clock, when the prize winners were announced. Mrs. Ferris and Mr. Calley taking first prizes, Mrs. Leavitt and Mr. By-field the second; Mrs. Overman and Mr.
Brackett the third, and Mrs. Chipman and Mr. Overman the fourth. It was one of the pleasantest evenings the club has ever enjoyed.

—The Watertown Town Improvement
Association met Monday and requested Dr.
B. F. Davenport to investigate the condition of the banks along the Charles river,
and to report at the next meeting as to their preservation for public parks and other purposes. Mr. Charles A. Stearns was requested to communicate with the city solicitor of Newton in reference to the extension of the boulevard from Bulough's pond
to Boyd's and Cook's ponds in Watertown.
Charles Jackson was requested to look up the town landings. It looks as if Watertown might really do something in the way of cleaning up the river banks.

—A conference in the interests of erecting a Y. M. C. A. building in this city was held Tuesday evening at the residence of Mr. C. E. Eddy, Franklin street. The idea is to raise about $50,000 by subscriptions.
Mr. M. Sayford presided, and remarks were made by Prof. Roberts of the Boston
Y. M. C. A., Mr. Moore, Rev. G. W. Shinn, D. D., Rev. W. Calkins, Rev. G. A.
Merrill and others. Plans were exhibited of a building drawn for a lot of land in the rear of Bacon's block on Washington street. There is a frontage on Washington street of about 40 feet, giving a wide avenue of entrance through a lobby to the main building. The plan was shown merely to give an idea of what could be carried out in the way of a building on this particular lot of land. The interior details of the structure provide for offices, large hall,
reading room, gymnasium, swimming pool,
bath and toilet rooms, and bowling alleys.
The sentiment of those present was in favor of the selection of some other lot where more street frontage could be obtained, but the plan was not adopted on the ground floor. No definite action was taken. A committee was appointed to further consider the subject and to take steps to develop the project.

THE WAY TO SUCCEED.

The prosperity of a city, like that of a private business man, is only maintained by constant efforts and by keeping abreast of the times. No matter what the natural advantages may be, a city will find itself outstripped by its neighbors if it does not furnish those improvements which the people in these days demand.

Brookline furnishes a striking illustration of this. One of the fads of the day, to call it by no higher name, is for broad and handsomely laid out avenues, and Brookline took advantage of this in laying out the Beacon street Boulevard, and found as a result that plenty of people were willing to pay for the advantage of living on such an avenue. The town authorities are not content with this, however, but have just completed plans for the widening of Chestnut Hill avenue to some 130 feet, and have decided to expend $14,500 upon the work. This is a good deal of money but no one in Brookline questions that it will prove a profitable undertaking for the town.

Newton is fully as attractive as Brookline, as far as its natural advantages are concerned, and it enjoys just as good a system of water works, and sewerage, its affairs are just as economically managed, but it has fallen behind its neighbor because while Brookline is all the while making improvements that will attract desirable residents, Newton has hitherto gone along in the old fashioned way, without any systematic plan of improvements, allowing little side streets to be opened here and there, according to the fancy of real estate owners, and the growth of the city has been really greater than could have reasonably been expected under the circumstances.

At present, however, there are indications that the people of the city are waking up to the necessity of doing something to enable us to compete with other suburbs of Boston. A boulevard commission is considering some wisely planned system of improvements for the whole city, and no one who knows the members of the commission doubts that their recommendations will be wise and judicious. In the line of these improvements is the Newton Boulevard, which will not cost the city anything like what the widening of Chestnut Hill avenue will cost Brookline, but which will open up a large area of desirable land for building purposes. To start upon such an improvement would show that Newton is awake to the situation. Then, there is the widening of Washington street which ought to be carried through from the Boston line to Lower Falls, but this is in the nature of a necessity instead of a luxury, and will probably be one of the first things recommended by the commission.

Since the above was in type a Brookline town meeting has voted down the proposition to widen Chestnut Hill avenue, but good judges say that this is only a temporary setback to the scheme and that it will eventually be carried through. A town meeting is often composed mainly of the opponents of any movement under discussion, while those in favor of it do not see the importance of attending until afterwards.

NORTH SIDE IMPROVEMENTS.

The North Side Improvement Society has a greater debt for its labor than any other similar society in the city, and in no other section could a live society do so much to improve the appearance of things. The north side has so far received very little attention from improvement societies, which is one reason perhaps that it has not kept up the popularity that it enjoyed in the early days of the city, when it was the principal residence section. It has a number of parks, which are not excelled in beauty by those of any other section, its trees have reached maturity and a little effort could make the streets very attractive. The Cheesecake brook improvement will be a great thing for the north side, when completed, as it will furnish a safe and beautiful drive, and Auburndale has already secured extensive parks. In Newtonville so many handsome residences have been built on the north side, that the future of that section seems assured. In West Newton and Newton very little has been done to improve the surroundings, although Waltham street in West Newton is the most beautiful avenue in the city, from its generous width, the fine views it offers, and the handsome estates that border it. Watertown street, from Glen street to West Newton, is one of the finest streets in the city for driving, but it needs a good deal of improvement, and the street railway soon to be built upon it will probably interfere with the pleasure driving, but a good deal can be done to beautify it, and its place for pleasure driving will probably be taken by California street, which is in excellent condition as far as Bridge street, but in a dreadful state between that point and Crafts street. The society will find any amount of work waiting for it, and judging from the character of the men who have taken hold of affairs, the work of improving the section will be vigorously pushed forward.

THE WISE POLICY.

The public officials to go against any strong public sentiment, is like a man trying to overthrow a stone wall by bucking his head against it. He will be certain to damage his head if he keeps on long enough, but he will not make much impression upon the wall.

This is something that the school officials of Newton ought to bear in mind. The wise policy is in all questions where no principle is involved is not to needlessly come into opposition with the people, and this is wise for all officials, from the President of the United States to the members of a school board to follow.

The question of the lengthening of the sessions was broached last year, and one of the members of the High School committee at that time, suggested that a circular be sent to every parent to see what the sentiment was. That policy was not followed and the matter was then dropped. Had such a policy been followed, all friction would have been avoided, there would have been no trouble, and peace and harmony would have prevailed.

No change of any kind can be carried through in opposition to the will of the people. Even the Czar of Russia, autocrat that he is, can not adopt a policy that is against the wishes of his subjects, and moreover he would not make the attempt.

It is better to look at the question sensibly and calmly, and if you find that you can not do all you want to do, do the best you can and not try to achieve impossibilities, or to try to make people submit to a change when the results of persisting in such a course would be disastrous to yourself. Discretion is always the better part of valor, and in this country it is always the people who rule in the end.

The order for buying an addition to the High school lot from the Clafin land was killed in the common council, Monday evening, Councilman Degen opposing for the reason that he thought so much money expended for the present High school would interfere with the project of having another High school on the south side of the city. The votes against it were two from Ward Six, two from Ward Four and one from Ward Three, so that the sectional issue did not appear to have a great deal of influence. With the introduction of electric cars less has been heard of the project of having another High school, as the cars bring the school nearer to the south side than a location in that section away from the cars would be. The same order for additional land was defeated last year and in former years. It would be a good thing to have the land, so as to get rid of the trees which now shade the building, keeping out light and air, and only those who have sat through a long session of the school board, on a warm evening, when the meetings were held in the High school building, can appreciate how the scholars must suffer from this cause. The land will probably be bought by the city at some time in the future, if not this year, and the only occasion for haste is that the Clafin land is now in the market.

MAYOR MATTHEWS of Boston is making a strong fight against the Addicks' gas trust, and it takes a good deal of courage to engage in such a fight as this, in which no partisan glory is to be won. He seems to have made an excellent selection in choosing George Fred Williams to open the case before the legislative committee, as Mr. Williams has a habit of speaking very plainly on any question in which he is interested, and goes ahead without fear or favor. His historical summary of the way in which the gas trust has obtained control of affairs in Boston was most interesting and instructive, and was a revelation to the ordinary citizen, who has no idea of the way speculators are operating in these days, evading the laws of any state which desires to check their operations, and watering their enterprises with such a liberal hand as to astonish the innocent reader, who thought that capital stock really meant something. When these operations are fully completed then the cunning public is told that charges must be high in order to give any returns on the capital stock, as if that were a complete and satisfactory explanation of exorbitant charges. When local interests fall into the hands of outside corporations the people have to pay for it.

The Real Estate business in Newton shows signs of a very prosperous season, and the different agents are receiving calls daily from people anxious to become residents of this favored city. There are the usual number of estates in the market, and a great number of attractive building lots are being laid out, which will be soon built upon. Newton is a favorite suburb of Boston business men on account of its many advantages, which are excelled by those of no other suburb, its frequent trains and the high reputation of the city. Its fine streets have a wide celebrity, and they have always been carefully kept up and objectionable features shut out, so that they have been safe and popular for driving. This has been a great advantage in many ways, especially in advertising the beauties of Newton to those driving through, who have thus been induced to take up their residence here. For this reason it is very important that the best streets should always be kept safe and open for teams, which they would not be if they were all cut up by street railway tracks.

The ministers of Newton made a very interesting page of last Saturday's evening edition of the Boston Herald, which always gives special attention to all Newton matters of interest to the public. Pictures were given of the first and the last Eliot church buildings, and also of the new church of the Messiah. Sketches and photographs were also given of Rev. Dr. Hovey, Rev. Dr. Shinn, Rev. F. B. Hornbrooke, Rev. H. J. Patrick, Rev. J. C. Jaynes, Rev. L. C. Barnes, Rev. A. B. Earle, Rev. Lawrence J. O'Toole and Rev. Edwin H. Hughes, as representing the prominent churches of Newton, and the sketches gave a short history of their work in this city. The cuts were in all but one case very good likenesses of the clergymen. The papers will be valuable for reference and there was a large demand for them at all the news stores in the city.

The druggists of the city are having a good deal of quiet fun over some long personal letters from a certain city official, about a matter involving the great sum of fifty cents. The papers have been offered several copies of the letters for publication, but have declined, because they did not wish to take any unfair advantage of the writer, who is so anxious to save fifty cents for the druggists that he spends several dollars' worth of the city's time in the effort. Some people cannot see why an official who has so much time to throw away needs an assistant. But in this they are wrong, as a public official ought to be a soft snap, else where would we get our patriots?

MAYOR FENNO said in an interview in the Boston Post, on the proposed bill for a police commission for all the cities of the State:

"I am opposed to it. I fail to see any reason why a city should be compelled to support a salaried commission, to take charge of a police force numbering, in some instances, not more than a dozen men. I think the proposed change is entirely uncalled for."

This represents the general sentiment of the Newton people.

THE BOSTON NEWS is no more the special organ of Mr. Addicks of the Bay State Gas Trust, as he has sold a large part of his interest and the News is now said to be that long talked of new Boston organ of the Republican party.

THERE is to be a hearing next Tuesday at the State House, on the bill taxing lands taken for water purposes. As Newton owns several hundred acres in Needham, it has a direct interest in this bill.

As there are to be five members of the Metropolitan Park Commission, and Newton has a great interest in the matter Gov. Russell should be impudently to appoint some Newton man on the commission.

SUFFOLK WEST CONFERENCE.

THIRTY-NINTH SEMI-ANNUAL MEETING HELD IN ELIOT CHURCH, NEWTON.

The 39th semi-annual meeting of the Suffolk West conference, comprising twenty-two Congregational churches, was held in Eliot church, Wednesday. The delegates numbered 110 persons, and beside these there were many visitors, making up an audience of over 500 ladies and gentlemen. Rev. D. L. Furber of Newton Centre was moderator; Rev. C. H. Dutton of Newtonville, secretary. The delegates from Eliot church were Messrs. C. S. Ensign, W. P. Ellison and D. E. Snow.

The churches represented beside those in Newton were the Old South, Shawmut, Berkeley Street, Park Street, Central, Swedish and Norwegian, Boston; Evangelical, Brighton; Harvard, Brookline; Phillips, Watertown; Evangelical, Needham; Waverley, Belmont and the Congregational churches of Waltham, Weston and Wellesley.

The first session was held in the afternoon, opening with devotional services, followed by a report on church work by Mr. S. Brainard Pratt. Addresses were then given. "What is the Worldliness in our Time?" Rev. T. J. Holmes of Newton Centre; "What Must Young People Give up in Joining the Church?" Rev. Daniel Green; "Spiritual Life—What is it?" Rev. Reuben Thomas, D. D., of Brookline. The customary discussion followed, after which there was a recess for a collation and social reunion. The refreshment tables were spread in the chapel, and were in charge of Mrs. A. S. March, Mrs. W. O. Trowbridge, Mrs. A. S. Ensign, Mrs. C. S. Ensign, Miss Nellie Snow, Mrs. F. W. Gaffield, Mrs. Wm. P. Ellison, Mrs. J. H. Robinson, Mr. D. E. Snow, Mrs. H. E. Cobb, Miss Helen Cobb, Mr. C. E. Edy, Mrs. F. A. Day, Miss A. G. Ensign, Mr. F. A. Day, Mrs. J. S. Potter, Mrs. J. N. Bacon and Mr. J. S. Potter. The service was finely conducted by an efficient corps of young ladies and gentlemen. About 550 persons partook of the collation.

The evening exercises were inaugurated shortly after 7 o'clock with devotional services. The topic of the conference was then announced, "Excuses for Ungodly Living." Three papers were given upon the subject by Mr. A. G. Sherman, Mr. Amos R. Wells and Rev. W. E. Barton, from these texts: Luke xiv, 18, "I have bought a piece of ground"—"anxious investors"; Luke xiv, 19, "I have bought a yoke of oxen"—"busy men"; Luke xiv, 20, "I have married a wife"—"home and social life." After the presentation of these papers, the exercises concluded with a general discussion of the topic.

North Side Improvement Society.

The adjourned meeting of the society was held on Wednesday evening, April 12th. A large and enthusiastic meeting was held and the organization of the society was completed by the appointment of an executive committee of thirty-five well known citizens, representing every section of the north side of our city from the Boston line on the east to the Charles River at Auburndale on the west, and covering that territory on both sides of the B. & A. railroad where population depends upon the main line of the railroad for transportation. The executive committee was divided into ten sub-committees to whom special duties were assigned, covering every needed work to make the society a success and a power for good in the community. A full report giving the constitution, officers, executive committee, etc., and setting forth the objects of the society will appear next week. The membership now numbers over one hundred and it is confidently expected that more than one hundred names will be enrolled when its full purpose is known to the residents of the north side of our city. Article two of the constitution gives as the object of the society, "The improvement of the north side of the city of Newton," and not the north side of the B. & A. railroad as some have supposed. Its work will not be antagonistic to local societies, but rather blending the interests of all societies for the common good of all. Such a society cannot fail to do good work in a growing city like Newton, and its organization at this time will materially aid in carrying forward desirable improvements contemplated.

Real Estate Changes.

Henry W. Savage has sold another house on Warwick road, West Newton, belonging to Mr. W. Higgins, to Mrs. H. E. Wilbur. The house is a frame dwelling, and the lot contains about 6,000 square feet. The price was about $6,500.

A parcel of land situated on Erie avenue, Newton Highlands, containing 13,000 square feet, a part of the Rufus Estabrook estate, has been sold to E. H. Tarbell. The purchaser will at once begin the improvement of the property by the erection of two houses.

Henry W. Savage has sold two new houses on Warwick road, West Newton, for C. W. Higgins to Mrs. Millard, one to be occupied as a residence and the other as an investment. Further improvements are to be made on this road which promises to be a very attractive street.

Fuller & French have sold the new house owned by Higgins and Hatch on Sewall street, West Newton, to Mr. Estabrook of Brookline, who will occupy it upon completion. They have also sold the Hutchinson estate on Central avenue in Newtonville, to Mr. A. Bassett, also about 8000 feet of land on Edinboro street to Mr. M. Hand, who will erect a dwelling this season, and about 6000 feet of land on Edinboro street to Mr. Thomas Matthews of Newton.

Mr. Edward F. Barnes has completed the negotiations for a sale of land comprising about one acre situated on Newtonville avenue, Mr. Ida Newton, fronting 220 feet on the street, being all the land between the estates of Messrs. Garrison and Blodgett, owned by Lewis E. Coffin and Francis A. Murdock, trustees, sold to F. E. and F. S. Stanley of the Stanley Dry Plate Co., who are having plans drawn for three first-class houses to be built thereon, to be sold at reasonable prices when finished.

—Mr. Linwood N. Towne, who has been visiting here, has returned to his home in Haverhill.
—H. W. Pierce has taken the agency for the Royal Special Roadster, an excellent American wheel.

At the last regular meeting of the Newton Co-operative bank, $16,000 was sold at five cents premium.
—W. H. and F. S. Rollins, Jr., have returned to Dartmouth College, following the Easter holiday period.
—Higgins & Nickerson are erecting two new houses on the Cooley estate, corner of Central avenue and Prescott street.
—A good chance for a young lady to learn dressmaking is offered by Mrs. S. A. Merritt, the dressmaker of Parsons street.
—Mr. and Mrs. A. J. George and a party of high school pupils were here yesterday week at the Ocean Side House, Marblehead Neck.
—Kilburn's fountain is the talk of the town. He is being complimented on his coffee and chocolate syrup, which are very choice. 5 cents a glass.
—The steam roller has been doing some good work this week on Walnut street, which has been in poor condition and was in great need of repairs.
—Rev. Mr. Dutton served as secretary of the Suffolk West Congregational Conference at its thirty-ninth semi-annual meeting in this city, Wednesday.
—The arrest of a domestic, somewhat enthused by copious libations from a little brown jug, caused quite a sensation about the square Wednesday morning.
—The Misses Burnett of San Francisco, Cal., are the guests of Mr. J. Cashman, Broadway. The father of these young ladies was the first governor of California.
—Mr. Henry Ross has purchased from Mrs. P. K. Dumaresq a lot containing 14,000 square feet on Newtonville avenue. He will erect two new houses there in the spring.

—There are letters at the postoffice for Hon. H. P. Austin, Fred P. Gay, Miss Alice Green, Prof. A. T. Hill, Mrs. E. L. Hoyt, Ed Noyes, Miss M. A. Robinson and W. C. Rawford.

—Miss Cushman's Out Door class in Botany for children meets Saturdays, 10 to 12 a. m. Term (of twelve lessons) begins April 22. Apply immediately to Mrs. Sara E. Cushman, Eddy street, or P. O. box 311.
—The Newton Associated Charities is to be incorporated. This becomes necessary in order to invest sums recently bequeathed, including $500 by the will of the late C. E. Binings. Following the incorporation a board of directors of twelve members, probably to comprise the present members of the executive committee.
—Team thirteen, Capt. Leonard, has the honor of putting up the biggest single string to date, in the Newton club bowling tourney, that of 84 pins. This record is not likely to be passed this season unless more interest is developed. It seems to be hard work now to get the members of teams to roll, partly due to the long schedule.

—Messrs. J. C. Fuller & French have leased two of Mr. Swallow's houses, Highland avenue, one to J. H. Noyes of this place, and the other to Mr. E. L. Strong of New York. They have also leased Mr. Curtis Abbott's house, Evers street, to Mrs. Snow; Mrs. Clark's house, Clyde street, to C. M. Whiting; Clafin house, Walnut terrace, to Mr. Pierce of Boston.
—One of the prettiest parties of the Newton Club season was given Thursday by Mr. John Lodge's dancing class. It was perfect success and all enjoyed the occasion. The ladies appeared in their finest party gowns. Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Follett, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Coolidge, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Fearing, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Dennison, Mr. and Mrs. John Lodge, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Powers, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Ayer and others.
—What some residents would like to know is how much truth is there in the report that free delivery is to be established June 1, and that a second or supplementary main office is to be located in West Newton? It is a problem that cannot be settled here and just what the postoffice department will decide. The report is generally conceded to be a matter of conjecture. That free delivery will come soon, however, there can be little doubt.

—Business seems to be booming with Higgins & Nickerson, as they have nine houses in course of construction, four for themselves on Linwood avenue, to be rented, one on Lowell street and one on Cabot street, to be offered for sale; one on Edinboro street, for Mr. Judkins, which has just been sold to Mr. David Fitch, and two on Prescott street for Mr. Levi Cooley. One they have just completed in West Newton has just been sold. The firm are also figuring on contracts for other houses in this and other wards.
—There are good dogs in this city. Mr. A. A. Savage has in "Robert S.", one of the finest pointers in the country. At the great dog show in Boston last week, he won the second prize, in very strong competition, beating some of the crack dogs of the country, including the first prize winner of the late big show in New York, where he has frequently been a guest while studying at Harvard.
—A prominent resident of this city has written to Mr. C. Willard Carter offering to contribute $1,000 and an annual stipend toward the establishing of an Episcopal church in either West Newton or Newtonville. A former resident of this place has also requested the privilege of contributing toward the same object.
—Newton lodge 92, I. O. O. F., will exemplify the third degree at home Thursday evening next, April 20. An invitation has been extended and accepted by the lodge to confer the degree before the officers of the grand lodge in the large Odd Fellows' Hall, Boston, May 3. Such a distinguished honor was never conferred before on so young a lodge.

—Sunday services, Church of the Messiah, morning prayer and adult baptism, 10:45. The Parish club will meet at the chapel (which for the present is used as a large number of visitors. Many of the most effective landscapes were sold to Newton purchasers. In Mr. Chaloner's pictures, the treatment is fascinating and always natural, depicting nature truly and faithfully, even in the more minute details. Among the notable pictures shown were: "November Marshes," "Middle of May," "In the Home Pasture," "October's Holocaust," (Plymouth Woods), and the "Reef of Norman's Woe."

—A very pretty children's party was given in the assembly hall at the club-house, Tuesday evening, the participants being a party of Prof. Monroe. The matrons were Mrs. Wetherell, Mrs. Kingsbury and Mrs. Avery. The party was a great success and the teacher was congratulated on all sides at the beautiful dancing of the little folks. Lawrence Wetherell with Vera Rumery and Frank Wetherell with Irene Norman led the march, followed by 70 children. Miss Pearl Spaulding danced the butterfly dance and other fancy dances beautifully. About 75 couples danced from 9 to 12, parents and friends of the little ones. Delightful music was furnished by Miss Adams' Orchestra of Boston.

—Mr. F. R. Barker and family of Washington street have returned from a visit to New York.

—Mrs. H. F. Goodnow of River street has returned from a visit to her daughter in Waltham.

—Alderman Hunt is building an addition to his shop on Washington street to include office apartments.

—The Ladies' Home Mission Society held a meeting in the Second church, yesterday afternoon.

—Miss Hattie Kingman of River street is suffering from nervous prostration and is confined to her room.

—Rev. Mr. Whitteley of Indiana occupied the pulpit in the Second Congregational church last Sunday.

—H. E. Hogan has been appointed assistant in the ticket office at the B. & A. station, succeeding Walter Colligan.

—Mr. Capron Cook of Elm street is still seriously ill. His case is a critical one, but he is having the best of care and medical skill.

—Mr. E. E. Burdon, who has been laid up a little while with the grip, got out Monday and has resumed his usual business duties.

—People's Service next Sunday in the Congregational church at 7.30. Topic, Pilgrims Progress. "From the Cross to the Chamber of Peace."

—The Allen school nine has a game scheduled for Saturday afternoon, here with the Waltham high. It is the initial match of the season.

—A meeting of the Woman's Suffrage Association will be held next Tuesday evening in Laseil Seminary. Mrs. Lucy Stone and others will speak.

—Mr. W. H. Stewart has moved into his new house on Greenwood avenue and has moved his residence on Mt. Vernon street to Mr. Johnson of Worcester.

—An excellent picture of Rev. J. C. Jaynes appeared in the Boston Herald's illustrated article on Newton's ministers last week. It was an exceptionally good newspaper cut.

—Mr. and Mrs. N. T. Allen are enjoying a delightful trip through the Adirondacks. Mr. Allen is in the full enjoyment of his customary vigorous health and Mrs. Allen has been much benefited by the pleasant climate.

—Miss Cushman's Out Door class in Botany for children meets Saturdays, 10 to 12 a. m. Term (of twelve lessons) begins April 22. Apply immediately to Mrs. Sara E. Cushman, Eddy street, or P. O. box 311, Newtonville.

—The often postponed trial of the Alvin Houghton will case was down on Tuesday's calendar at the Middlesex probate court, East Cambridge. No hearing, however, was had, and Judge Brooks issued an order for a hearing to be held on May 4, when all parties must be ready to go.

—Mr. Roy Jones, son of Senator Jones of Nevada, who has figured so prominently in the papers of late, owing to his marriage and his brilliant prospects, has been and still is a great favorite among the young people of this city, where he has frequently been a guest while studying at Harvard.

—A prominent resident of this city has written to Mr. C. Willard Carter offering to contribute $1,000 and an annual stipend toward the establishing of an Episcopal church in either West Newton or Newtonville. A former resident of this place has also requested the privilege of contributing toward the same object.

—Newton lodge 92, I. O. O. F., will exemplify the third degree at home Thursday evening next, April 20. An invitation has been extended and accepted by the lodge to confer the degree before the officers of the grand lodge in the large Odd Fellows' Hall, Boston, May 3. Such a distinguished honor was never conferred before on so young a lodge.

—Sunday services, Church of the Messiah, morning prayer and adult baptism, 10:45. The Parish club will meet at the chapel (which for the present is used as a Parish house) on Tuesday, April 18 at 8 o'clock. The "living library" will be one of the features of the evening. All members of the Parish are cordially invited to be present.

—The invitation tennis tourney of the Neighborhood Club promises to be one of the summer season here. Among the players who have already signified their intention of entering the competitions in singles and doubles are Hobart, Hovey, Wrenn, Chase and Larned, all having a national reputation in the amateur class. Mr. Harry Ayer is to have charge of the tourney.

—The W. C. T. U. met as usual Tuesday afternoon. A good number of ladies listened to addresses given by Mrs. Lewis and daughter of Menah Home, 85 Standford street, Boston. Interesting accounts were related of young women who came to them filled with the longing to be rid of the power of strong drink. From religious instruction which they received in this home, many of them went out better fitted to meet the temptations of life.

—The Ladies Home Circle held a successful sale in the chapel of the Congregational church Wednesday and Thursday. There was quite a lively contest for a while. The tables were very prettily decorated and the display of attractive articles proved tempting to purchasers. The proceeds, above expenses, go toward a fund for maintenance of the free bed at the hospital, the room in the Soldiers' home, Chelsea, and the bed in the Little Wanderers' home, Boston.

—Theodore E. Crocker, clerk for Redpath Bros., who was so badly injured at the Lincoln street fire, March 10, will be tendered a benefit concert in the Maverick street church, East Boston, Thursday evening, April 27. Mr. C. Willard Carter of Dunn, Green & Co., 30 South street, Boston, will receive any contributions for the said benefit. Mr. Crocker has had a sad experience and will be under expensive treatment a long time, if a lease of life is given him. An excellent young man and has many friends.

AUBURDALE.

—Try "Fiyv" cigar at Thorn's.

—Wm. Bishop has moved to the Potter house on Auburn street.

—Work on the new Auburndale park is to be commenced very soon.

—Mr. Jeremiah Woodward is erecting a new house on Bourne street.

—Mr. Marshall is to occupy the house on Melrose street, recently vacated by Mr. J. R. Blaisdell.

—A genuine Austrian cigar is shown in one of Mr. Thorn's windows and proves quite a curiosity.

—The Review Club will meet with Mrs. G. D. Harvey, Central street, on Tuesday at 10 a. m., April 18th.

—Miss Alice Clarke has taken a position in Mrs. Markham's store. Miss Soule has decided not to return.

—Mr. Allen of Worcester will occupy the house at Riverside formerly occupied by Mr. D. F. Guildford.

—The visitations of Bishop Jagger for the coming week include the Church of the Messiah for next Sunday evening.

—A brush fire in the woods back of Mrs. Pratt's residence on Auburndale avenue, called out the fire department the first of the week.

—There are letters in the post office for Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Frazier, M. W. Hall, Miss Annie L. Brown, Mrs. John Lennon, Mrs. Margaret M. Murphy, Wm. S. Nason, Mr. Carl Patterson.

—Miss Carrie Cole of Truro, N. S., has returned to take her old position as bookkeeper for Mr. James Vickers. Miss Hattie Cole who has been employed there is visiting her home in Marshfield, Vt.

—The society of the Church of the Messiah have been presented with a handsome framed life size crayon portrait of the late Bishop Phillips Brooks by Mr. and Mrs. Harry T. Knight of Oris street. It has been hung in the rector's study at the new church.

—Rev. T. W. Bishop, who has been attending the New England conference at Holyoke, is spending a few days in New York city and Philadelphia with some college classmates. He will return on Saturday to commence his third year, as pastor of the Methodist church.

—In the school board report in another column a petition from citizens of this village seems to support the board in lengthening the High school session. The petition was signed with the understanding that the additional time be gained by beginning school earlier in the morning.

—Mrs. Geo. M. Fiske and a lady friend were very fortunate in escaping injury while out riding Wednesday afternoon. When near the corner of Auburn and Grove street the horse became unmanageable. The ladies were able to get out of the team and the coachman finally calmed the animal, but not until the carryall was nearly demolished.

—Mr. M. C. Higgins of Melrose has purchased the Littlefield place on Rowe street and it is understood intends building 30 houses on the land thus made available. He has also purchased the Walter Ware place on Melrose street, and has commenced building a street through the land which will be cut up into house lots, and upon which Mr. Higgins expects to erect houses. Two houses are being built by him on Tudor Terrace.

—An appreciative audience was drawn to the Episcopal chapel Wednesday evening to enjoy the piano and violin recital given by Mrs. Helen Thayer Bryant. The program was ably rendered and proved to be what was promised, a treat to the lovers of high class music. Mrs. Bryant has attained great proficiency upon the piano, and her performance was artistic and accurate. Mrs. Turner, who rendered the accompaniments upon the concert grand piano, is a pupil of Miss Turner, an accomplished amateur, and Mr. S. E. Goldstein's violin playing was the work of a professional, well executed and most cordially applauded, particularly the work of his own composition, "Tempo di valse." The receipts netted a handsome sum for the lady beneficiary.

AWAY BACK IN 1759.

AN EARLY NONANTUM SETTLER APPEARS IN SPECTRAL FORM.

The succeeding lines, somewhat of a semi-historical nature, were read by Mr. William Jencks at the banquet of the Nonantum club last week. The sketch is produced from recollections of some of the early settlers of Nonantum. The house of Joseph Adams, corner of Nevada and Watertown streets was standing in 1740. Capt. Samuel Jencks in 1759, or 134 years ago, was one of those who scaled the well nigh impregnable heights of Quebec under the renowned Wolfe, and another early settler, remembered with those mentioned, was Silas Stearns, a Ticonderoga hero.

Gentlemen:—
Last night, or about 1.30 this morning, we started for home from the Nonantum Club house. At the corner of Bridge street my friend left me and I went on alone.

The clouds were scudding across the sky before a north wind, and the moon shed a grey light through them.

Just as I reached the grounds of the Silver Lake Mills, I saw a figure standing on the corner of Watertown and Nevada streets, looking across at the opposite corner, and apparently bewildered.

He was a curious looking object, dressed in a blue frock, such as farmers used to wear, but somewhat shorter; a leather belt round his waist, and an over his shoulder and crossing his breast, to which was slung a large powder horn; on his feet were leather moccasins, and his sturdy legs were encased in stout leather leggings, but the strangest part of his dress was his hat, it was something like a modern stove pipe, but lower, and was covered with real beaver skin. Over his shoulder he carried a long barrelled, flint-lock "king's arm." As I came near the figure spoke.

"Kin yeou tell me whereabouts the Joe Adams house stands around here?" said he.

Now I did not like to see a man prowling round with a gun at that time in the morning, but if any man asks me a civil question, I give him a civil answer, so I said:

"That house used to stand on the corner of the street, just opposite where you are now, but it has been moved over there," and I pointed to it.

"Dew tell, wall it doos beat all haow things is changed. What is the name of that pond over there?" pointing to Silver Lake.

"That is Silver Lake."

"Sho! I want to know, wall, last I seen of it it was a peat medder, and I cut peat right in the middle of where that water is. Where is Cook's woods?"

I pointed across the street, and said they are good, not a tree left except a few oaks just below here.

"Goff aud Brattle! why, when I was here last, 134 years ago, they warnt nothing there except woods, and no haouse on this rode except Joe Adams last and Silas Stearns clear above toward the Westward; Mister would you mind walkin' down the rode with me a little way, its a hundred and thirty four year since I was here last. In the old French war we listed under a man named Sam Jenks from Boston town and camp a few days before we started, on the Joe Adams farm; I guess on this rode, (pointing to Nevada street) where it is laid out now."

"We was ordered out by Governor Pownall, to march to Canada to help General Wolfe. I went up the heights of Abraham, but after we had licked the Frenchmen, comin' back, I died and was buried at Ticonderoga, 130 years ago."

My companion seemed so sensible enough but I began to feel a little chilly, however, just then we reached the new house house.

"What persuasion worships in this meetin' house," asked my companion.

"That," said I, "is our new nose house."

He stopped a minute in front of it.

"Why," says he, "there is the steeple, and the big door where the folks go in, and the Sunday skule in the back end."

"That," said I, "is the police station and tramp's lodging house."

"What's a tramp," said he.

"Well," said I, "they are people that have no home and roam from place to place."

"Sho!" said he, "won't none of the people around give 'em a night's lodgin'?"

"No," said I, "tis against the law to ask for a lodging or a loaf of bread, at a private house, if they really need it."

"I snum don't they never read their Bibles? About charity covers a multitude of sins?"

"You do not understand," said I, "this is progress. The way to help the poor is not to help them, in other words to make them as uncomfortable, and miserable as possible, so that they will stand on their own feet."

"Wall," said he, "spose they cant stand, they give um a comfortable bed I suppose."

I blushed—"Well," said I, "a—hm—a their bed in some cases is a shelf made of joist 4x2 1/2 inches, but if they are very fat, they will sleep easy on it, if they are not fat, it is their own fault, is it not?"

He turned sadly away but stopped in front of the two great elms near by.

"Land," said he, looking up the trunks, "when I saw them elms last, afore I fit the French, they warnt bigger than my wrist, I hope whoever owns them elms will let them stand as long as he kin."

"There are Canadians all around here now," said I.

"What?" said he, "Frenchmen?" down came the old king's arm into the palm of his hand, and click went the flint lock.

"Stop," said I, "that was all over 100 years ago, we are all friends and neighbors now."

Just then a cock began to crow somewhere back of Murphy's store.

The figure turned pale and began to vanish.

"Hold on a minute," said I, "before you go, what is your name and how came you here?"

"My name is Jackson," said he, "and I heard they was goin' to cut off a piece of the common in Boston town, and so I started to appear before the General Court, and I took my gun along to get some woodchucks and foxes but I guess the woodchucks and foxes is all gone. Who be you?"

"Well," said I, "I guess I am the great grandson of your old lieutenant: I have got his commission and Boston Common is safe."

"Sho!" said he, "I want to know! wall, will you dew aithin fer me?"

"Yes," said I, "anything in reason."

"Wall," said he, "help to keep Boston Common whole, they'll be at it agin soon's they git over their lickin'."

The cock crew again and he vanished.

Strucklike: "I am beginning to think that one's ancestors are important."

Miss McBean: "Yes; they come under the head of 'important, if true.'"

A HUMAN NIGHTMARE.

Experience of a Drummer With a Woman Who Was Mistaken For a Freak.

"Have you ever had a nightmare in which some fearful danger threatened you and you couldn't move or get out of the way?" asked Hermann Solomon of a crowd of peripatetic story tellers at the Richelieu hotel.

"Several years ago I had several of the nocturnal visitors every night for a week and grew very weary of them, for in spite of my determination not to let them bully me out of my equanimity I would nearly expire every night and awake with cold perspiration breaking out all over me. Toward the last of that interesting week I stopped with a landlord in northern Arkansas and resolved as I went to sleep that come what would I would positively refuse to give in to the least to my imagination."

"Some time past midnight the usual scare came. This time it was a tall and angular woman in white, with a long butcherknife. Mentally, I was congratulating myself that at last I was learning to overcome the foolish fears of nightmares and wondering how it would pass off. I saw the demonic grin as she flourished the knife in front of my face almost without a tremor, and when she laughed a wild, unearthly laugh I gave a start and found it all real and that I was actually awake."

"Scared? That word can't express it. I dropped on the other side of the bed as she made a slash at me, and as she ran around the bed I crawled under, reached the door and went down the steps about three at a time ahead of her. By the time we reached 'the big road' I think I had gained several feet, as she had more clothing to interfere with her progress than I had just then. I had imagined that a man really scared couldn't move. Well, I will give any odds desired on the proposition that I moved down that road, and I don't think I would need any corroborative testimony to convince any one who saw me that I was scared."

"About a mile down the road I ran into the arms of her husband and sons, who were out looking for her. She was a little 'outen her head' at times, they said, and she had evidently entered the open door at my landlord's and reached my room without any one knowing it. As her relatives took her home I sadly retraced my steps and found the whole family aroused. The explanation was satisfactory, and the adventure cured me of nightmares."—Syracuse Herald.

Literary Blunders.

We all make and we all meet with many amusing literary blunders. The worst of it is that we readily forget them. Every one should keep a book of these delightful things, which please us with a sudden sense of superiority. Among misprints is knises. "Some swing on hooks, some run knises through their hands," said an article in The Edinburgh Review. Here every one would emend by knives or krisses—knives was the real reading. In "The Monastery" Scott wrote about "nursing evil passions." This was printed "morsing," and the verb "to morse" was defended by writers in Notes and Queries.

It has lately been pointed out that in the "Sargen's Daughter" Scott is made to say that the "nauch girls perfume their voluptuous eastern domes," whereas the real reading must be "perform their voluptuous eastern dances." But we are not aware that the coquille has been corrected. In "Pendennis" a boy is said to excel in "running and pump- ing." This must mean "jumping," though the actual competition would have its merits. There are no ridings in Yorkshire, triding is the right word, but there is a "World Riding" in Mr. Morris' "Henskringla."—London Saturday Review.

Trouble Caused by a Semicolon.

The substitution of a semicolon for a comma in an act which became a law in 1889 has caused a lot of trouble for the surface railroads and apparently makes necessary the passing of a healing act by the present legislature. The act, which relates to railroad crossings, is as follows: "No electric, cable or horse railroad shall hereafter be constructed across the tracks of a steam railroad at grade; nor shall any steam railroad cross any such electric, cable or horse railroad at grade, except upon application and approval by the railroad commissioners."

The preceding was approved, semicolon and all, June 11, 1889, and became a law. The result is that while steam roads can cross surface lines at will with the permission of the railroad commissioners, street and electric roads are barred from crossing steam roads with or without permission.—Hartford Courant.

The Carnation Is an Old Flower.

Pliny refers to the carnation as having been used in the days of Augustus Caesar to give a spicy flavor to wine. While greatly loved and admired by the ancients, its improvement was not much advanced until it found a home in England. The date of this event is not quite clear, but is believed to be about the year 1200. Chaucer wrote of its cultivation in 1386, from which date it has been considered a florist's flower. It was first called "carnation" by Henry Lyte in 1578 and designated as a "pink" in 1600. Edmund Spenser called it "coronation," which found little favor. Shakespeare, in "Winter's Tale," act 4, says, "The fairest flowers of the season are our carnations." He also alludes to it in "Henry V."—R. T. Lombard.

Expert Revolver Shots In the Army.

W. R. Prior claims that all the best revolver shots are in New York. There are some very good shots in the army. There are men in the army who can hit the size of a man at 10 yards, riding a horse at a gallop, every time, with 20 yards interval between figures, and men that can hit a 25-cent piece at 10 yards with a revolver that pulls eight pounds four shots out of five. All the best shots have the arm slightly bent. If Mr. Prior will take the trouble to look around, he will find men in the United States cavalry that will throw his New York experts in the shade.—Cor. Kansas City Times.

LIGHT MINUS HEAT.

THE DISCOVERIES NIKOLA TESLA IS GIVING THE WORLD.

Electric Currents That Produce Variegated Streams of Mysterious Light and Fail to Heat the Wires That Carry These Wonderful Currents.

Almost from the time that the vibratory theory of light was accepted scientific men have looked forward to the day when it would be possible to produce light without heat. For it is an unfortunate fact that so far every effort to produce light has been accompanied by an enormous waste of energy due to the production of useless heat. The simplest way of producing light is by means of the combustion of some compound of carbon. It does not matter whether the carbon is solid, as in a candle, or a fluid, as in a lamp, or in a gas, as in ordinary illuminating gas, the process is the same.

The union of the carbon of the substance with the oxygen of the air produces the rapid vibration that the eye recognizes as light. Carbon, though the element usually employed, is not a necessary factor, for magnesium, potassium, iron—indeed almost any of the elements—will take its place. Neither is oxygen a necessary part in the production of light. Chlorine will produce an even more brilliant light with certain substances. It is evident, therefore, that the rate of vibration and not the element employed is the principal factor in producing light.

Unfortunately all methods of producing light by means of chemical combinations (such as the union of the carbon of the candle with the oxygen of the air) are accompanied by a very large production of heat waves, which in the majority of cases are utterly useless, if not absolutely troublesome. The old simile of a musician desiring to produce a certain high note being compelled to press down all the keys of his instrument is an apt one. The lower notes are not merely useless, but they are positively annoying.

Singularly enough, the first solution of the problem that was attempted successfully was by the aid of heat. A very small amount of light waves are required for recognition by the wonderfully developed special sense which man possesses. It is intensity, not quantity, that is wanted, to use a technical term. Consequently if a very small particle is heated to incandescence the light which it throws out bears a far greater ratio to the amount of heat required than it does if a large mass is similarly heated.

This is one of the radical bases of the utility of the incandescent electric light. An extremely small filament is heated to incandescence through the resistance which it offers to the flow of an electric current. It generates heat, it is true, but the amount of heat thus produced is directly proportional to the mass of the carbon, which is very small. The light produced, however, is amply sufficient for all ordinary purposes.

This solution, however, is highly unsatisfactory to scientists, however useful it is to the public at large. Light apart from heat altogether was wanted. The fiery, phosphorescent sea animals, and even the exhausted tubes of Geissler furnished the hope that there was yet some method of reaching the high note without pressing down the whole keyboard.

Recently an extraordinary genius has appeared in this country who seems upon the verge of discovering, if not to have actually discovered, a method by which this might be done. Nikola Tesla, a man of independent fortune and most brilliant mind, who was for a time connected with Edison, has dared to experiment with rapidly alternating electric currents. The result has surprised the wildest dreams of the theorists. He has succeeded in producing light of comparatively high intensity without the production of heat and apparently directly by the use of electricity. The halls of the Royal society of London and of the Franklin institute of Philadelphia have been illuminated by means of the light radiated from bare copper wires in the open air carrying these so called Tesla currents.

The wires were not hot, but they radiated from their surface light and sent from one to another bands and streamers of the mysterious light which we see in the aurora borealis. The effect must be seen to be thoroughly appreciated, but when it is stated that the experiment without difficulty succeeded in radiating light not only from an exhausted glass tube held in his hand, but also from his thumb, his nose and other features, the enthusiasm which swept over his audiences in London and in Philadelphia may be appreciated.

As yet no useful application has been found for these wonderful new developments in electrical science, but they should be welcomed as a harbinger of further progress.—Baltimore Sun.

A Singular Invention.

A new thing in the surgical world is a curious brass button designed by a surgeon for the purpose of joining together two ends of an intestine that has been cut. The button consists of two parts into which an end of the intestine is fastened. When the two parts are pressed together between the thumb and forefinger, they are caught by a spring and held in place. Then the intestine grows together, an opening remaining through the button all the time. When it is completely enveloped by the new tissue, nature repairs the ravages of disease so thoroughly that the button becomes detached by the decomposition of the tissue holding it, and it passes off.—Cor. St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

The Brute.

"I made an angel cake that was elegant, and one that was awful," said Maud. "This is the third, and it will decide as to whether or not I can be considered an expert."

"I could tell this was the rubber," said Harry as he tried the cake; "it tastes like it."—Harper's Bazar.

The following is from a lady very well known in Connecticut, being the author of a very handsome volume of poems entitled "Sacred Gems":

"I can truly say that Hood's Sarsaparilla is all that it has ever been recommended to be. It cannot be praised too highly. Having a very troublesome fibroid tumor, besides seven fatty tumors on my left arm, I find that for feeling of deadness in the limbs, constipation and poor circulation of the blood, Hood's Sarsaparilla has no rival. My blood was in very poor condition, it seemed to be watery, and when the skin was broken, only a very light red water or matter would come out. Since resorting to Hood's Sarsaparilla, I have good

BOSTON AMUSEMENTS.

GRAND OPERA HOUSE—Next week at the Grand Opera House will be a notable
one. Mrs. Frances Hodgson Burnett's idyl, "Little Lord Fauntleroy" will be presented on a scale which will do credit
to the management and surely delight
the patrons of the theatre. It is now nearly four years since this creation was presented in Boston. Some familiar faces will be seen in the cast. Miss Annie Clarke will impersonate the role of Minna, a part which added to her many successes during the Museum run.
H. M. Pitt, the original Earl Dorincourt
in this country, will again appear in this character. Frank J. Keenan, a Boston boy and an all-round actor, will play Mr.
Havisham. Justin Adams, also a Boston boy, will be seen in the eccentric role of Mr. Hobbs. Miss Marguerite B. Dodge,
a Boston girl, will play the role of Dick Tipton. Edward Wade will play Higgins; William Kitts, Wilkens; W. S. Pen-niman, Thomas. Miss Helen Dayne, formerly of the Museum company, will essay Mrs. Erroll. Miss Emily Branhall of Dedham plays Mary and Mrs. Masterson the part of Jane. A most clever child will be seen in the part of Cedric Erroll (Little Lord Fauntleroy.) She is Miss Lillian Masterston, the smallest of the many children who have appeared in the role. Following "Little Lord Faun-teroy" an elaborate and artistic production will be given of "Oliver Twist" for one week with Miss Annie Clarke and Mr. Charles Barron in the roles of Nancy and Bill Sykes and a powerful company
in the remainder of the cast.

BOWDOIN SQUARE THEATRE—For the coming week at the Bowdoin Square Theatre the attraction announced is "McCarthy's Mishaps," a farce that is replete with the funniest of situations and incidents. Barney Ferguson, who is the principal comedian of the company, has, by his peculiar personality and original methods, won for himself first place among the Celtic delineators.
James F. Post and John W. Ransome are players whom theatre-goers are familiar with, having been sent here a number of times as prominent members of the principal organizations. Emile CaCroix, George Sinclair, Richard Ferguson, and Edward Warren are also clever artists.
Also Barney Ferguson, Marguerite Ferguson, contortion dancer, who has scored a strong success by her wonderful feats. Carrie Behr, a soubrette whom everybody knows; Ella Fontaineau, a favorite actress; May Ashley, Maude Peters, May Mortimer, and others assist in the program, which is varied and amusing.

PARK THEATRE—It was the 120th performance of Hoyt's "A Temperance Town" that was given at the Park Theatre last Monday evening, and it was the beginning of the 19th week that this powerful attraction has continued its tireless entertainment. The 150th performance of the comedy will be given on Monday evening, May 1. This occasion will be recognized with appropriate souvenirs, which the management of the Park Theatre and Messrs. Hoyt and Thomas promise shall far outshine their previous efforts to provide a pleasant gift for their patrons on celebration of these landmarks in the remarkable run of their attraction.

BOOKS AND MAGAZINES.

THE LITTLE MIX.

The Australian novelist, Ada Cambridge, has been able to please a large body of readers of fiction both at home and in this country by her romances of
"The Three Miss Kings," "My Guardian," etc., and now D. Appleton & Co.
publish "A Little Mix." She, for of course the mix is a young and charming woman, is the wife of a young curate, sent out from the mother-country to assist Archdeacon Brown of Melbourne. John Primrose the curate pleases everyone, but his wife is altogether too pleasing. She is a flirt, she dances, rides, plays tennis, plays havoc with the hearts of all the men in the parish, both married and single, upsets
Mrs. Archdeacon Brown's plans for her daughter's future, brings discord and rebellion into the church formerly so harmonious, and in short deserves the title bestowed upon her by the irate Mrs.
Brown. It would be unfair to spoil the romance by divulging the course of Mrs.
John Primrose's career, any further than to observe that her motto would seem to be "If I survive I will have five."

Literary Notes.

Wanderings by Southern Waters, by Edward Harrison Barker, author of Wayfarer in France, is the title of a charming book of travels in out-of-the-way corners of southern France. In regard to these piquant sketches of life in the valleys of the Dordogne, the Tarn,
and the Lot, the London Athenaeum very truly says that "the name of the book conveys no idea of the freshness, the originality, and the romance of its pages."

It seems that the English papers made a mistake in the title of Rudyard Kipling's forthcoming book, which should be
"Many Inventions."

A Handful of Chaff.

(From the Ram's Horn.)

The easiest way for a man to pack a trunk is to get his wife to do it.
There is one good thing to be said in favor of the hornet. He always has an aim and generally hits it.

That man has reached a high state of grace who never blames his wife for his own mistakes.

Nobody ever helped the Lord much by looking solemn on Sunday.

God knows how we love, but all the devil knows about us is how we live.

Striking oil and growing in grace do not often get on well together.

There are still some men on earth who keep the devil on the keen jump every minute.

You can sometimes tell when a man
begins to backslide by his breath.

There is something wrong with the man's head who falls down on the same banana skin twice.

There are church members who call keeping the Ten Commandments running into fanaticism.

If you want things to go right, live that way yourself.

If some of our heads were not so big,
our hearts would hold more love.

Where Pensions Should be cut.

The people have no desire to cut off a worthy or deserving pensioner, but they do object to the payment of pensions to persons not wounded or diseased in the service who today are better off and earning better salaries than the average man.

In almost every state in the Union laws
have been enacted giving the veteran of the late war preference over all others in all appointments in civil life. By these laws the veteran is enabled to shut out
the civilian from competition for nearly all the well-paying positions in state,
city and town, and yet when all this is done, and these special privileges are granted, a clamor is raised if an attempt be made to deprive those men from drawing a pension under the dependent act of June 27, 1890. Let it be remembered that no country in the world pays pensions as they are paid here in the United States. In other lands they are paid either for wounds received in the line of duty or for long terms of service,
and the amount of the pension paid
when compared to ours is ridiculously
small, so that when men are pensioned
under the act of 1890 it is as much for the ground that they were incapacitated from earning a living, and when other laws enable them to earn a better living than by their chosen vocation, it is but just to the great body of citizens that these pensions should cease.—[Congressman
Joseph H. O'Neill in Donahoe's Magazine for April.]

(From the Indianapolis Journal.)

Watts—Are you going to make any garden this year?
Potts—I think I shall. I had a garden last year that kept me supplied with chickens clear up till frost.

Love's Perseverance.

Nothing succeeds like success, and a young man in Detroit is in a fair way to prove the truth of the axiom if perseverance is any sign of a duck's nest. He has been in love with a girl to a long time, and there has been no doubt in the minds of their respective friends that she has refused him more times than one.
Not long ago he told his room-mate that
on that evening he was going to ask her again. At midnight when he returned he was so cheerful that his friend hardly thought necessary to ask him about his success, but he did.

He shook his head.
"What! She didn't refuse you, did she?"
"Yes."

"That's too bad. By Jove, I'd let her go."

"It's all right," said the suitor confidently. "I didn't expect any better luck."

It's the 13th time he asked her, and of course she wouldn't accept. I've got an open field now before me, and you bet I'll have her yet."

Peter Pawling, Sr.: "Out after hours
again, hey?"

Peter Pawling, Jr.: "Only ten minutes late."

Peter Pawling, Sr.: "Go at once to your room, sir, lock yourself in and bring me the key. This thoughtlessness must be checked."—Vogue.

Friend: "Try to hang on for another couple of minutes. The guides will soon be here with ropes to rescue you."

Jarley (who has fallen over a cliff in the Alps, and is hanging on to a little ledge with one hand): "All right, old boy. I can stand it. I haven't travelled from the Battery to Harlem hanging on elevated road signs for ten years for nothing." (Resumes reading his paper.)

Death of George Leonard.

Mr. George Leonard died at his residence on Mt. Ida street, at 11.50 o'clock Sunday evening. Death resulted from pneumonia after an illness of only four days, although the real cause was diabetes, from which he had suffered for several years.

Deceased was born in Boston in 1833
and had been a resident of Newton for 28 years. He had been operating extensively in real estate since 1855. Before the war, he secured control of several large estates in Dorchester and put up a large number of houses. This investment proved so successful that he continued the plan of purchasing large estates for improvement.

He was at one time connected with the Boston Investment Company, and at the time of his death was president of the Northern Investment Company, having held the latter office several years.
He had large interests in real estate in Sioux City, also the location of the principal land holdings of the Northern Investment Company.

In Newton Mr. Leonard was much esteemed. He was a member of the Elliot Congregational church and was interested in the Sunday school department of the North Evangelical church.
He was a man of a kindly and very charitable disposition, and a good friend
to the poor, giving always in an unostentationous manner, and he has also educated
a number of young men for the ministry.
A daughter alone survives him, Mrs.
Arthur E. Truesdell of Sioux City.

Editor: "What compensation do you expect for your poem?"

Poet: "Regular prices."

Editor: "All right. Thanks."—Texas
Siftings.

It must not be forgotten, and the fact
should be made as clear as the noonday
sun when it shines from a cloudless sky,
that the way to clean the streets is to clean them.—Buffalo News.

Mrs. Cawker: "Oh, she's the most exclusive person in Philadelphia."

Mrs. Skidmore: "Oh, yes. You 'see,
she was a Biddle and she married a Biddle, so now her visiting cards read 'Mrs.
Biddle-Biddle.'—Judge.

"I understand young Briefless is about to marry the daughter of old Bonds, the millionaire."

"Yes; so I am told."

"Will he give up the law business?"

"Yes; he will give up the law business and go into the son-in-law business."— Texas Siftings.

The Rev. Dr. Lake: "We are distinctly told in the future state there will be no marriage, nor giving in marriage."

Mrs. Young De Parted: "Oh, ho; that explains why 'one day will be as a thousand years.'—Vogue.

Mrs. Fadd: "Did you know that Mrs.
Askin has started out as a dress reformer?"

Mrs. Fodd: "She'll never make her gowns fashionable."

Mrs. Fadd: "Oh, yes; she will. She's going to charge $1800 a month for them
as the old kind cost."—Puck.

—On Wednesday Steamer One was called out three times. Box 621 was for a fire at the U. S. Fireworks Co., Upper Falls. While at this fire an alarm was rung in from box 74 for a small fire on the dump near the corner of Beacon and Walnut streets. In the afternoon a second alarm from the same box was responded to, the dump being again on fire, probably set by boys.
—The Newton & Boston Street railway Co. have begun early this season, and work on the new road from Walnut street through Homer, Centre, Willow, Summer, Station and Beacon streets to the square near Institution avenue is being rapidly pushed ahead. The poles for the wires are all up and tamped down and next Monday morning a force is to be put at work constructing the track. The sewer will not be allowed to interfere with the work as the road will be built over the rest of the route, and as soon as the sewer is finished the construction will be completed. The sewer is about completed so no delay is feared from that source and it is quite probable that the line will be in operation in June.
—Mr. and Mrs. John Stearns of Clarke street observed the fiftieth anniversary of their marriage last evening by a golden wedding which was largely attended. The rooms were very prettily decorated and Mr. and Mrs. Stearns received the guests as they arrived. A poem written especially for this occasion was read by Rev. Dr. Furber which will be published in these columns next week. A pleasant and rather remarkable incident was the presence of the whole family at the celebration, including eleven grand children and two great grand children. Caterer Barlow of West Newton furnished refreshments. Guests were present from Medway, Watertown, Needham, Dorchester and the Newtons. Among the large number present were noticed Mrs. E. F. Stratton and Edward Stratton, Cambridge; Willard Walcott, Lexington; J. Kendall, Waltham; Stillman Sanderson, Medway; Mrs. John Gilson and Miss Gilson, Groton; Misses Hayward, Fitchburg; Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Haywood, Allston; Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Haywood, Mr. J. B. Goodrich, Newton; Mr. and Mrs. James F. C. Hyde, Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Crowell, Mr. and Mrs. Horace Cousins, Mrs. Robert R. Bishop, Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Greenwood, Mrs. Billings, Ashley.

NEWTON HIGHLANDS.

—Pianos, rented and tuned, Farley, Newton.
—Mrs. Swett of Lake avenue is ill with the grippe.
—The fire department were kept very busy on Wednesday.
—The Chautauqua Circle will meet Monday at Mr. Ritchie's.
—The Boys' Club will meet next Tuesday at 7 p.m. in the vestry of St. Paul's church.
—Preparations are being made to remove the Patterson block to the cellar prepared for it.
—The next meeting of the Monday Club will be with Mrs. H. C. Robinson, Chester street.
—Master Frank L. Wood's recent solos at St. Paul's church have won much praise from lovers of music.
—Mr. and Mrs. Chas. R. White, formerly of this village, will leave next week for Chicago, where they will make their home.
—Mr. J. S. Roraback of Chester street has purchased the M. E. Baird estate on Hyde street and will soon occupy the same.
—Mr. E. Moulton has commenced the work of fitting up his store and hopes to be able to resume business at the old stand about May 1st.
—Rev. Dr. Webb will conduct the services at the Congregational church next Sunday morning and evening. All welcome. Seats free.
—Mr. W. H. Jones is able to be out again, having been housed up all winter on account of ill health, and was at church last Sunday morning.
—A large number from the Congregational church attended the Suffolk West Conference of Congregational churches, held at Eliot church, Newton.
—Mr. J. R. Henderson has left the Cottage Hospital and has nearly recovered his health. He has gone to New Hampshire for a few days to visit relatives.
—Mr. Thomas McMillen has returned from the Provinces, where he has spent most of the winter, and has brought his car, and has taken a house on Parker street.
—The excellent Easter music at St. Paul's reflected great credit on Choirmaster Skelton and all concerned. The amount of it did not reach us last week in time for publication.
—The vestry of St. Paul's held its first meeting since the recent parish election on Tuesday, at the rectory. A committee was appointed to consider the introduction of water power for blowing the organ.
—Mr. Ryder being ill, his place in the male quartet at the Congregational church last Sunday, was filled by Mr. S. Morgan, whose sturdy bass was heard with telling effect. Mr. Morgan will sing again next Sunday.
—Rev. John A. Staunton, rector of Emmanuel church, Wakefield, will officiate and preach at St. Paul's next Sunday. Services as follows: Holy Communion, 9:45; Morning Prayer and Sermon, 10:45; Evening Prayer.

—This (Friday) evening the Rt. Rev. Bishop Leonard, D. D., Bishop of Nevada, will visit St. Paul's church. The service will be at eight o'clock. There will be no confirmation on this occasion. The Bishop will preach. All are welcome.
—Rev. F. B. Allen, superintendent of the Episcopal City Mission of Boston, was at St. Paul's last Sunday evening and gave a most interesting account of the large and vigorous rescue and missionary work among the Boston poor, in which he is a leader. Those who are willing to help the poor of Boston, address Rev. F. B. Allen, 1 Joy street.
—Prof. Gardiner's lecture on "Japan and the Japanese," at the clubhouse on Wednesday evening was well attended, and proved a genuine treat. The illustrations on the screen helped to impress the lecturer's descriptions, and all present will long remember their evening which seemed almost literally an evening in Japan. The proceeds are for St. Paul's Sunday school.
—Sunday's music at the Congregational church will include: Davenport Anthem, "Great God of Nations." Davenport Anthem, "O, draw me father, after thee." Response, "O, draw me father, after thee." Overture, Duet for tenor and baritone. "I am wandering down life's shady path." Medtranzan Mr. Hunting, tenor; Mr. Estbrook, tenor; Mr. Ayer, baritone; Mr. Morgan, bass; Miss Stone, organist.
—The M. E. Society will hold their services in Stevens Hall next Sunday morning at 10:45, and in the evening at 7. The society feels grateful for the hospitality which they have enjoyed at the Congregational chapel, grateful to again be able to resume their services in the hall, and grateful to the large lot of land is paid for and the deeds passed, and their first evening service will be something novel in the way of a praise service. All those who formerly attended these services will be cordially welcomed as well as all those who are interested in the work of this society.
—A reception and afternoon tea was given by Mrs. Bail and daughters, Wednesday afternoon from 3 to 6. Over three hundred invitations were sent out and a large number of guests from Newton Highlands and neighboring towns were entertained. A "pink tea" was served, Mrs. Bateman, Miss Nickerson, Miss Womersley and Mrs. Newton Crane pouring, assisted by Miss Mitchell, Miss Edith Nickerson, Miss Bryant and Miss Baldwin. The dining room and table were very tastefully decorated with pinks. Mrs. Bail and daughters received in the parlor, which was filled with roses. Frappe was served in the library, presided over by Miss Hamilton and Miss Burrill. Among the ladies who assisted in making the affair a success were Mrs. F. W. Johnson, Mrs. Barnes, Mrs. Moulton, Mrs. Horace W. Taylor, Mrs. Mitchell, Mrs. W. G. Ball and Miss Sarah Stuntz. Gentlemen were invited in the evening and a lunch served for them and the ladies that remained, after which music and dancing were enjoyed the remainder of the evening.

Bowling.

Last Tuesday night the bowling tournament at the Highland Club ended and teams five and six rolled for the prize. The event has been looked forward to for quite a while and about one hundred and twenty five members and ladies witnessed the bowling. The spectators were very appreciative and every strike and spare rolled called forth great applause. Time was called at 8 o'clock and Mr. Lapham led off with three spares that was loudly applauded.

—The Misses Sears, who have wintered in California, will prolong their stay there until next fall.
—The position of baggage-master and operator at the station, left vacant by Mr. Wm. Seaver resigning, is now supplied.
—Mr. W. M. Jackson and the Jackson family will very soon remove to their handsome and newly built residence in Newtonville.
—It is stated that Mr. Chas. F. Ford, superintendent of the Dudley Mills, is to soon change his place of residence to West Newton Hill, in that village.
—Rev. P. H. Callanan of St. John's church, after services next Sunday will start for St. Augustine, Fla., where he will spend a sojourn of four weeks.
—Mr. Austin Doe and wife will make their future home at Portsmouth, N. H., after next week. They are to make the trip there with their horse and carriage.
—Edward Farrell was sentenced to six months in the House of Correction for assault and drunkenness, last Friday, before Judge Washburn. The current ruler "The Patrick" was followed by the laughable comedy "The Jack Trust." The following is the cast of characters:
—Loree Jack Towner, The Trust who thinks himself irresistible. Mr. Wing Jennie Patie. Who quite agrees with him.
—Clorinda De Courcy A humorist in petticoats. Miss L. V. Jackson
—Eula Otis A relic of "befo' de wah." Miss Jordan
—Old Mrs. Boothby, whose actions speak louder than words. Miss Jackson —Maria. Up to snuff in yes, ma'am; that's what. Miss Jackson
The parts were all well sustained and there was a large and enthusiastic audience present.

—The first assembly of the Young Men's Association occurs in Prospect Hall Saturday evening.
—Mr. Luther T. Cunningham preached at the Methodist church Sunday in the absence of the pastor.
—Postmaster Billings is having his soda fountain set up in his pharmacy, preparing for the summer trade.
—Mr. Frank Jones has sold two lots on Cottage Hill to Messrs. A. M. Fuller and Giles Dyson, who intend to build.
—Mr. and Mrs. Timothy Shea lost their three year old son John by scarlet fever Wednesday morning. The funeral was Wednesday afternoon.
—John McCarthy, employed by Spence Bros., was thrown from a horse he was riding Monday, some boys frightened the animal and broke one wrist. The other wrist was sprained and his face badly cut. Dr. McOwen attended him.
—The alarm from 621, Wednesday morning, was for fire at one of the United States Fireworks Co. buildings. An explosion occurred at No. 4 where the large candles are manufactured, at the bench where Norman Oakley was working. He was blown out the door, his clothes from the waist up being burnt off and his chest, face and arms were terribly burned. The injured man was cared for as soon as possible and was removed to the hospital by advice of Dr. Thompson, who was called. A brother of Oakley at work in No. 4 was blown out another door, but was not hurt. The accident was probably caused by carelessness in tamping the candles. The building was wholly destroyed. Oakley died yesterday morning at 8 o'clock.

A Clever Parrot.

F. X. Zeigler of Columbus, Pa., has a parrot named Dick that is considered one of the family and is perhaps one of the most intelligent birds of its species in the world. Dick always takes a hand in household matters. If Mr. Zeigler's son does not get up in the morning at the usual hour to go to the office, the parrot will say to the girl, "Call Clem," and he will insist on his command being obeyed. I recalled on one occasion when the family was earnestly discussing some local event Dick broke in as follows: "Papa, do you love mamma?" "Yes, of course I do," replied Mr. Zeigler, when the parrot blurted out, "Oh, you old fraud!"—New York Telegram.

The Nervous System.

The average weight of the brain of an adult male is 3 pounds and 8 ounces; of a female, 2 pounds and 4 ounces. The nerves are all connected with it directly or by the spinal marrow. These nerves, together with their branches and minute ramifications, probably exceed 10,000,000 in number, forming a "bodyguard" outnumbering by far the greatest army ever marshaled.—Popular Science Monthly.

A Terrible Threat.

A janitor in a blue shirt was cleaning the windows of a bank at Broadway and Park place the other day after office hours, when a tramp came along, who, after eyeing him a few moments with envy, yelled to him:

"Hello, there, you chap in the bank, can't you throw a fellow out a little money? I'm clean broke, and almost anything would be welcome."

The janitor went on cleaning the windows. He heard what the tramp said, but wouldn't admit it.

The tramp paused a few moments and then yelled: "Come, now, don't be a hog. There must be a million dollars in there, and all you've got to do is to chuck a bundle of it out. Are you going to do it or aren't you?"

Still no response.

The tramp began to chafe under the galling hauteur with which he was being treated.

"If you don't give me some of that money, I'll start a report that the bank's in trouble," he yelled. "If ever there was a first rate hog, it's you."

After 10 minutes had elapsed and no one had taken the least notice of the tramp he began to walk slowly away. As he reached the gutter he turned round, shook his fist at the window cleaner and muttered:

"When the commune is declared, any one who wants money will only have to walk into a bank and ask for it. I'll be there, my beauty, when the day comes, and I'll point you out to the fellow citizens as an insolent and bloated symbol of wealth. You just wait, my friend, till the call to arms is sounded, and you'll find me right on the spot ready to tell what I know about the enemies of the proletariat."—New York Herald.

A Theatrical Dresser.

There is one difference between American and European theaters as marked as their schedule of prices and their ushering system, and that is in the matter of "dressers." The European manager employs about half a dozen dressers who act as body servants of the leading actors in his company and a regular employees of the house, like gas men, cleaners and scene shifters. The American actor, however, dresses himself or else hires a man to assist him. When he does hire a man, it is usually a fellow player who is "doing" small parts and is glad of the chance to increase his $10 wages by $5 from the leading or heavy man or first comedian.

The dresser has not only to assist in changing his master's costume, a performance requiring great expedition, but makes repairs, folds and puts away the clothing, packs and unpacks the trunks and sees that the dressing table is supplied with paints, wigs, combs and other needful articles. In the European theaters the dresser seldom or never acts, though he is often an actor who has been forced off from the stage by illness, lameness or loss of voice. He is generally prompt, quiet, a little obsequious and hopeful of tips at the end of a run or of a season.—New York Sun.

appearances were received with marked demonstrations of approval."

—The two antique chairs owned by Mr.
Charles T. Jolly of Newton were used in the production of "Little Lord Fauntleroy"
at the Grand Opera House this week.
These articles of church furniture, which centuries ago were in service in one of the cathedrals of Wales, for the first time on this occasion figured in connection with the drama.

—On the first of May it is expected that the excavation for the Bishop Brooks' Memorial Hall will be begun. It will be preceded by a service in church, when Rev.
Leighton Parks will preach, after which the choir and clergy will march to the grounds outside, and each member of the church will be given a spade to start the work.

—Music for Grace church Sunday evening:
Processional, "O bless the Lord my Soul," Magnificat, H. B. Day Anthem, "The pillars of the earth are the Lord's," Tenor, "As it began to dawn very early in the morning," Vincent Recessional, "O word of God incarnate."

—Mr. Philip Smith, a native of England, and for the last twelve years a resident of Newton, passed quietly away on Sunday.
He was master of a Masonic Lodge, an
hon. and faithful old gentleman, a worthy member of Immanuel Baptist church of which he was a regular attendant as long as his strength permitted.
His wife died several years ago and only two daughters survive him.

—Last spring at this date the magnolias
were in blossom and this year the buds
have hardly begun to grow, while vegetation is unusually backward. The anniversary of the battle of Lexington came this week, but the writers of that period
describe the green and waving grass, the thick foliage of the trees, and other signs of advanced spring which are unusual in these days, and suggests that either the writers were romancing or that our climate is changing for the worse. The winds this week have been more appropriate to March
than to the middle of April.

—The Interclub Tennis league will soon
meet to arrange for the summer schedule. It will be enlarged this year by the addition of several new clubs, quite a number of applications for membership
having been already received. A meeting of the executive committee will be held early next month. It seems probable now that the competition will be confined to singles. In that event, the Neighborhood club will join in the league, besides other organizations in the cities and towns about Newton prepared to enter players in singles
but not equipped for the competition in doubles against such men as those who represented the Wellesley Hills Lawn Tennis Association in the matches a year ago.

—The organ recital and concert at Elliot church, Monday evening, given under the auspices of the King's Daughters, for the benefit of the blind children they are taking care of, was largely attended, about a thousand people being present. Mr. Good-rich's organ selections proved very enjoyable, and the songs by Miss Gertrude Edmonds were excellent, of course, and the second one was encored. No tickets were sold, the King's Daughters depending entirely upon voluntary contributions, and they have cleared about $200 over expenses.

Any who wish to contribute are still at liberty to do so. The program was as follows:

F. de la Tombelle, Marche Solennelle
J. M. Haydn, The Spirit's Song
A. Guilmant, Miss Edmonds, Pastorale
R. Wagner, Prelude, "Lohengrin"
M. Moszkowski, Tema con Variazioni
From the Suite in F. for orchestra.
A. Thomas, Dost thou know that fair land?
From "Mignon."
Miss Edmonds,
Handel, (recorder), "He shall feed His flock."
From the Messiah.
J. S. Bach, Toccata in D minor (Dorfe)
F. Mendelssohn, Overture, "Ruy Blas"

The King's Daughters feel very grateful to those who have so generously assisted them by their contributions.

—The Hunnewell Hill Improvement Society has held several meetings since its organization and has now some sixty members, and several more applications on file,
so that before long their numbers will probably be increased to at least one hundred names. Their working committees have just been appointed. It will be seen by the following details, that important work has been mapped out, and with such efficient men as have been selected, it is apparent that practical results will soon be seen in that section of the city where their efforts are to be first directed. Committee on membership, 3: Frank W. Gaffed, Chairman; F. H. Nichols, Chas. W. Hall, Geo.
Sawin, J. W. Bacon; Committee on finance,

bery, 3: Geo. H. Hastings, Chairman; Dr.

—The Waban Racquet club began work
on its grounds on Boyd street, Monday.
Three new gravel courts are to be laid out at once, and five more later. They will be constructed by experts. Instead of using the customary tapes, the scheme is to substitute strips of galvanized iron with turned edges, hugging the ground closely and secured by extra long staples 1-2 feet apart. One advantage is the saving of the expense caused by the frequent replacing of the tapes. The cost per court of the galvanized iron strips is only $5, and they will last for several seasons. The capital stock of the Waban Racquet club has been nearly taken up. There are a large number of applications for membership and the financial prospects are very encouraging.
The new courts will be in readiness prior to May 1. The season will be inaugurated Memorial day with an open tournament in singles. There will be several club tourneys and an exhibition competition, closing the season Labor day. Valuable prizes will be offered in the various classes, gentlemen's and ladies' singles and gentlemen's and ladies' doubles. For the best individual of the season, a special prize, a handsome silver loving bowl, is offered by President J. R. Griswold, who has been quite active in mapping out an interesting program of events. The officers of the club, beside the president, are W. L. Sampson, secretary, and John C. Brimblecom, treasurer. These, with Messrs. H. A.
Flinn and H. H. Appin, constitute the executive committee. The executive committee held a meeting Monday to complete arrangements for the season.

WABAN.

—There were three fires here last week.
The small boys think "they are right in it."

—Mr. Rand returned Tuesday from a fortnight's trip to Washington and vicinity.

—Mr. Saville is beautifying his estate by setting out numerous small fruit and shade trees.

—Mrs. Wm. F. Gould gives a musical tonight.

—One of the gypsy tents caught fire by a stove on Tuesday evening and burned. It is stated to be a complete loss as there was no insurance on it.

—Marjorie Harlow is improving from her illness.

—Mrs. Sudder has opened her house on Beacon street for the summer.

—The remaining portion of the partially burned pest house will be immediately torn down.

—The Benevolent Society met Wednesday with Mrs. Gould.

—Mr. Heaton's house is resplendent in a new coat of paint.

—Mrs. Bicknell has been in town visiting her sister, Mrs. Robinson, for the past fortnight.

—Officer Mitchell caught a man here Saturday night at about 11:30, who had been indulging too much in fire water. The guy in question had just fixed the baggage truck securely on the track with the idea he was going "to wake 'em up."
He woke in West Newton next morning.

—Alarm from box 32 on the 13th inst.
summoned the fire department to the burning barn of Dennis Ryan on Homer street.
With difficulty the live stock, namely a cow, calf and pig, were saved, and only by the superhuman efforts of the neighbors
was the house prevented from catching fire. There was some insurance on the building. Mr. Joseph Bowman was quite severely burned about the head while assisting.

—Saturday morning an alarm from box
52 was pulled in for a fire in the pest house belonging to the city farm. The soft condition of the new land together with the fences and stone walls prevented the departments reaching the scene of the fire for considerable time. Hose 3 stretched a line of hose to the hydrant on Beacon street, but owing to some flaw the hose burst in about two minutes. Chas. E. B.
of the Highlands soon had a stream on and checked the fire. The police officers found a bottle containing kerosene near the front door where the fire started. It was evidently set by trespassers or by some young fellow with a mania to see fires.

Malaria in Newton.

In some parts of Newton people are suffering from malaria and they will be

CITY GOVERNMENT.

THE SIDEWALK ORDINANCE IS FINALLY PASSED.

The board of aldermen met Monday night, with all the members present and Mayor Fenno presiding.

Business from the common council was disposed of in concurrence.

The Chief of Fire Department called attention to the old small pox hospital near the almshouse, partially destroyed by fire on the 15th and recommended that it be removed. An order was passed that the keeper of the almshouse should attend to the matter.

The report of the board of assessors for 1892 was received.

F. N. and Geo. N. March asked for concrete walks on Grasmere street.

Thomas Woodman asked for license to build a store 12 by 14 on Ellis street.

Mr. Hutchinson asked for concrete walk on Lincoln street.

H. D. Ward asked for three street lights on Dudley street.

E. T. Carpenter asked for license to remove building from Lincoln street to Erie avenue, and later in the evening a strong remonstrance was received against the petition.

Residents of Florence street asked that the street be widened from Boylston to Heath street and put it in better condition, and also for street lights.

A large packet of applications for licenses from inn-keepers and pool room keepers was received and referred.

Mary E. Broderick asked for license to move building from Watertown to Dalby street.

T. D. Sullivan asked for license as a private sewer layer.

H. W. Fuller asked for license to build wagon shed 25 by 10 feet on Church street.

Residents of Wolcott Park asked for gravel sidewalks from Mrs. Chamberlain's to Geo. M. Fiske's residence.

J. H. Williams and nine others asked to have the name of Clifton street changed to Churchill street, in honor of the late Alderman Churchill, and as a memorial of one who had been such a good citizen and kind neighbor. An order to that effect was passed unanimously.

M. C. Bragdon asked to have the ledge on his lot, corner of Lake avenue and Hyde street, removed by the city, stating that he would give the stone to the city and erect a $10,000 house on the lot as soon as it was cleared, the lot now being assessed at $1,000.

Alderman Thompson said that Mr. Bragdon had built three houses recently assessed at $20,000; he had bought a piece of bog land on the same avenue, filled it in at his own expense, and now had two houses on the lot assessed at $14,000. He was a gentleman who would do what he agreed, and the ledge would furnish good building stone which might be needed for the Newton Highlands new school building, and the stone could also be taken the short distance to the stone crusher at a small expense. He thought it would be a wise move to grant his petition and on his motion it was referred to the highway committee with the recommendation that they take into consideration all the facts in the case.

Daniel McNamara gave notice of intention to build house 16 by 30 feet on Watertown street.

A petition was received from A. R. Mitchell and 49 others that Austin street be extended to West Newton. Mayor Fenno remarked that the petition had a familiar sound.

On motion of Alderman Thompson Mayor Fenno was authorized to execute a quit claim deed to certain land in Upper Falls, to perfect a deed given by the city to Willard Marcy, and also a deed given by the town to same.

Alderman Bothfield for the highway committee recommended the rounding off of the South east corner of Margin and Putnam streets, in accordance with petition of V. E. Carpenter, and an order was passed to that effect.

Orders were passed for concrete walks on Putnam and Margin streets, and for gravel walks on Dedham and Parker streets.

The Highway committee recommended that a drain be laid on Charles street at a cost of $1,000, on Vista avenue at a cost of $650, and on Adams street at a cost of $1200 and an order was passed appropriating those amounts.

J. D. Morgan gave notice of intention to build two houses on Morgan place, Ward One, 30 by 25 feet.

An order was passed authorizing the water board to lay 280 feet of 6 inch main on Chesley road at a cost of $325; 285 feet on Newbury street, to cost $324; and 325 feet on Newtonville avenue at a cost of $390.

The sum of $62,500 was appropriated for city expenses during the month of May.

NEEDHAM STREET RAILWAY.

Alderman Roffe presented a numerous signed petition in favor of granting a location to the Needham street railway company, also a report from the street railway committee recommending the granting of the same.

An order was presented and passed granting the location on Winchester, Centre and Walnut streets under the usual restrictions, as to paving the inside of the tracks, as to the kind of removal of snow, that the company should not have the power to assign, grant or lease the road to any parties whatever, the location to be forfeited if cars were not running within 9 months, and an agreement was presented for the company to sign.

Geo. H. Haynes asked for license for stable 15 by 20 feet on Cherry street.

J. H. Hoyt was granted license for shed 21 by 19 feet on Auburn street; Chas. Dickens for slaughter house, in Oak Hill district; T. T. Guilford for stable on Melrose street.

Orders were passed for concrete walks on Hunter, Margin and Putnam streets, and on Lowell street.

CLEANING SIDEWALKS.

Alderman Bothfield reported the draft of the sidewalk ordinance agreed upon by the conference committee, which was that all paved walks in Wards One and Seven should be made reasonably clear of snow within twenty-four hours after any storm, and that if covered by ice they should either be cleared or made safe, and if not done within six hours the owner or occupant of the abutting estate should be liable to a fine of $20 for each day that the dangerous condition continued.

Alderman Bothfield moved that this be adopted as the 28th section of the highway ordinance and the same be passed to be enrolled.

Alderman Roffe asked if the city solicitor had been consulted as to the legality of the ordinance.

Alderman Bothfield: Yes and its provisions conform to the statutes.

Alderman Thompson said he had been accused by the GRAPHIC of a lack of gallantry in compelling ladies to walk through the slush on the walks, but he believed in the walks being cleaned but thought the city ought to do it and charge it in the tax levy. There were several widows in his ward with 500 or 600 feet of walks, and he did not think it was gallant to compel them to wade through the snow after every storm to clear their walks. He thought the city should do it just as they water the streets.

Alderman Bothfield said the Ward Five representative misunderstood the section read. It only applied to paved walks in Wards One and Seven, and the people there wanted such an ordinance or were dissatisfied with the present one. They unanimously passed a resolve calling on the representative of their ward to secure such an ordinance. There was not a city in the state which did not have such an ordinance. It was not needed for the majority as nine-tenths of the residents kept their walks clear now, but they wanted the other tenth compelled to do the same.

Alderman Plummer said he saw no objection to passing the ordinance in its present form.

Alderman Thompson asked why not have the city do the work.

Alderman Bothfield said because it would be illegal. The public statutes gave the city no power to appropriate money for such a purpose, but they did give the power to pass this ordinance.

Alderman Roffe said he did not like the idea of imposing a duty on the residents of one section, which accepted him. He would like to know whether it would not be a hardship to the owners of long stretches of street frontage.

Alderman Bothfield said there were few paved walks in front of such estates, but those who had long stretches of paved walks in those two wards were in favor of the ordinance, and they were generally in such circumstances that the expense would not be a burden. Besides, the ordinance would be construed liberally, it said "reasonably clear," which on side streets with little passing would mean clear in the width covered by the snow plows, which would be run as usual. It is not the people of small means who oppose the ordinance or are unwilling to keep their walks clean, they took pride in doing so. The difficulty was with a few who were abundantly able to go to the expense but had not enough public spirit to do it, unless compelled to.

The ordinance was then passed by a vote of 6 to 1. Alderman Thompson only voting against it.

C. W. Higgins gave notice of intention to build house 30x42 on Waltham street.

SUBURBAN RAILROAD.

The news that the projectors of the Suburban railroad had suddenly sprung upon the legislature a bill for a freight railroad through the centre of the city, destroying most of the present and proposed parks, had been conveyed to the board by Representative Estabrook, who had succeeded in delaying its passage.

City Engineer Noyes said that he had looked up the route, and the road was to run from the Woods street division of the N. Y. & N. E. to the Massachusetts Central division of the Boston & Maine, at Belmont, and used to convey freight trains from one to the other. It began at Cook street, crossed Boylston, and curved around Eliot, crossing the Circle line west of the station. Then it curved easterly, crossing numerous streets, crossed Cold Spring Swamp, crossing Beacon and Walnut streets at their junction with each other. Then it ran east of Bulloughs pond, crossing Homer and along the line of the proposed Blake street; it followed the route of the land just taken for park purposes, crossing the main line of the Boston & Albany, Bellevue street, across Washington street and the lands of Messrs J. C. and J. S. Potter, along one side of Walnut park, crossing Pearl street at Gardner and running along one edge of Boyd's pond, which was to be laid out as a park, and crossing Watertown street. The route was at first farther west but it had been changed on account of the vigorous protest of Waltham.

It is now laid out through the most beautiful part of Newton, and along the line of lands needed for park way and drainage way, and would be a great damage to the city. A route had once been granted through the Oak Hill district and there was no objection to that part of the bill, but this was a new scheme.

Alderman Roffe asked if it had anything to do with the New York and New England road's effort to freeze out New England, in the matter of freight facilities.

Mr. Noyes did not think so, but the route had once been changed because Waltham objected, for less reason than Newton would have, and he thought it could just as well go farther west, through some other town.

Alderman Plummer said he was opposed to any foreign corporation coming into the city and cutting it up in this way.

A resolve was then passed calling on Newton's representatives to oppose the bill by all means in their power, as such road would be a serious injury to Newton.

W. M. Russell having sold his business to Thomas F. Kelley & Co., the latter applied for a druggist's license, and the application was ordered to be advertised.

SEWERS.

Orders were presented taking lands for sewers on Austin street, Chesley Road, Worcester street, Alston street and Otis place, and hearings were appointed at 7.45 May 15, before the aldermen, and May 22nd, before the Common Council.

SEWER ASSESSMENTS.

Twenty-eight changes in sewer assessments were reported as corrections, mainly reductions, caused by the change in the assessment of corner lots, and they were ordered to be carried out by the city treasurer.

City Engineer Noyes explained that these all came from the assessors' department, which had charge of correcting the changes made by the new ordinance in the amount of exemption on corner lots.

THE HIGH SCHOOL LOT.

Alderman Thompson presented the old order for the purchase of the Clifton lot next to the high school building, appropriating $7,826 for the purchase of 45,201 feet. This had the approval of the public property committee, he said, and the lot was necessary to protect the building. He was sorry to see any manifestation of a sectional feeling, which would say that because we have no high school we won't even let land be bought on the other side of the city. The line was now only 35 feet from the building, the Clifton land was in the market, and if tall buildings were erected on it, all the children at the school would suffer, and some rooms would be so dark that pupils would be in danger of ruining their eyesight. Eyes were more valuable than a few dollars. The price was the assessed value of the land.

Mayor Fenno said the order was defeated last year and at the request of the school board was presented again, as it appeared a desirable purchase.

Alderman Roffe was opposed to any extension of the high school until they had a school on the other side of the city, although he was favorable to protecting the present school building, if necessary, and he would amend, that no building should ever be placed thereon.

Alderman Thompson said the city should possess all its land free of restrictions, there was no idea of extending the present high school. It was only in accord with the Metropolitan Park commission's recommendations, that people should have plenty of breathing places, give the scholars more room out of doors and no one had even thought of extending the building on that side.

Alderman Roffe's amendment was not seconded, and he said that at the time the high school was removed from Newton Centre, there was a tacit agreement, more binding on honorable men than any written one, that the pupils from that place should be conveyed free, but they never could get such conveyance, and they felt that they had not been treated fairly. The sectional feeling spoken of was justified. The order was passed 6 to 1, Alderman Roffe voting no.

The order in regard to referring petitions for street railways to the Boulevard Commission came up as unfinished business, and on motion of Alderman Bothfield it was laid on the table.

The board then went into executive session and the doors were shut on the reporters and the street railway officials.

Malaria and the Charles River.

(Boston Herald.)

One of the most important features of the report of the metropolitan park commission was its consideration of the menace of malaria arising from present conditions in the valley of the Charles river, and the stress laid upon the necessity for remedial action at the earliest possible date. This is one of the gravest questions that has forced itself upon the commission, for it vitally concerns the health of a very large proportion of the entire metropolitan community.

Something over ten years ago the Herald instituted an inquiry into the question of the spread of the malaria in New England. At that time it did not appear to concern directly that part of the world immediately around us. It had been gradually creeping northward along the shores of Long Island sound and up the river valleys, those of the Housatonic and the Connecticut being particularly affected, making the case an especially serious one for cities like Springfield, Holyoke and Northampton. Hereabouts, however, there was prevalent a confidence that in the country around Boston we would remain exempt from the malarial; that in our gravelly soil, light and easily drained, there was a quality which would protect us from an evil which had never yet been inflicted upon us, and the danger from which seemed as remote as that of the yellow fever, for instance.

The state board of health, however, was alive to the seriousness of the case, and its chairman, Dr. Walcott, predicted that which has now been realized. The Charles river has become a breeding place of malaria; the suffering from that disease has steadily increased each year in the communities bordering the stream until it has become imperative that radical measures should be applied. The undesirable advertising that has thus been given to places like Newton, Watertown and Waltham has already caused great damage, and, unless something effective is soon done, the impairment of their natural desirability as places of residence will prove unspeakable loss. It is agreed that the course of action adopted would be futile, as it always proves to be; that the wise course is to state the facts openly and demand the energetic remedial action that otherwise might not be forthcoming.

It is one of the aspects of the metropolitan park problem, whereby it is demanded that the metropolitan district should be dealt with as one great community having in this respect a unity of interest, as it has been in the case of the sewerage question, and as is provided for in the bill now before the Legislature—

that has been proposed in this commonwealth. Only by public ownership and control of the banks of the Charles will it be possible for this serious trouble to be properly treated.

Unfortunately, one of the towns on the Charles has taken a partially obstructive attitude in the matter. There are some things like 2-1-2 miles of river front in that town. Otherwise there would be no occasion for including Weston in the metropolitan parks district, but, under the circumstances, it may be seen that its territorial situation makes it essential that this should be done. Several public spirited persons there resident have proposed to give to the commonwealth for the purpose, in case a permanent metropolitan commission is established, the greater portion of this river front. In case Weston were not included in the district this action would not be possible, and the important stretch of the river would remain a menace to the health of the entire community.

It is provided that the apportionment of the charges called for under the bill shall be made to the various cities and towns concerned, in a just and equitable manner, by special commissioners appointed by the state board of health, whose instruments have never given just cause for complaint. It is specifically mentioned in the metropolitan park report that the proportion of a town like Weston would be little or nothing under an apportionment according to benefit. It is difficult to see how, under the bill, it could be more than $200 at the very largest, whereas the town has called for a limitation which would permit an apportionment as high as $1500! Such an amendment of the bill would therefore be more superfluous than the fifth wheel of a coach, for, whereas the highest annual charge for the entire metropolitan district under the bill could not be over $70,000, a limitation to a half mill on the dollar of assessed valuation, as asked for, would permit an annual charge of nearly half a million dollars!

Only by legislation such as has been devised can the ends aimed at be attained. The town of Weston, with its own local capacities, could not cope with the great sanitary and other problems involved. By the very limitations of the bill the local interests are amply guarded. For the greater public to take in charge matters that vitally concern its welfare constitutes no interference with the rights of local self-government, but if a local community were permitted by a dog-in-the-manger attitude to prevent its own citizens from making a public-spirited disposition of their own property and to keep its own territory in a condition threatening the welfare of the entire community it would be a flagrant interference with the rights of general government.

Did it ever occur to you that the judicious use of good paint on the outside of a house can materially increase the value of the building? Most of the increase is in fancy, of course—just in the appearance of the house—that's all. But what a difference one or two coats of paint can make, to be sure! Perhaps you have property you want to sell or rent and are thinking of painting it. You would like it to be a good and permanent job, but you don't want to spend any more money than you can help. Here is where the Chilton Paints prove themselves the most economical, as they are also the most enduring and weather-defying. They are well ground in pure linseed oil and turpentine drier, have a good solid body, and will be found to do as much work as twice the quantity of some paints, and do it better, too. Get estimates on one coat, two coats, and three coats of Chilton Paint. You rarely will need more than two coats, and where the house is in good condition and the color about the same as formerly used, you will be surprised to see how well one coat will look. THE CARSWELL BOULEVARD.

What has been called the "Carswell" boulevard has been revived lately and the parties interested say that all the land needed will be given to the city, with the possible exception of one estate. It is to begin at Chestnut Hill avenue in Brighton and extend to Walnut street, Newtonville, following the line of the valley. From the junction of South and

Lake streets in Brighton, the proposition is to open a new road, called Commonwealth avenue on the above plan, running north of Waban hill to Montrose street, to be 135 feet wide, with parkway in the center. Thence it takes the line of Cotton and Mill streets, to be laid out 100 feet wide. It is of course proposed to have electric cars on the boulevard, connecting with the Oak Square line of the West End. The plan is to roughly build the boulevard at private expense, under direction of the City engineer of Newton, and have the city macadamize the roads when it receives the releases of the land.

It is said that a gentleman already has secured signatures of 85 per cent of the land owners, agreeing to co-operate in the scheme and within the past few days interest in the plan has been revived, and some missionary work is being done.

The route, the streets intersected, and other general information is given by the plan, and those interested are to present the scheme in full to the boulevard commission at an early date.

The New Sunday School Advance.

(New York Examiner.)

We have never sympathized with the indiscriminate onslaughts made from time to time on the International Sunday school Lessons. Those lessons marked a great advance in Sunday-school work. They won their way to general acceptance against strenuous opposition, and they have held their place in spite of constant criticism, by virtue of the law of the survival of the fittest. To those who objected to them The Examiner has often said, "It is a waste of breath merely to find fault, though many of the criticisms are doubtless well grounded. Produce something better, and it will supplant the International Lessons; until that is done, they are likely to keep the field." The time has come for the friends of the Sunday-school work to acknowledge that something better has been produced. The acknowledgment should not be made grudgingly, but gladly. For ourselves we believe that we are on the verge of another great advance in Sunday school work, as step as much in advance of that taken twenty years ago as that was in advance of previous work.

The "something better" to which we have alluded is the "Blakeslee Graded Lessons." The power of the International system has been its uniformity and its systematic covering of the entire Bible in seven years. It is possible to pay too high a price for these merits, but they may be preserved in the new system. The weakness of the International system was in its fundamental lack of flexibility, and in the scrappy hop-skip-and-jump style of its lesson topics. The latter was in part due to bad judgment on the part of the committee that chose the lessons; the former was inherent in the system, and has come to be fatal to its continued usefulness. There is something totally and irredeemably absurd to one who has inhaled the spirit of modern education, in the idea of compelling all the scholars in the Sunday school—from the infant class to Bible classes of grandfathers and grandmothers—to study the same lessons. Graded lessons are an absolute necessity. We have tried to secure gradation by variation of method in teaching; and this has palliated the evil effects of an absurd system, but it has not overcome them. The gradation must be in the lessons themselves as well as in the teaching, and this is equally true if the school as a whole is going over substantially the same subject. The Blakeslee system is carefully graded, the lessons themselves, as well as the methods of instruction, being carefully adapted to the age and capacity of the scholars in our Sunday schools. Five grades in all are thus provided, the highest of which will give the members of advanced Bible classes quite enough to do in the way of study and thought.

Not only is the fundamental principle of this system sound, from an educational point of view, but it is the only sound principle. It is equally satisfactory from the point of view of a spiritual guide of youth. Its aim is instruction in the facts and teachings of the Bible with especial reference to the influence of the truth in producing and developing Christian character. Its studies, therefore, find their central theme in the person and work of Christ. Grouped about this theme will be a progressive series of studies of the Bible as a whole, rather than the hasty and scrappy series of disconnected incidents and teachings that mark the International lessons.

It would be a great achievement, the greatest in the history of the Sunday school, if the coming International Convention to be held at St. Louis should have the breadth of view and wisdom to adopt the Blakeslee system for International use. We hope to see this done. But whether this is done or not, the old system is doomed—doomed not by capricious fault-finding, nor by criticism of details that ignores compensating merits, but by the fact that something better is in the field and is sure to win its way by sheer force of merit. Prejudice may prolong the conflict and delay the victory, but the best is always the enemy of the old. The Blakeslee system is making its way already with surprising rapidity, and we have yet to hear of a school that has tried it and would be willing to go back to the International lessons. That one fact speaks volumes.

It remains to be seen whether the Sunday-school workers who appoint the International Committee and direct its policy are prepared to take this forward step. It would be unfortunate if any sentiment of rivalry, any feeling of conservatism that declines to fess and meddle with a good system has been justifying hitherto by results. But now the case is altered. No longer is the demand heard for change merely for the sake of change, and with no well-defined object in view.

No longer are we asked to abandon something good for something that might on trial prove to be worse. We are now asked to go on from something proved by experience to be good to that which experience has proved to be better. The past system of International lessons must go—it is rapidly going, and will go still more rapidly during the next few years. Wise leadership will recognize this fact, and substitute for this system the graded system of lessons taught by the inductive method.

A CONSERVATIVE VIEW.

WHAT THE BOSTON COMMERCIAL BULLETIN SAYS ABOUT THE GAS TRUST.

The investigation of the Bay State's gas mystery has begun and the gas fight is assuming a decidedly interesting phase. We believe that this investigation will prove more efficient and have greater results than such affairs usually entail. Men who know Mayor Matthews best, say that Mr. Addicks is foolish in the extreme to cross swords with him, but when a man must fight for his life what else is he to do? Even if Mr. Addicks has boasted that he owns the board of aldermen, the gas commission and the state Senate, he is liable to understand before the investigation closes, the real power of Boston's mayor. It is claimed that the Bay State gas combination has flagrantly violated the spirit and even the letter of the law and pays interest and dividends on an immense amount of watered capital only by practicing extortion on the gas consumers of Boston. It costs the Boston gas light company about 36 cents to produce and furnish gas, yet the consumer pays $1.30. The mayor is in possession of the facts and figures and yet he has other powers which he will reserve until the last.

The whole matter resolves itself down to what we have claimed from the first, namely, that the hour of retribution for past sins is close at hand for the Bay State gas company. The laws of man are not inexorable, but the laws of nature and finance are, and it makes no difference when or how the laws of finance are sinning against, retribution is as sure to follow as night the day. This is the case with the Bay State. The actual capital invested in the plants is $4,040,000, yet Mr. Addicks came in here and capitalized his gas trust at $17,000,000, or over four times the actual amount. Had he capitalized conservatively, he would not now need to fear competition or investigation, but as matters now stand, retribution is about to be meted out.

It is the fond hope of the friends of Bay State that this investigation will be slummed over, and that the mayor will be satisfied with a grudging reduction of the price of gas, say for a term at $1.20, then to $1.10 and finally to $1. But he will not be satisfied with any such arrangement, for if he should he would be shutting his eyes to what he has himself proclaimed a fraud. Moreover, when the friends of the gas trust acknowledge that they hope for such a settlement of the difficulty, they betray the weakness of the company's position, for they believe, and rightly, too, that more gas will be consumed at $1.20 than at $1.30, and more at $1.10 than at $1.20, and that this increase will perhaps, with the aid of dubious methods in reading the meters, enable the Bay State gas company to earn present fixed charges. They acknowledge that if reduction is made all at once to $1 the company cannot hope to pay interest on its $12,000,000 or $13,000,000 of "water."

When Mr. Rogers was last here he is said to have stated in the presence of a Brookline family that Mr. Addicks had broken faith with him once, and that he should never cease to follow him until he had gained his object. Mr. Rogers scouted the idea of a compromise, and said he did not care to become associated in any way whatever with Mr. Addicks again. Several of our bankers believe that this fight will be compromised, because that has been the history of all such affairs in the past. Many on the street also believe that Mr. Addicks cannot be beaten politically, that is to say, it is thought that if he owns the Legislature, the gas commission and the board of aldermen, he will come out of this investigation unscathed and will be able to do as he pleases. People who hold this belief fail to take into account a mighty factor, namely, public opinion, which will nullify whatever hold the Bay State gas trust may have on our legislative bodies, for it will mean political death for any member of the city or state government to range himself on the side of this trust and in opposition to the people. The mayor understands this, and so do the politicians, and the latter are even now casting about for means of escape from this Bay State yoke.

TROUBLE FOR WEST END

GROWING OUT OF THE RETURN CURRENT CURRENT.

The West End railroad is having more trouble than is generally known with the return ground current. The single trolley wire method being employed, the circuit is formed by the rails and the earth. The action of the powerful current of 500 volts and thousands of amperes is beginning to show effects on the gas and water pipes along the lines of the tracks. Not only this, but many buildings are receiving a heavy current by means of these pipes, which is liable to cause fire under certain conditions. There have been a number of instances where by making connections between the water and gas pipes inside a building, a current of sufficient magnitude has been obtained to charge a storage battery from which an entire structure could be lighted, and there have been other cases where motors have been operated.

A short time ago, when the subject of using a trolley wire and earth return current was agitated in New York, two expert electricians from that city came to Boston and instituted a series of experiments. It was found that all buildings were not equally affected, but in a ratio of about one in every six it was discovered that by short-circuiting between a gas and water pipe a good-sized copper wire could be easily fused. Here was at once a serious danger from fire, for it would be very possible accidentally to cross these pipes by something metallic and thus generate sufficient heat to ignite any inflammable material. The officials of the West End have long known that this trouble existed, and a great deal of time and money have been expended in trying to remedy it. It is reported on excellent authority that $200,000 was appropriated by the company to pursue experiments and endeavor to check the evil, but after expending $80,000 the work was abandoned. Now the city of Boston has retained a well-known firm of electrical engineers to make experiments and see if the danger can be obviated. This concern has not been long engaged in the work, but thus far the problem is of such magnitude that the experts do not exactly know where to begin. It is further reported that the insurance men who have for the past few months suffered heavily, are to take the matter up and investigate whether or not some of the mysterious fires that have of late occurred are not attributable to this cause.

It can readily be seen that this drain of current must be a source of great expense to the West End road, and it is only by constructing a power-house of enormous proportions, capable of furnishing a quantity of current to allow for the loss, that the road can be operated. It is further intimated that the negotiations for control of the property, which were under way a few weeks ago, are hanging fire until further investigation of these electrical defects is made.

An Honored Veteran.

Colonel Wm. A. H. Silloway, that old hero and true patriot, who on May 13, 1863, saved President Lincoln from capture and perhaps instant death, now resides at Newton Upper Falls. It is proposed to get up a reception in honor of him and his gifted wife, she being a relative of the Hon. Wm. M. Evans, in the near future. The people of the Falls can well feel proud of having this noted couple as residents among them, as they are educated and refined people, and an ornament to the best society, as they have always been wherever they have resided.

Colonel Silloway enlisted April 19, 1861, and in 1862 was on General McClellan's staff as Lieut. Colonel and served till Feb. 14, 1863, serving nearly two years without any pay or reward. Feb. 14, 1863, he resigned and re-enlisted, and was appointed an acting first assistant engineer in the navy and was discharged on the 28th day of October, 1865. In L. R. Hamersley's volume "Officers of the Army and Navy (volunteers) who served in the Civil War," page 145, is a full record of the Colonel's service, and in a letter from Secretary Welles among other letters we quote: "In a conference with the President and Secretary Stanton, in reference to your valuable service of Wednesday last, you were commissioned to the full rank of Colonel by brevet, and it is proposed to elevate you to the rank of chief engineer. We extend to you our heartfelt thanks, and believe us when we say we consider you to be as great a hero as any in the service, and special mention of your service is ordered on record in both departments, war and navy." The Colonel has been a member of the Grand Army since its first organization, and a commander of three different posts, and is a most entertaining man in all respects. E. W. L.

THE SUBURBAN RAILROAD.

A nice scheme was originated by the projectors of the "Suburban Railroad," to build a freight line from Newton Highlands to Belmont, to connect the New York & New England and the Boston & Maine railroad systems, and so closely was the secret kept that the bill had passed through several stages before its aim was detected by Representative Estabrook, who succeeded in having the matter laid over till Newton could be heard from. Those in charge of the bill were very indignant, of course, and the occurrence shows how easily any of the great railroad corporations can get what legislation they desire from our General Court, and what obedient servants they find among the members.

This freight railroad line, for instance, was drawn apparently to do as much damage as possible to Newton, and without consulting the Newton representatives, or even informing them of the project, certain members urged the passage of the bill by all means in their power. It is to run from Newton Highlands through Newton to the Watertown line, crossing Washington street near Bellevue, and seems to have been ingeniously designed to cross all the new parkways that have been projected or talked of. The east side of Bulboughs Pond, for which a boulevard has been planned, was to be seized, also the proposed Blake street between Homer and Mill, and the parkway between Mill and Cabot and Cabot street and Newtonville avenue. Crossing Washington street the road is to run along one side of Walnut park and through the proposed park on the site of Boyd's pond.

It would have been difficult to have conceived a route that would have blocked more effectively so many public improvements in Newton, or been of greater injury to the city.

Any one who knows what a nuisance the transfer freight line is to Cambridge can realize what a damage this road would be to Newton. It would have to be elevated, of course, and would cross a great number of the best streets, besides blocking the laying out of new streets through the vacant land it crosses. As it would be for freight purposes only, the road would be of no benefit to the city, and there would be nothing to compensate for the disfigurement of the landscape, the blocking up of so many streets, and the ruining of so many public improvements.

Without the evidence of the bill itself, and the quiet manner in which it has been smuggled into the legislature, it would be difficult to believe that the scheme was seriously contemplated. Newton people will owe a debt of gratitude to Representative Estabrook, if it is defeated, and the board of aldermen has adopted a strong remonstrance, which ought to have some effect on the legislature.

CLEAN SIDEWALKS.

The people of Ward One and Seven seem likely to have a chance to enjoy clean sidewalks another winter, provided the ordinance passed by the aldermen gets through the Common Council. The aldermen had quite a spirited debate upon the question, but Alderman Bothfield's strong presentation of the sentiment in the two wards had its effect.

It is curious how many objections can be urged against such an ordinance, which seem to be reasonable enough until they are subjected to a little investigation. It was urged that an ordinance compelling abutters to remove the snow upon their walks would be a great hardship upon the poor, and this did seem an objection until it was answered that such people removed the snow now in most cases and felt a pride in keeping their walks clear.

Alderman Roffe said in his ward the wealthy owners of long frontages on the streets would object strongly to being compelled to keep their sidewalks clear. Alderman Bothfield replied that such people in Wards One and Seven all favored the ordinance, a most commendable instance of public spirit, and it hardly seems possible that the people of Ward Six can be so different from their neighbors, they are so patriotic in other public improvements.

Alderman Thompson paid his respects to GRAPHIC, and said his gallantry would not permit him to vote for an ordinance compelling ladies who owned property to go out to find a man to clear their walks. But what of the hundreds of ladies who have to wade through such walks every day? Beside, most people engage a man in the fall to come at every storm and shovel snow.

It was urged also that the city ought to do this work, and pay for it out of the taxes, just as the streets are taken care of. This would seem to be an excellent arrangement, until Alderman Bothfield explained that it could not be done legally, the city having no right to use money for such a purpose.

Once let the matter be settled and Wards One and Seven enjoy clean sidewalks during the winter season, and it will not be long before the people of every ward will demand the same privileges. The expense is not a heavy one, when it comes to an actual experience of it, and if owners of large estates have not public spirit enough to do such work, they should be made to do so. They usually keep carriages and do not have to wade through the melting snow, but the great majority have to walk and they have a right to ask the city to take measures to keep the sidewalks passable, the same as is done in every other city in the state, and even in most of the towns.

The aldermen have again passed the order for the purchase of the Cladin land as an addition to the High school lot, and Alderman Thompson presented the strongest argument in its favor, when he said that more space is needed now to light the lower rooms, the line being now only 35 feet away and the trees making the rooms poorly lighted. If the land was sold and buildings erected the condition of things would be even worse, and the eyes of the pupils are of much more importance than a few dollars. He saw no occasion for any sectional feeling in the matter. Alderman Roffe said Newton Centre people could not forget that they had been badly treated by the removal of the school from this ward and the failure to keep the agreement for a free conveyance of their children. He was willing to vote for the purchase, provided the order was amended so that no addition to the High school should ever be built upon the land. Alderman Thompson said the idea of building upon the land had never been contemplated but he was opposed to the city saddling itself with any restrictions when buying land, as it was not a wise policy. The order passed, however, by a vote of six to one, and the common council will now have a chance to vote upon it again. The Auburndale and West Newton representatives will have a chance to explain their reasons for opposing it.

The Boston Herald on Wednesday evening gave an illustrated sketch of the women of Newton, the photographs being those of Mrs. Alvah Hovey, representing the Hospital Aid Association; Mrs. E. N. L. Walton, the Woman's Educational Club; Mrs. Kate L. Stevenson, the Woman's Christian Temperance Union; Miss Louise Imogen Guiney, the authoress; Mrs. Ada Langley Briggs, the Players Club; Mrs. Geo. H. Shapley, the amateur artists; Miss Clara Louise Bowers, the singers, and Miss C. Blanche Rice, the readers. The introduction paid a high tribute to the influence exerted on the city by its women, with sketches of the women's clubs, and interesting notices of the representative women whose portraits were given. Evidently a good deal of care was taken as the cuts were unusually good ones.

It is a very poor week when some new scheme for a boulevard in Newton does not come into notice. The latest is for a boulevard from Newton Centre to West Roxbury, by way of Dudley street, and a syndicate of capitalists is reported to be buying up the land and making arrangements for the development of the Oak Hill district, now composed mainly of farming land. Judging from the activity of these promoters, Newton has a great future before it, and these men show by their investments that they have a firm belief in such a future. Some predict that within ten years Newton will have a population of 50,000, and considering the rapid growth of Newton without any organized encouragement, the prediction does not seem improbable.

DR. C. F. CREHORE raises a very important question in another column, and one with which Newton will some time have to deal. That is, should not the water supply, fire department and police of towns which are intimately connected, be placed under one general management, like the Metropolitan park commission, or the sewerage commission, and would not such a measure be for the advantage of all concerned? The present method is an extravagant one for all concerned, and also greater efficiency at less expense could be secured by unity of action. The question is worth careful consideration.

The Board of Aldermen will have a special executive session next Monday evening, to discuss the druggists' licenses and possibly the street railway question may come up. The aldermen have found such a strong public sentiment against granting any more locations to street railways on our narrow streets that favorable action on any of the applications may be delayed until the streets are widened, and also until the legislature closes its session, and the character and scope of the many bills that get through the legislature are fully determined. Certainly nothing will be lost by a little delay.

The judiciary committee of the legislature gave another hearing on the sewer ordinance question, this week, and City Solicitor Slocum made an admirable presentation of the case, which seems to be very favorably regarded by the committee. Ward Six in its loyalty to a former leader sent Councilman Degen and R. M. Saltonstall to object to any change, and the only other objector was John Sturges Potter. The fact that the people of Newton voted so decidedly against the ordinance at the last election had apparently great weight with the committee, and they will probably recommend the legislation the majority desires.

The bill to allow the Newton & Boston street railway to increase its capital stock, issue bonds and do other things caused some debate in the House on Wednesday, one member arguing that it should be materially amended to restrict its power to unite with other companies. Finally Mr. Estabrook's amendment to limit the total stock to $25,000 a mile was adopted and the bill ordered to a third reading.

PEOPLE who live on corner lots are having the pleasure of seeing their sewer assessments reduced, owing to the exemptions made by the last sewer ordinance.

POLITICAL BOUNDARIES

NOT WELL ADAPTED FOR LIMITING THE CONTROL OF PUBLIC WORKS.

In conversation with a friend the other day two subjects came up, one, the transfer of the street railroad locations to the "Boulevard Commission"—the other the forthcoming report of the commission upon grade crossings. We agreed that both of these problems should have been placed in the hands of a metropolitan commission like that of the sewerage commission, the park commission or the railroad commission.

The fact is that the settlement of this portion of the state has led to aggregations of populations each with its own needs and requirements, and that these are largely independent of political, municipal and town boundaries.

In early times these boundaries enclosed fairly homogeneous populations who had only local interests to act upon, and which were for the most part separated from adjoining towns by sparsely settled areas. Their intercommunication was by means of highways under the control of a county board. The advent of steam railways did not change much this condition of things, and not until the introduction of water supplies, street railways, fire departments and the like was there any need of raising the question which is indicated in the title.

To-day the problem is different. Many of our villages are more intimately connected with those of adjoining towns than with other villages within their town or city limits.

If we follow the boundary of Newton, we have Chestnut Hill in everything but political matters, a part of Brookline. Ward Seven adjoins the Brighton district of Boston, and has practically the same requirements. Ward One and Watertown are thoroughly intermixed, and West Newton and Waltham are in much the same situation. Auburndale is the post-office and railway station for a considerable portion of Weston, and the Lower Falls is one village with the opposite side of the river in Wellesley. The Upper Falls has less intimate relations with Needham, but sometime a village will grow upon that side of the river which will have interests identical with the Upper Falls.

Now at each of the points which I have indicated there are found other, like outposts at European boundaries, water service and fire hydrants, distinct fire departments, separate police organizations. Is this business-like?

Wellesley with its reservoir on the hill and a charter right to take all the water of Charles River and peddle it out to other towns, could supply all the towns named without difficulty (in fact but for these bothersome political boundaries the cost of high service in Newton might have been reduced by taking that portion from the Wellesley works), and a board and officials such as we have in Newton could manage and direct the whole distribution without incurring very much to the labor they now give to that portion of it.

So the fire departments should be consolidated and placed under a central authority. The material should be distributed to protect the centres where fire risks are, as it were, concentrated without reference to boundary lines.

There would be many advantages in extending the powers of at least a portion of the police force over wider areas, and they could work more effectively in dealing with detective work.

The sewerage commission and the state park commission are already in existence and have proved their value. Would it not be well to apply similar control to the water supply, fire departments and police over large districts?

All street railways should be under the control (as far as steam railroads are), of the railroad commission or one especially formed for the purpose, and should in some way be made to pay a fair rental for the use of the streets.

It seems to me that it is time to consider whether we can afford to go on much longer with our present system—in fact that we have already gone on too long for a wise economy.

C. F. CREHORE.

LIVING WHIST.

A BEAUTIFUL EXHIBITION FOR THE BENEFIT OF THE HOSPITAL.

The game of living whist, arranged and directed by Miss Rose I. Byrne, was presented in the City Hall, Tuesday evening. It brought out one of the largest and most notable audiences of the season, and was a social occasion of more than ordinary interest. The players were Miss M. B. Forbes, Miss M. P. Fenno, Miss M. P. Metcalf and Miss N. M. Fenno.

The order of the game included the shuffle, cut, deal, arrangement of cards by the players and the play. It introduced some very pretty marching and dancing, the latter featuring comprising the minuet, society Berlin, "La Chasse," hornpipe, Highland reel, the skaters, "Cachucha," "Pandang," jockey, Dutch and medley.

The costuming was very elaborate, and the children who participated were the recipients of many congratulations.

The list of cards is appended:
Mollie Coxeter, Eight of Diamonds;
Roy Brewer, Nine of Clubs; Leslie Carter, Queen of Clubs; Rosamond Clark, Two of Hearts; Bertha Hackett, Ace of Diamonds; Harry Hall, Three of Hearts; Ernest Adams, Four of Hearts; Ralph Proctor, Ten of Diamonds; Hayward Rolfe, King of Spades; Stanley Holmes, Four of Spades; Lacy Clark, Jack of Diamonds; L. Hartshorn, Seven of Spades; Robert French, Seven of Diamonds; Alice Wakfield, Ace of Clubs; Rosa Morse, Four of Clubs; Erskine Noyes, King of Hearts; George Griffin, Five of Spades; Elsie Clapp, Queen of Hearts; Hattie Willey, Eight of Hearts; Mary Hollings, Seven of Clubs; Eva Clark, Ace of Spades; Fannie Jones, Six of Spades; Alice Clark, Eight of Spades; Ethel Noyes, Ten of Clubs; Agnes Slocum, Nine of Hearts; Morton Kimball, King of Diamonds; Helen Kimball, Two of Clubs; Ogden Adams, King of Clubs; Cora Mullen, Five of Hearts; Bessie Hartshorn, Five of Diamonds; Sadie Bailey, Six of Hearts; Lucia Proctor, Seven of Hearts; Linda Davis, Three of Clubs; Ruby Macdonald, Nine of Spades; Grace Griffin, Queen of Spades; Maude Fenno, Six of Diamonds; Mildred Fenno, Eight of Clubs; Margery Carter, Nine of Diamonds.

Much of the success of the presentation is due to the work of Mrs. James W. Fenno, who headed the committee of arrangements.

The committee may decide to repeat the entertainment next week as many requests have been made for a reproduction.

—Henry H. Hunt, Chairman; Darius R. Emerson, Henry Tolman, Frederic W. Turner, Edward P. Hatch, Joint Standing Committee on Sewers. ALBERT F. NOYES, City Engineer.

City Hall, West Newton, Mass., April 15, 1893.

Sealed proposals for furnishing about 200,000 feet of salt glazed vitrified sewer pipe and specials from four (4) to twenty (20) inches in diameter, about 4000 barrels of American Cement, about 1000 barrels of Portland Cement, and 20 cast-iron manhole covers, will be received at the office of the City Engineer, City Hall, West Newton, Mass., until Friday, May 5, 1893, at 12 o'clock M. The award of the contract, if awarded, will be made by the Joint Standing Committee on Sewers as soon thereafter as practicable. All proposals must be on a blank form furnished by said Committee and must be accompanied by a certified check upon a National Bank of the Cities of Newton or Boston drawn and made payable to the order of the Treasurer of the City of Newton, for $200. Specifications and all forms of contract can be obtained at the office of the City Engineer. The Committee reserves the right to reject any and all bids if they deem it to the interests of the City of Newton, so to do.

—The violin pupils of Mr. S. E. Goldstein are preparing a musicale to be given next Tuesday evening in Auburn hall. This promises to be a very enjoyable affair, and it being the intention to give pleasure to as many people as possible, any not receiving cards of admission, and who would like to attend, may do so by sending word to Mrs. A. F. Noyes or Mrs. H. R. Turner.

—In the group of ladies prominent in literary and social life in this city, whom we print in the evening Herald of Wednesday appeared the well known faces of Mrs. Ada L. Briggs and Miss Louise Imogen Guiney of this ward, and interesting personal sketches of their work and life.

—Mr. D. Brooks Garney of Auburndale had a very unpleasant experience while spending the night in Boston, being shut up in a folding bed, which caught him in the "fold" the bed coming down on his neck and shoulders and locking him in as completely as if it had been done purposely. His arms are almost completely paralyzed, and he is unable to move his head or twist his neck in any direction. Mr. Garney was taken to the Homeopathic Hospital, where he is reported as being in a comfortable condition, although his injuries are of a dangerous nature.

—A meeting of the Christian Endeavor Union was held Monday evening at the handsome chapel of the Congregational church. There were delegations present from all the Endeavor societies making a very large and exceedingly interesting meeting. President H. M. Greenough presided and was assisted in the exercises by Mr. Hume, President of the Auburndale Christian Endeavor society. Papers on work performed were read from the various committees by different delegates, and a short interval for discussion allowed after each paper. Prof. Welles, assistant editor of the Golden Rule, was present and helped with his suggestions in the discussions.

LASSELL NOTES.

—The usual number of Lasell students attended the Saturday evening Symphony concert.

A SON'S WISH.

Mother, in the lonely ways
Of the home land whence I came,
Where you walk the world apart,
Without fear and without blame,
Keep me ever in thine eye,
As the hills their morning star,
Though I pass into the day,
Where my toiling fellows are,
Keep me ever in thy heart,
With the old remembered things,
Till for me there be no more
April when the robin sings,
Keep me ever in thy prayers,
That at midnight or at noon,
When God needs a man in haste,
He may not forget thy son,
—Bliss Carman in Youth's Companion.

MY AUNT'S EARRINGS.

Detective stories have always been my favorite form of literature. I have read many and have gained from them a thorough contempt for probability and the police. The first thing you should do when a crime has been committed, as I often said to Uncle Poffkins, is to suspect the most unlikely man as being the criminal.

That was the course I adopted when Aunt Poffkins' earrings were stolen. It was in the morning when the theft was discovered. Aunt came down late and ran into the room where Uncle Poffkins, Dora and I were breakfasting. My aunt bore traces of strong agitation, and she had forgotten her cap.

"My earrings!" she cried. "They are gone—they are stolen!"
"God bless my soul!" exclaimed Uncle Poffkins, dropping his teacup as if he had been shot and leaping up with a yell of pain. He said the yell was attributed to the heat of the tea, which was trickling down his legs.

My aunt explained. The earrings were kept wrapped in cotton wool in a jewel box on her dressing table. The box was never locked, and the housemaid had access to the room. The girl had only been in the house a week and was known to have a bean. My aunt and cousin at once concluded she was the thief and sent for a policeman, who searched her trunk and found nothing, of course. I could have told them that.

Meanwhile I kept my eye on Uncle Poffkins. He was the one person who could have no motive whatever in stealing the earrings. He was very rich, most respectable and extremely slow and noisy in his movements. Moreover, my aunt would have given him the earrings at any moment if he had asked for them. Evidently he was the last man to attract suspicion. Accordingly I watched Uncle Poffkins closely.

We passed a week of excitement. The police were running out and in. Dora cross examined the housemaid incessantly. Aunt Poffkins went abroad weeping and reminding every one she met that the earrings were a present from Uncle Poffkins on the occasion of their engagement.

My uncle himself affected to make light of the matter and went so far as loudly and ostentatiously to curse the earrings. He was wrong if he thought he could put me off the scent by that clumsy maneuver. I never left him alone. I tracked him to the city, hung about all the morning, shadowed him when he went to lunch, when he returned, when he crossed over to the exchange.

Unknown to him I was on his bus—inside if he rode on the top, and on top when it rained and he stowed himself away inside. He never escaped me except when he was in his office. At last, after 10 days' weary chasing, I was rewarded. I need not say that the police had discovered nothing. The house was still topey turvy and my aunt subject to intermittent hysterics.

That wronged creature, the housemaid, did her work with a mop in one hand and in the other a handkerchief, wet with innocent tears. But to return to Uncle Poffkins. The tenth day after the earrings had disappeared, as he was brushing his hat before leaving the house and looking at my aunt's tear bedewed visage, his conscience smote him, and he so far forgot himself as to exclaim audibly:

"I'm blamed if I can stand this any longer!" The folly of the man was incredible. I had him now! In an instant I was after him. He took a bus, I took a cab, and we started for the city. Now came the odd thing—Uncle Poffkins disappeared.

How it happened I do not know, but when the bus pulled up to the bank Uncle Poffkins was not to be seen. I questioned the conductor, but he had evidently been bribed and told me very rudely that he had something better to do than answer my riddles. He drove on, and I was left for the first time at fault.

It was evening before I saw Uncle Poffkins. I was going home in a very disconsolate state, when, about 200 yards from our gate, I espied him ahead of me. Quickening my pace, I stealthily approached him. He opened the gate and passed in; noiselessly I followed him.

A little farther on, sheltered by the shrubbery, he stopped, and after a stealthy glance toward the house took from his coat pocket a small morocco case. I stood on tiptoe just behind, and with mingled horror and satisfaction as I looked over his shoulder I saw the earrings! I was right. Uncle Poffkins sighed.

"Shall I give 'em to her or not?" he said to himself. "It's rank waste. Still, it will keep her quiet." I watched the struggle between his good and his evil angel. Clearly the good angel had triumphed so far as to bring the earrings within 50 yards of Aunt Poffkins, but now came the tug of war. It was severe, and it ended in the victory of evil. Uncle Poffkins, shutting the case with a snap, exclaimed:

"It's all blamed nonsense! I'll take 'em back to Abraham tomorrow." Abraham no doubt was the receiver, for my uncle went on in a satisfied tone:
"He'll make no trouble about taking 'em." He was putting the case into his pocket when my feeling overcame me. Respect for one's elderly relatives is a praiseworthy feeling, but it must not be allowed to override higher duties. I flung myself on Uncle Poffkins, crying: "Surrender! You cannot escape me!" My uncle fell heavily on the gravel path. I fell heavily on the top of him and pinned his arms to the ground.

"Tom!" he exclaimed, "what the mischief—are you drunk?"
"It is useless, sir," I began, "to affect ignorance—I had reached this point when I was violently collared from behind, lifted bodily off my uncle's chest, where I had been sitting, and was deposited on a grass plat, while a deep voice said in my ears:

"Now, then, young man, turn it up. You're a lively un, you are. First your aunt and now your uncle." The newcomer was a policeman. From his pocket he produced a pair of handcuffs and put them on my unresisting wrists. Then I found my voice.

"What are you handcuffing me for?" I demanded. "There's the thief!"
"Gammon!" said he, grinning.

"Why, you fool, there's the property," said I. He looked and saw the earrings lying on the ground by Uncle Poffkins. An expression of bewilderment over spread the officer's face as groping again in his pockets he brought forth a pair of earrings. Then gazing at the pair in his hand to the other pair on the ground he ejaculated softly, and to my ears at least mysteriously:

"These earrings in my 'and was found in your drawer, young man, wrapped in cotton wool. 'Ow do you account for that?"

"Those on the ground," I retorted, "were found in Mr. Poffkins' pocket. How do you account for that?" He shook his head sadly. Then he suddenly brightened up. He had an idea. He produced another pair of handcuffs, clapped them on my uncle's hands and cried cheerfully:

"We can't be wrong now, can we? March!" So Uncle Poffkins and I marched, the policeman between us, with a hold on each of our collars, and in this predicament we were presented to Aunt Poffkins, to Dora and to the housemaid. The housemaid giggled considerably, for which, under the circumstances, one could hardly blame her.

Aunt Poffkins experienced a relapse and Dora alone was equal to the situation. She made us sit down and gave us each a glass of sherry. Then the recriminations began. Uncle Poffkins declared his earrings were not the stolen pair. Distressed at my aunt's sorrow, he had gone to the jeweler's and bought her a similar pair. They cost 80 guineas. The struggle I had witnessed was between love and economy, not honesty and crime.

I swore that the earrings found in my bureau had not been placed there by me. "And you are both quite right," said Dora. "Uncle's earrings are not the stolen ones. Tom, do you remember having the toothache?" It was clear to me in a moment. I had asked for cotton wool, and had been directed to my aunt's jewel box and from it grabbed a large handful and carried it to my room. Then on reflection I had tried bravely instead of laudanum, and the cotton wool was thrust into the drawer. The earrings had been buried in the cotton wool.

"So you were the thief yourself!" laughed Dora. It was true.
If only I had strictly followed out what my reading had taught me! For improbable as it was that I should think Uncle Poffkins guilty, it would have been still more improbable had I fixed the crime on myself. I lacked the full courage of my principles, and the result is Uncle Poffkins and I do not speak.—St. James Budget.

The Injustice of Dower Distribution.
The injustice to woman in the common law rule of distribution of dower when real estate is turned into money for division among heirs was recently painfully impressed in a Michigan case. A couple had started in life 25 years ago having very limited means. The wife was the more robust physically and at ways of essential support to the husband in his business cares, besides discharging with ability and devotion her duties as mother and homemaker. They possessed a competence at the husband's death. The widow and two minor children survived. They wished to sell a piece of land that had been entirely unproductive up to the death, but at that time there was an inquiry to purchase.

To enable a sale of this land out of the intestate estate the probate court expense was $50, or only $10 less than the share allotted to the widow on the basis of her probable life yet to be, while each of the minor children, quite incompetent to handle money in business, received $195, or three and a quarter times as much as the mother, a prudent business woman.—Woman's Tribune.

Novel Anchors.
The British steamer Bawmure now discharging coal at Mission No. 2, has a novelty aboard in the shape of a stockless anchor. In fact, she has two of them, and they are hauled up "chock a block" to the hawse holes in a way to make a sailor feel like kicking himself for all the risks he has run in the way of catting and fishing anchors in years gone by. The anchor has no stock and no flukes. It consists of a heavy semicircular mass of metal fastened directly to the chain and furnished with two attachments very similar to the old time flukes, but twisted like the flanges of a screw propeller. The anchor can be let go and grounded inside of 10 seconds and hoisted in less than half a minute. It will take hold of the hardest bottom, and the anchors, starboard and port, will keep a ship in position in the worst weather.—San Francisco Call.

Distance Traveled by Odors.
As an illustration of the distance odors are carried it is noteworthy that the fumes and exhalations from the sulphur springs of Colorado can be distinguished at a distance of fully 20 miles. The delicious perfume of the forests of Ceylon is carried by the wind 25 miles out to sea, while in foggy weather travelers 100 miles from the land have recognized their proximity to the coast of Columbia by the sweet smell brought them on a breeze from the shore.—Exchange.

Wheezy Hand Organs.
It is usually supposed that the faint and squeaky hand organs played by woe-filled old women, seated on curbstones and wrapped in shawls, are decrepit from long service in the cause of art. That is not the case. Their builders intentionally leave out notes, so that they shall sound more mournful and touch more quickly the sensibilities of some people. Organs of this kind are known as "wheezyers."—New York Sun.

The Ruling Passion.

"The most remarkable instance I ever heard of, and which illustrates so forcibly the ruling passion," said Judge Jeff Pollard to The Man About Town, "was a case in which I figured last week. I was called to write a will for a gentleman in this city, then on his deathbed. He was always a cautious, economical man, and had accumulated some property and money. After the death of the owner there were several heirs to the property, all of whom were anxious to have the sick man make a will dividing it as he saw proper.

"I called at the house and the will was duly written and signed by the old man, who was held in the arms of his friends while the trembling hand traced his name upon the paper. After he was laid upon the bed he motioned me to hold my head so I could understand him, and in a piping, tremulous voice he asked, 'What do you charge?'
"A voice at my elbow said softly, 'Tell him a dollar or two.'

"A dollar or two," I shouted in his ear. (He was very deaf.) 'All right,' said he, 'if it had cost any more I wouldn't a-had it done,' he gasped. The death rattle had already begun in his throat. His fingers were purple and the shades of death were already settling upon his face; yet with all this, his greed was as manifest as when most busy in the accumulation of the property.

"I got my $10, though," said the judge, "but he never would have paid me more than $1."—St. Louis Republic.

The English Language.

Professor Vamberg has been lecturing on the "Fashion of Languages" before the Buda-Pesth English club. English, he said, may now be called the most fashionable language in all the five parts of the world. It began to spread in the first decades of the century through English literature, and in Asia by means of accelerated communication. Steamers were the wings of the English language in the far east, and its spreading from India and the straits settlements to China and Japan is simply miraculous.

There is no exaggeration in saying that the number of English speaking Asiatics amounts today to 3,000,000; that of Europeans to more than 1,000,000, and these, added to the 126,000,000 Anglo-Saxons, give a total of English speaking men and women of 130,000,000. Should the increase continue in the same proportion, the middle of next century will have 200,000,000 English speaking persons, and the English will have no rival in the world besides the Chinese.

Phonetically English is unsuitable for the foreigner, and the lecturer declares he always suffered acute pain in the jaws when speaking publicly in England and trying to imitate genuine English. The phonetic difficulties are, however, amply rewarded through the expressiveness, the rare precision, vigor and exactness in which English surpasses all other European tongues.—London News.

Making Diamonds.

The microscopic diamonds made by M. Henri Moissan are not the first real diamonds made by the chemist. Some years ago Mr. Hannay of Glasgow succeeded in making a few small gems, and another Glasgow chemist not long ago announced that he was making experiments in this direction and had obtained promising results.

Moissan, however, was the first to form a gem by means of the high temperature of the electric furnace, though the idea of doing so is not exactly novel. Moissan obtains a temperature of from 3,000 to 4,000 degrees centigrade in his electric crucible and fuses iron or silver, which absorbs the carbon of sugar. When the fused metal cools, part of the carbon separates from it again in the form of crystals, black or white—that is to say, black diamond or carbonado and ordinary, clear diamond.

The crystallization seems to be facilitated by pressure, which is produced by the expansion of the sugar carbon as it cools. The diamond crystals were exceedingly minute and quite unfit for jewelry. Moreover, the process is very expensive.—Manchester Times.

Getting Measured For a Gun.

A fact which is not generally known outside of sporting circles is that a gunner who seeks to do the best work he is capable of requires to be measured for his gun in the same way as he would be for his suit of clothes. To facilitate this operation, a new adjusting gun has been devised. The bend and castoff of the gun are adjusted by means of screws, and the points of each are placed in grooves running parallel to the line of the butt. The length of the butt is also adjusted by screws in the heel. The length and bend of the stock can in this way be regulated to the length of neck and arm of the shooter, as well as to the various special requirements to which his style of shooting may give rise.—Boston Journal.

Family Parties.

A shrewd Cape Cod farmer descending lately on family quarrels said: "I'm of the opinion of my wife. 'Go to a family party?' she says. 'Yes, I always go, provided it isn't in my own family.' The reason of them family rows is that the live too close and rub again each other too much. There was the Wings down our way. They fought continually as long as they lived under one roof, but when John Wing went to ranch in Colorado and Jim Wing to makin' nails in Pennsylvania they grew amazin' fond of each other."

This homely philosophy could be applied with equal force to nations.—Youth's Companion.

Dancing and Early Art.

It may create some surprise that we regard the dance as the earliest form of art, or even that we allow it any place among the fine arts. To many it will seem a kind of sacrilege to combine in the same category, however broad, such extremes as a dancing savage and a painting of the last judgment, and if the connection must be made some would choose to make it along other lines than those of art. But, in truth, the dance supplies us with the key, so to speak, of the development of the fine arts.—David J. Hill in Popular Science Monthly.

The Value of Women According to Sages.
"He who builds a house and takes a wife heaps heavy afflictions on his head," declares some Hindoo sage. Their relative value is fixed by other proverbs, such as the Venetian's, "If woman were of gold, she wouldn't be worth a farthing."

Canker in the Throat and Stomach—Headaches—Cured by HOOD'S.

"Thinking my testimonial may be of help to some suffering as I have, I want to write what Hood's Sarsaparilla has done for me. A few years ago I was obliged to give up a good position on account of canker in my mouth, throat and stomach, causing me such agony I Could Not Eat, Sleep or Talk in comfort. After over a year of such suffering with canker and of a scrofulous trouble, a friend urged me to take Hood's Sarsaparilla,

Hood's Cures
which he believed saved his life. I began to take the medicine; in three days I was very much better, and after taking two bottles was Entirely Cured of the Canker and never was troubled again with it. I also improved very much in general health. Hood's Sarsaparilla gave me a good appetite, kept the bowels in good condition, gave me good sleep at night. I have also been subject from childhood to Severe Headaches, but now when I have one coming on, I can break it up in two hours by taking a few drops of Hood's Sarsaparilla every twenty minutes. Since taking Hood's Sarsaparilla I do not have that tired feeling and can eat three square meals a day, and all kinds of food without any bad feelings afterward. I can honestly recommend it as an honest medicine, and advise all to try it." ESTELLA S. STEWART, 118 Quincy Street, Springfield, Mass.

BOSTON AMUSEMENTS.

GRAND OPERA HOUSE.—The new stock company at this theatre will next week
present Dickens' immortal story "Oliver Twist," and Miss Annie Clarke and Mr.
Charles Barron will appear in the roles of Nancy and Bill Sykes. In presenting this play to the public the management of the theatre announce that it will be a greater spectacle, scenically, than has ever been shown in this city. For weeks the Artist Broker has been at work on the scenery and he will not have finished his work until the latter part of this week.
Among the especially notable scenes will be one representing London Bridge. To set this piece requires the entire stage,
and is one of the heaviest stage settings ever placed in a Boston theatre. Another feature, not only new to Boston,
but in fact to America, will be the house
top scene. That charming little child actress, Miss Lillian Masterson, will play Oliver Twist, and if she is anywhere near as good in this character as she is as Little Lord Fauntleroy she will make a decided hit. Mr. Frank J. Keenan will appear as Fagan, Mr. Justin Adams as Bumble, Mr. Thomas Chapman as the Artful Dodger, Mr. Edward Wade as Mr.
Brownlow, Miss Emma Barnes as Rose
Mally, Mr. Charles H. Barrymore as Toby Cricket. When Mr. Charles Dickson comes to the Grand Opera House following "Oliver Twist," with his comedy success, "Innocent," he will present for the first time in Boston a new curtain raiser
called "The Salt Cellar."

HOLLIS STREET THEATRE.—Monday evening, April 24, at the Hollis Street Theatre, Boston will have an opportunity of seeing for the first time Bronson Howard's latest play, "Aristocracy," which has enjoyed a long run in New York City. Charles Frohman and Al
Hayman have given it a splendid cast.
The leading man is Walton Lackaye,
whose work is always most finished.
Frederick Bond and S. Miller Kent, are also in the cast. Of the ladies, Miss Viola Allen, Josephine Hall and Helen Tracy are the best known. Miss Blanche Walsh, a newcomer, has a leading role.
The story is that of an American grown suddenly rich who desires to enter the first social circles of Gotham and seeks to do so by purchasing admission of a European castle. He succeeds through the connivance of a number of impudent noblemen. Mr. Howard's idea is to point out the folly of marrying American heiresses to cheap titles. His play is a satire upon American society,
so-called, at times bitter and biting. It is promised that the play will be handsomer staged and superbly costumed by the ladies.

COLUMBIA THEATRE.—The career of
"The Isle of Champagne" and "Thomas Q. Seabrooke" at the Columbia seems to be peculiarly a happy one, and it will undoubtedly remain in its present home until the end of the season. The fourth week of Mr. Seabrooke and his clever associates will begin on April 24, and the indications are that the sparkling humor
of the piece will attract ever larger audiences than ever. The advance sale shows a steady demand for seats and each evening by the time the curtain

goes up, the standing room sign is displayed, with the house packed to the doors. Mr. Seabrooke's success is largely due to his own artistic ability and the careful watch he exercises over the opera
to prevent any part from running down or becoming lax. His own work of the most painstaking description and the result has been success.

GLOBE THEATRE.—The attraction at the Globe Theatre next week will be Ramsay Morris' Comedy Company, in
"Joseph." The organization comes direct from the Union Square Theatre,
New York, where it has just completed
a four weeks' brilliant engagement. It is one of the strongest combinations that has been seen in Boston for a long time,
and comes with the highest endorsements of the New York critics.
"Joseph," the comedy in which they will be seen, is tremendously funny, and has already passed its nine hundredth night in Paris. It is filled with ludicrous situations and amusing lines. There is not a dull moment in it. Among the ladies are Elsie de Wolfe, who makes her first appearance this season in comedy;
she is the latest of New York's four hundred to forsake fashionable life for the stage, and created a sensation last season by so doing. "Joseph" will be presented exactly as it was in New York, with all the scenery, effects, etc. The costumes of the ladies are all the latest designs of Worth, and are bound to create a sensation. The engagement is for one week only.

BOWDOIN SQUARE THEATRE.—The revival of the popular melodrama "The Stowaway," by the Litt and Davis Company at the Bowdoin Square Theatre the coming week, will be made a notable event in this class of productions. The drama is full of exciting scenes and incidents, with realistic features of the most fascinating character. The cracking of the safe by "Spike" Hennessy, known as the "Beau Brummel of Burglars," is still among the strong attractions of the play, and there are many features of the drama which easily explain its great popularity. It is to be given for only a single week and will be followed by the appearance of James O'Neill in his great impersonations which have given him a national fame.

PARK THEATRE.—Hoyt's, "A Temperance Town," entered on its 20th week
last Monday at the Park Theatre, and was played before a crowded house.
The announcement that this attraction
will now surely remain but five weeks
more has already had its effect, and the grand rush to the box office indicates that these five weeks will be the most phenomenal of the entire engagement.
The management of the Park Theatre and Messrs. Hoyt & Thomas promise a genuine surprise to their patrons on the occasion of the 150th performance of "A Temperance Town," which takes place May 1st. Seats can now be secured for that performance.

Death of L. M. Pinkham.

The death of Mr. L. M. Pinkham by his own hand Friday was a great shock to his friends and the community in which he lived. His recent marriage had given him great happiness, but within the last few days he had received news
of some threatened losses and great mental depression resulted. The fact that many years ago similar fear had nearly unbalanced his mind and led to his treatment for some months in a retreat in Connecticut, of course led the few who knew this fact to fear for his present condition. On Friday morning he left home evidently greatly troubled and failed to return at night. Search having been instituted he was found Saturday morning in East Watertown, death having resulted from a revolver wound. He leaves a widow and two sons, one of whom is Mr. L. E. Pinkham, at present in Honolulu.

Deceased was 70 years of age and a bookbinder by trade. Soon after moving to Newton he became a partner with H. M. Stimpson, and was for several years financial manager of the Newton Journal. For several years he has conducted a bookbinder at 17 Province court, Boston. He had twice been married, the second ceremony having been performed about three weeks since.
Deceased left his office in Boston Friday noon, saying: "I am going to East Cambridge and may not come back again." Little heed was taken of the words, the person to whom they were addressed thinking that Mr. Pinkham merely meant that he would not return until Saturday morning. Later in the afternoon he was noticed about Mr. F.
D. Sawin's place on Elm avenue, East
Watertown, but, although his actions caused some comment, they were not investigated.

The body was found about 11 o'clock
Saturday morning in a small outbuilding,
and a revolver clutched in the right hand showed the cause of death, which was instantaneous, from a wound at the base of the skull.

The funeral services took place from his late residence on Richardson street
Tuesday afternoon. There was a large attendance at the services, which were conducted by Rev. G. A. Merrill. Selections were rendered by a mixed quartet.
There were several beautiful floral pieces including a closed book and a large wreath from the employees of the deceased. The remains were interred Wednesday in the Worcester cemetery.

BOOKS AND MAGAZINES.

CHILDREN OF DESTINY

by Molly Elliot Seawell is a novel with a great abundance of "irrigating" character and scenery. The story is the best, and some of the characters will make a strong impression on the reader. Richard Skelton, the owner of Deerchase, a magnificent country estate, is rather of a woman's hero, with the usual dark beauty and mystery in his past, but he is nevertheless a good deal of a man, and the development of his love story is followed with a good deal of interest. Like other men he cannot escape his destiny, but fortunately it finds him at one of his best moments. The heroine is a healthy and sensible young woman, who owes much of her excellence to the example of her mother, as the latter showed her what to avoid. The mysterious young son of Skelton, Jack Blair and his wife, and even Bulstrode in his moments of inspiration are people one would like to know,
so that the book is well worth reading.

DR. PAUL'S THEORY

is a very curious romance by Mrs. A. M.
Diehl, whose people are rather given to metaphysical meditations about affinities,
and the old theory of the transmigration
of souls is revived in a modern form and seems to be the theory Dr. Paul has got hold of. It is most certainly have been rather startling to Dr. Paul to have his wife reappear some twenty years after her death in the person of the wife of a Spanish nobleman, and it was little wonder that he became somewhat abstracted

in mind. As pure speculation, the story is not without interest, but the reader
must be prepared for rather startling
deviations from the events that happen to ordinary mortals, although this is doubtless permitted in a romance. D.

Rushing Work on the Waltham Bicycle Track.

Work on the construction of the Waltham Bicycle Park has commenced and a singular activity is being manifested on the track of ground that is destined to have the fastest bicycle track in the world. Owing to the bad weather of late which has prevented the surveyors from completing their work the contractors have been somewhat delayed in commencing active work, but now under the direction of Contractor Cole the work will be pushed forward with all possible speed. A big gang of laborers are at work as the contract calls for the completion of the work by May 20. This will allow the opening of the track on May 30 with some of the best races that have ever been held in this section of the country. The Associated Cycling Clubs have appointed officers to look after the preliminaries. H. W. Robinson will be the referee and the following other officials will have charge on Decoration
Day: Judge Abbott Bassett, George A.
Perkins; starter, A. D. Peck; clerk of course, W. S. Duane; assistants, E. P.
Rowe, W. A. Rowe, E. C. Wade, A. J.
Ochs; umpires, Charles Kennard, John Graham, W. T. Gill; scorers, George
Fogg, W. W. Starbird, F. E. Swan, A. R.
Kettle. Already the committees have commenced their work and the prizes
that will be offered will be the best that have been contested for in this state. The best riders in the profession have been seen and they promise to be present, which ensures a large field of starters and a lot of hotly contested races. The opening of the track at Waltham promises to be a grand one and every rider in the state will be interested.

Newton Woman Suffrage Association.

A meeting under the auspices of the N. W. S. A. was held in the Chapel of Lassell Seminary, Auburndale, on Tuesday evening, April 18th. An audience of two hundred and fifty, including a large delegation of the Seminary girls, listened with deep interest to that gracious and winning lady, who has been so long and faithfully allied to this cause, Mrs. Lucy Stone. She traced the growth of educational and other advantages to women,
and inspired the enthusiasm of the young people, who heard, many of them for the first time, of "the struggles which make their paths so much easier than those their mothers trod."

Mr. Edwin Kimball followed, with allusions to the biographical sketch of Mrs. Stone, in the Woman's Journal of April 15th. He also pleaded the worth of woman's voice in all matters pertaining to education, temperance, social purity and good government. Mr. Blackwell followed with an amusing account of his reasons for becoming a worker in this reform. Senator Gilman, Representative Howard with Mr. Bragdon, gave their eloquent in favor of the full suffrage,
and the girls sent us home with "The Battle Hymn of the Republic" ringing
in our ears. L. A. CHAPMAN, Sec.

If you are tired and never hungry, Hood's Sarsaparilla will make you feel strong and well,
and give you a hearty appetite.

I have not used one bottle yet. I suffered from catarrh for twelve years, experiencing the unpleasant dropping in the throat peculiar to that disease, and nose bled almost daily. I tried various remedies without benefit until last April, when I saw Ely's Cream Balm advertised in the Boston Budget. I procured a bottle, and since the first day's use have had no more bleeding—the soreness is entirely gone.—D. G.

Children Cry for Pitcher's Castoria.

Just Married.

How loving they are; this is always a sure sign. After the first year sometimes it don't hold good. When Charles comes home to you grumpy and cross, snapping and snarling, unable to relish the nice dinner you have cooked, and feels as if there was a ton of pig iron in his stomach, he is troubled with dyspepsia, and Sulphur Bitters is the only medicine that will cure him.

Strongly Endorsed.

The advertising of Hood's Sarsaparilla appeals to the sober, common sense of thinking people, because it is true; and it is always fully substantiated by endorsements which in the financial world would be accepted without a moment's hesitation. They tell the story—
HOOD'S CURES.

Hood's Pills cure liver ills, jaundice, biliousness, sick headache, constipation.

$100 Reward $100.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

—The residence of Mr. L. W. King, Dedham street, in the Oak Hill district, was entered early Sunday morning by forcing a rear window. A watch, chain, and other articles of silver were stolen, the whole valued at about $250.

—The ladies of the Unitarian Society are making active preparations for their annual May festival in the attractive entertainment rooms of the church. The May pole dance will as heretofore be given by the little children, and their older sisters will go through the evolutions of the graceful hoop-drill. On the first evening a charming Cantata in costume will be presented, which will be decidedly unique. In addition to these stage attractions a sale table covered with dainty and serviceable articles and presided over by some of the young members of the society, will be found a very fascinating spot.

—The Unitarian church parlor wore its most attractive appearance on Wednesday afternoon, on the occasion of the appearance there of Mrs. Julia Ward Howe, who delivered one of her characteristic addresses under the auspices of the Stebbins Alliance, before an audience composed of more than two hundred ladies who gladly avail themselves of the opportunity to hear Mrs. Howe. She spoke with all the earnestness and depth of feeling that has always made her the marked woman she is in this century. At the close of her address a few remarks were felicitously made by Mrs. George A. Walton of West Newton. A reception followed, when a dainty collation was served from the tables most attractively spread. The ladies of the Stebbins Alliance have cause for congratulation upon the success of the whole afternoon.

—The laying of the tracks of the Newton Centre branch of the Newton & Boston Street Railway Co. was commenced Tuesday morning, the workmen starting in on Beacon street opposite Institution avenue. There is a gang of thirty or more employed and the work is being pushed forward rapidly, and with the present force the road should be finished to Walnut street within four weeks. The cars to be used are all ready so no delay will be necessary after the road is complete. It is the present intention of the railway company to operate the cars on a twenty minute schedule between Newton Centre and Newtonville, and these cars with those now running on the same time to the Highlands will provide a ten minute schedule between Homer street and Newtonville. The rails are now being laid on Summer street.

—The Rev. Lennel C. Barnes read his resignation as pastor of the Baptist church, at the close of the morning service, last Sunday. To many the announcement came as a surprise, and to all it must come with a saddening effect, for Mr. Barnes is greatly beloved and appreciated not only by his own people but by all who know him. The call to which he responds comes from his former church at Pittsburg, Pa., where he was extremely popular, and from which church he had several requests to return since his installation here. Mr. Barnes is a tireless worker and believes there is a greater need for work and a broader field for Christian labor in the Pittsburg church than here in Newton Centre. The church here is in a most prosperous condition, many, especially of the younger people, taking a great interest in religious matters, and baptisms have been of almost weekly occurrence during the winter. Rev. Mr. Barnes will remain here until June 1st, at which time his resignation is to take effect.

—Prof. Oakman Sprague Stearns, D. D., died at his residence on Beacon street, yesterday afternoon. He had been ill about a week, death resulting from heart failure following an attack of influenza. Deceased was born in Bath, Me., in 1818. He graduated from Waterville College in 1840 and the Newton Theological Institution in 1846, and was instructor in Hebrew there in 1847. He was ordained May 18, 1847, and settled over the Baptist church at Southbridge, which pastorate he successfully filled until 1854, when he accepted a call from Newark, N. J., where he remained one year. He returned to Southbridge in 1855, and was elected to the First Baptist church at Newton Centre, remaining there until May 31, 1868. Since that time he had held the chair of Old Testament interpretation at the Newton Theological Institution, from which he had graduated 22 years before. Prof. Stearns was regarded as one of the most cultured men in the Baptist denomination. During his pastorate at Southbridge his sermons attracted wide attention, and since then his writings on religious subjects have made one of the important collections of theological literature. Personally he was a man of affable disposition, courteous and genial, and esteemed and beloved by every one. With the students at the institution he was particularly popular, and in the community where he lived and labored for so many years he was liked by all classes, without regard to religious views. Colby University gave him the degree of D. D. in 1863. He translated Satorius' "Person and Work of Christ" in 1848, and in 1884 wrote "A Synopsis of the Messianic Passage in the Old Testament." The funeral will take place from the Baptist church, Sunday at 3 p. m.

—Mr. J. T. Waterhouse is having a veranda built on the southerly side of his house, and is also having the walls and ceilings frescoed in his store at the old stand.

—Mr. Samuel Appleton goes to Chicago, April 21, to be gone several weeks, representing his business at the World's fair.

—The new street being built by Mr. M. G. Crane on the line of the land of Crane, Harbae and others, running from Lake avenue to Walnut street is well under way, and will bring a large number of choice lots into the market, the growing and desirable section of the village.

—Mr. E. Devine has started a cellar for a house on the lot adjoining the residence of Mr. A. D. Hall on Winchester street.

—Mr. Susan is having his house painted by Mr. Avery, and Mr. Hillon is having the house occupied by Mr. F. B. Bancroft on Hartford street painted by Mr. Randall.

—The Patterson block is being moved to its new location on Hartford street well freighted with passengers and merchandise.

—Mr. G. W. Watson, Lincoln street, has bought the house on Chester street belonging to Mr. E. H. Tarbell and now occupied by Mr. J. S. Rorabeck, Mr. Rorabeck will soon remove to his house on Hyde street.

—Mrs. Burns of Lake avenue has returned from her sojourn for the winter in Florida.

—The death of Mr. Wm. H. Hyde occurred on Saturday evening last at the age of seventy two years. He has been in declining health for two or three years. The funeral took place from his late residence on Wednesday, Rev. Mr. Phipps conducting the service. Interment at Newton cemetery.

—Mr. C. H. Guild is to have a house built on his land on Woodward street, Messrs. Ireland Bros. are the builders and Mr. T. D. Sullivan will put in the cellar, and the work has commenced.

—Officer Dugan has moved from the Upper Falls and taken a tenement in the Weber block, and Mr. Secord has also taken one in same block.

—"Christian Patriotism." He said that he was glad that he was at work along that line. There should be no place, he said, where the young men should be flowing more than among the Christian churches. The coming centuries belong to the young men, and politics were fast falling into their hands. "Who is going to run things in this city?" he asked. "Are you young men going to stand still and let the 'bummer' element run things here as they have been doing in New York and Chicago? It is no more necessary to sit in prayer meeting and sing hymns than it is to get out to the caucuses and see that good clean men are nominated, and then take your hands out of your pockets and go to work and see that by your votes the best man is elected to office. 'There are three things necessary to make up Christian patriotism; they are intelligence, independence and patriotism. It is the duty of every young man to make himself familiar with the questions of the day, to study them and then come out on one side or the other, and then work for the accomplishment of that result.' The most dangerous vote in Massachusetts is the rear partition stay at home vote, the dumb vote, and the vote that does not vote. The time is fast approaching, he said, when the Christian young men will turn out and demand that clean men shall be put up for office, and then they can talk about good government."

NEWTON UPPER FALLS.

—Mr. R. T. Sullivan's son is recovering from his illness.

—Fred Gates has secured a position as boss on the highway department.

—Mr. Staples has moved from Lowe's block to Mrs. Hardy's house on Winter street.

—Mr. John Thomason has enlarged and improved his shoemaker's shop by moving the rear partition and putting in a window for ventilation.

—Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Lucas. It is a boy.

—Hickey's paper mill is lying idle for repairs once more. The break in the dam has been repaired and a new stuff chest is now being put in to the mill.

—The remains of Norman Oakley, who died from injuries received at the explosion of No. 4 at the Fireworks Co.'s plant were taken to his home in Nova Scotia.

—E. S. Kingsbury, the High street artist, intends to commence his summer travels the first of May.

—Two lots of land belonging to Mary Sullivan, containing 3786 and 3420 square feet, respectively, have been sold to Daniel Mackay at a price not far from 10 cents a foot.

—George Wright with 377 for the largest number of pins knocked down in three strings, heads the April contestants at the Quinobeequally. Thomas Coughlan with 568 is a good second. L. P. Everett leads in the single string contest with 263.

—The work on the Eliot street ledge is well advanced, giving the street a uniform width of 40 feet. It will be a valuable improvement when finished.

—The Baptist church has extended a call to Rev. Mr. Fish of Hyde Park to become their pastor. Mr. Fish has preached here several times and is greatly liked, and it is hoped will accept the pastorate.

—Mr. Frank Jones, now with Bigelow, Dow & Co., Boston, intends to open a hardware store, May 1st in Procter's block. He will relinquish his position with the Boston firm, and devote his time to the new store.

—A subscription paper is being circulated for the benefit of Mrs. Norman Oakley, who is left in a destitute and pecuniarily sad condition by the death of her husband. Two small children are dependent on her and she is confined to her room, the third child, only a few days old, dying this week. The paper should receive a liberal number of signatures and liberal donations.

—Mr. Michael Buckley was seriously burned a few days since. When walking across the room he was taken with a fit and fell, striking his head on the corner of a stove pulling it over upon himself, the red-hot coal falling upon and burning his face and body. The room caught fire and but for the fortunate arrival of his daughter and the quick removal of the burning material, more serious results would have happened.

—Hose 7 had hose laid first at the city almshouse fire Saturday, and they claim it is due to the new wagon. The wagon and contents were weighed at Mr. Mitchell's scales when returning from the Fireworks Co. Saturday and tipped the beam at 2520 lbs. The hose was wet at the time which would make considerable difference in the actual weight of the wagon equipped.

—Miss Edith Young, a sister of Mr. Ernest Young of Eliot street, and one who who was a 2nd class passenger on the steamer died very suddenly Sunday at the Rhode Island Hospital. She went to Central Falls, R. I., about two months ago and secured work in a mill. A few days previous to her death she had been ill with fever, chills, malaria and was so ill when removed to the hospital she could not stand the ride. The funeral was held at Central Falls, Tuesday afternoon, and the remains were taken to Massachusetts.

—Mr. H. S. Hiltz has sold for Mr. Francis Jones a tract of land containing about sixteen and one half acres located near Reservoir pond and fronting on the Boston and Worcester turnpike, to Edgar W. Foster of Boston, present owner of Echo Bridge Grove. Mr. Foster contemplates putting it in house lots and offering it for sale on easy terms. A new school house will be built near this tract the coming summer and when the quick building of electric road between Newton Upper and Newton Lower Falls is built, it will give this place quite a boom. Several houses will be built at Echo Bridge Grove this year.

NEWTON LOWER FALLS.

—Members of Hose Co. 6 had a very busy day last Friday answering four alarms, all excepting one being for house fires.

—Rev. P. H. Callahan started on a southern trip Monday for the benefit of his health. He will probably not return until June.

—Numerous cases of measles are recorded here this week. The board of health is having notices placed upon the doors of all houses containing patients afflicted with the disease.

—At the N. E. conference held in Boston last week, Rev. R. H. Howard was assigned to take charge of the M. E. church in this village.

—Officer Varney is now able to be out after a sick spell caused by an assault on his leg by Edward Farrell, whom he attempted to arrest a few weeks ago. He will appear before Judge Washburn this week and give his evidence against Farrell.

—A number from here interested in the school question held a private meeting last week to take action in regard to the appointment of a committee to confer with the school board.

—Rev. Abiel Leonard, D. D., Missionary Bishop of Utah and Nevada, will visit St. Mary's church, next Monday evening, April 24th, to dedicate the new chancel addition lately built, and to administer confirmation. The new vestry choir will render special hymns for the occasion, and the sermon will be preached by the Bishop. Service will begin at 7:30 p. m. All are cordially invited to be present.

—The alarm from box 52, Saturday noon, was for a fire in the building for patients with contagious diseases. The building is so situated that in case of fire it would seem almost impossible to get water to the scene. The fire was confined to the interior and burned very slowly. Chemical B quickly put it out after quite a hard time in getting anywhere near the fire.

NONANTUM.

—Henry Hall has left this village after five years residence here.

—J. B. Murphy has bought out Mr. Wm. Russell's drug store, and in company with Mr. Kelly of Waltham, will run a first-class drug store.

—Mrs. M. Delay has bought of Michael McGrath the double house on Pleasant street and will move into it.

—The representatives to the Grand Division, S. of T., which is to be held in Boston next Wednesday from this village, are Miss Annie Wilson, Mr. Geo. Hudson, Mr. Jas. McCutchen, Mr. H. G. Dyson and Mr. Walter Bothwick.

—Rev. J. D. Evans, formerly of this village has been spending a few days with Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Butler of California street.

—A delegation of about one hundred persons from this village attended the sixth anniversary of the Sons of St. George at Waltham last Friday night.

—The Sons of Temperance of this village attended the regular district meeting at Readville, Tuesday evening. Mr. George Hudson, district deputy, presided, Miss Fannie Brodick, Miss Rebecca Park and Mr. W. T. Waters gave recitation and Mr. Geo. Bishop furnished music selections. St. Elmo Division of this village has had the largest average attendance for the year of any division in this district.

—John Lawler, Alice Midgley and Betsy Sutcliffe leave for the old country next Saturday in the Cephalonia.

—Work is begun on P. F. Towne's new house on Bridge street.

—Mr. Wm. Waters, the elocutionist, is again able to be about after several weeks illness.

—There was a bad smash-up on Dalby street Tuesday evening. Mr. Purdy's butcher cart being smashed up and himself somewhat injured. The horse cleared himself and ran.

Resolutions.

The following were passed by Newton Lodge, No. 21, A. O. U. W.:
Whereas, Our Divine Master has permitted the angel of death to visit our lodge and remove from our midst our dear brother, George F. Chubb, deceased;
Resolved, That, while we regret his loss we bow in humble submission to the will of Him who doeth all things well.
Resolved, That we tender to his family our heartfelt sympathy.
Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family, printed in the Newton GRAPHIC and Journal, and spread on the records.

from Washington last Saturday.

—The Social Science Club will meet at Mrs. Clinton Brackett's, 100 Sargent street,
Wednesday, May 3, at 10 a. m.

—Usual services at 10.45 and 7.30 at Methodist church Sunday next. Preaching morning and evening by the pastor.

—Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Hammett left Thursday for a two weeks' trip to Fortress Monroe and other points.

—Alderman Bothfield was taken with a quite severe attack of the grip on Sunday
and has since been confined to his room.

—Rev. Dillon Bronson gave a very interesting address on Chubb and what he said
there, before the Eliot Ladies' Missionary Society, Tuesday afternoon.

—The third regular meeting of the Newton Camera Club will be held at the house of T. M. Clark, No. 1 Mount Vernon Terrace, Newtonville, Wednesday, May 3d.

Business of importance will be transacted
and an interesting exhibit of lantern slides
will be given. All amateur photographers are cordially invited to join this organization which can offer many advantages to its members. For particulars apply to the secretary, Chas. H. Fewkes, 27 Maple street.

—Miss Kate L. Brown of Hyde Park will address the Channing Guild next Sunday evening. The meeting will be held in the church parlors, commencing at 6.45 p. m.
The public are cordially invited to be present.

party of six tables, Tuesday evening, at their home on Richardson street.

—Mr. Edward F. Barnes has leased Mr.
Chas. M. Gay's house on Franklin street to Mr. John A. Gilman for five years. He has also leased the cottages at the end of Bellevue street on Washington street, to Mr. J. A. Van Buskirk.

—The ceremony of breaking the ground
for the Choir Guild Hall of Grace church,
the memorial of Bishop Brooks, will take place at 4 p. m. next Monday. The exercises will begin in the church and will include an address by the Rev. Leighton Parks, D. D., of Emmanuel church, Boston, on the Life and Work of Phillips Brooks. After this the clergy, the choir and congregation will proceed to the site of the new building, where, after prayer
and singing, the ground will be broken.
The proposed building will be a very useful and beautiful addition to Grace church,
and will be devoted to choir rehearsals and meetings of the Choir Guild of the Parish.

—The Suburban railroad scheme has stirred up Newton people more than any project that has been broached for a long time, and so far not a Newton citizen has been found to favor it. The attempt of counsel for the road to show that it would help to "develop" Newton has been subjected to a good deal of ridicule, and Newton does care for that kind of development. The freight railroad through Cambridge furnishes an object lesson as to the nature of the nuisance such a road would prove, and no amount of money paid over to the city in the way of land damages would be any compensation for the injury such a road
would inflict on Newton.

—Music in Eliot church, Sunday evening:
Organ Prelude, Rheinberger;
Anthems, "Send out Thy Light," Gounod
"The Lord is my Light," H. W. Parker
"Their sun shall no more go down,"
(Female Voices), Tuckerman
Tenor solo, From "The Light of the World," Sullivan
Organ Postlude, Dubois

—Mr. P. A. Murray has just completed an open cabriolet, one of the handsomest
two seated carriages seen on the street this season. It was built to order, and is of the latest design, with deep rooky seats and high, well padded backs, and looks the perfection of comfort. Mr. Murray's excellent workmanship is seen in the fine finish of every detail, and the gracefulness of the lines, and in spite of the deep back and the apparent strength of the body, it is a very easy running vehicle, and would not require a heavy horse to move it. It is painted in black, picked out with red, and the fortunate owner is envied by all who have seen it, much so that several gentlemen have made overtures to buy it of Mr.
Murray. The wearing qualities of his carriages are one of their greatest recommendations, as purchasers always receive
the full value for their money.

—The new 700 horsepower Wheelock engine, which has been placed in the power house of the Newton Gas and electric light company, was started for the first time
Tuesday evening. It is a condensing engine, with high and low pressure cylinders;
the 20-foot driving wheel, which makes 75 revolutions per minute when the engine is running at full speed. The low-pressure cylinder is 48 1/2 inches in diameter, and the high-pressure cylinder is 43 1/2 inches.
The engine is built so that, should one cylinder give out, the other could be immediately started and run the entire plant.
As soon as the large engine is thoroughly warmed up, all the dynamos will be attached to the main shaft, and the station
will have a capacity of 600 1/2 kilowatt power
incandescent lights, and 300 arc lights.
This capacity can easily be increased, the engine furnishing sufficient power.

—Music for Grace church Sunday evening:
Processional, "Come ye faithful," Clara
Maginnis
Nune Dimittis, Clara
Anthem, "To Thee do I lift up my soul,"
O Zion,
Recessional, "Forth to the fight ye ransomed,"
J. Stainer

—Mrs. Helen Carter Wright's pupils sang in Boston, Wednesday evening, was a most successful occasion for both teacher and students. Miss Leslie Vance Grant sang very acceptably and solos were finely rendered by Mrs. Kinsley. Mr. Odin Fritz
also contributed some pleasing numbers.

—Mr. U. G. McQueen of Hall street, who has been indisposed on account of an attack
of grip, is out again.

—Dr. James F. Bothfield, formerly of this city, but now of Westboro, a brother of Alderman Bothfield, was married at Manchester, N. H., on Wednesday, it being one of the most brilliant society weddings of the season there. The bride was Miss Jennie Patterson Smith, daughter of Judge Isaac W. Smith of the Supreme Court, and the ceremony took place in church, Rev. C.

S. Murkland officiated. The maid of honor was Miss Mary E. Ray, and the best man was Dr. William O. Mann of Westboro.

The ushers were Daniel C. Smith, Harry
P. Ray, Dr. A. W. Hill of Lowell, Arthur
H. Chase of George Ross of Concord, and William L. Crosby of Boston. The bride was attired in a broadcloth even tinted gown with lace bodice and sleeves of satin.

The church was beautifully decorated.
Subsequently a reception was held at the residence of Judge Smith. After an extensive wedding tour Dr. and Mrs. Both-field will make their home in Westboro.

—A specialty at Hahn's; prescriptions.

—Buy a house lot of Aban, Trowbridge & Co.

—If you want a hair cut go to Burns'
popular barber shop, Cole's Block.

—Aban, Trowbridge & Co. have rented
Mr. Byers' house, No. 853 Washington street, Newtonville, to Mr. F. P. Smith of Boston; also the Rollins new house on Washington terrace, to Mr. Arthur Hoyt of Boston; also No. 388 Centre street, Newton, to Mr. D. W. Spooner of Reading.

—Mr. Charles Dunn, the well known and popular base ball player of Nonantum, was very severely surprised at the concert and ball given by the Brighton Base Ball Association on Wednesday evening April 19th,
the members of that organization presenting him with a handsome gold watch, chain and chain as an expression of the high esteem and regard with which they hold him, and for his valuable services rendered
during the season of '92.

A stone was hurled through a car window of the 5.20 outward bound train Wednesday evening, by some young scoundrel who stood on the St. James street bridge.
Fortunately, aside from breaking the glass,
the missile occasioned no damage. The case was reported to the police who have already secured some evidence which is likely to lead to an arrest soon.

—Mr. and Mrs. Arthur G. Jones are soon to occupy their new home on Franklin street, which has just been completed, and which is one of the most attractive houses
on that street.

—The Daughter of Jairus by Dr. Stainer, given by Grace church choir, Sunday evening, May 6 assisted by Mr. Geo. Parker, tenor soloist. The other solo parts and recitatives will be sung by Mr. Brown and Masters Grafton Abbott and H. Fred Hill.

—The Watertown selectmen Wednesday evening gave a hearing to representatives of the Newtonville & Watertown Street Railway Company. At the conclusion of the hearing the company was granted a location on Watertown street in Watertown, from Calen street, and from Calen street
to Watertown square, and from Watertown square to the terminus of the Newton Street Railway Company on Main street.

The company was given permission to run over the tracks of the West End street railway on Calen and Main streets. It is the intention of the company to break ground at once, and have the cars running from Watertown to Newtonville, will connect with the Newton Centre division at Newtonville.

NEWTON LOWER FALLS.

—Wright Bros. have purchased the express business of Gleason & Co.

—The Board of Health officers have taken down the greater number of cards
where there have been cases of measles
here.

—The sudden death of Patrick Mead,
Sunday afternoon, was learned of with deep regret by his many friends here, death resulting from typhoid pneumonia, he being ill but 5 days. The interment was made at Needham cemetery.

—Mrs. J. L. Stodder, who has been spending the past two months at the Valentine house, Wellesley Hills, has returned to Newton.

The marriage ceremony uniting Mr.
Guy B. Kimball to Miss Annie Forsythe was celebrated the 12th. Rev. A. P. Sharp of Hingham officiated, and also acted as best man of confirmation to a number of candidates. His sermon was both interesting and instructive. The new vested choir
rendered special hymns for the occasion,
and the singing adds to the very attractive
feature to the church services.

NEWTON CLUB.

THE P. AND P. BOWLING CLUB DINNER.

Thursday evening the P. and P. Bowling Club ended their series brilliantly with one of the most elaborate dinners that has been given at the club since its opening.
Some time past the gentlemen in this organization have been piqued and mystified by the unexplainable actions of their wives, but when, just before dinner
the gentlemen were asked into the reception room the mystery was solved. Each lady was arrayed in a wonderful creation concocted especially for this event. Could there have been such costumes and such a host of confirmation to a number of candidates. His sermon was both interesting and instructive. The new vested choir
rendered special hymns for the occasion,
and the singing adds to the very attractive
feature to the church services.

After three hours at table the company repaired to the bowling alleys and some wonderful scores were made.

After that the prizes of the season's bowling were awarded, and to avoid any complication, each lady was given a prize;
these were unique and valuable and will be pleasant reminders of a happy winter. All the members of the "P. & P." were present, namely: Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Bridgham, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Roberts, Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Richards, Mr. and Mrs. G. P.
Bullard, Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Van Fassel,
Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Keene, Mr. and Mrs.
Simon Lewis, Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Kingsbury, Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Hunting, Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Kimball, Mr. and Mrs. L. B.
Schofield.

Preparing for Summer.

Housekeepers who wish to have their lace curtains cleaned carefully and well will find J. H. Looker of 21 Carlton street, a very reliable and experienced cleanser. He has had many years of experience in this work, and is very highly recommended by those who have patronized him. He also cleanses wool blankets, kid gloves, any article of clothing, and does dyeing and repairing in the most skillful manner, and will guarantee satisfaction in every case. In addition he takes charge of fine linens and other house work, which will be carefully done up by hand. A postal card to his address will receive prompt attention.

AUBURNDALE.

—Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin W. Hackett and Master Leon A. Hackett are registered at the Hotel Imperial, New York.

—Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Pemberton have returned from a visit to New York.

—An alarm sounded from box 4 at 22 minutes past 12, Wednesday morning, for a fire on Stanford street, in a double tenement house occupied by Wm. Carley and Thomas Begley. It was caused by the overturning of a kerosene lamp, and the damage was about $30. In one of the tenements were several children ill with the measles.

—A meeting of the W. C. T. U. was held in the Congregational church chapel
Wednesday, April 26, at 3 o'clock. Mrs.
Rolf, president of the Middlesex Co. will give an address with experiments.

—The E-chylus Club met at the house
of Miss Julia N. Cole, Tuesday p. m.

—The Loyal Legion met in the chapel of the Congregational church, Sunday p. m., Mr. Albert Hunt, president, in the chair.
Miss Josephine Blanton, secretary, read a report of the last meeting. Albert Higgins treasurer. Miss E. P. Gordon, recently returned from Chicago, gave an interesting talk on the Temperance Temple erected
there, and of the fountain raised in honor of Miss Frances Willard. Mr. Dean Walker presented instructive points that would help the youth to lead a life of total abstinence.

—Editor G. H. Pratt is soon to begin the erection of two fine houses corner of Wolcott street and Auburndale avenue.

—At the Congregational church next Sunday evening at 7.30 there will be a meeting in the interest of the Union Rescue Mission on Kneeland street, Boston. Some of the members of the Home will be present and speak. All cordially invited.

—There will be a union meeting of the Baptist Unitarian and Congregational societies at 7.30 o'clock, Sunday evening, at the Second Congregational church. Supr.
W. H. West of the Union Rescue Mission of Kneeland street, Boston, will be present
with men from the mission.

—Mr. and Mrs. Grant William Nowell, who have been living in the Strasburg, Westland avenue, Boston, are now occupying a house here.

—Have you tried Thorn's soda?

—Mr. E. F. Miller is considerably better.

—William Fardon, who is employed by Johnson & Keyes express, had his head badly jammed in an elevator in Boston, the first of the week. He was taken to the Emergency hospital, and is now quite comfortable at his home.

—Mr. G. W. Giddings of Riverside has removed to Oakdale.

—Joseph Cook whose health is greatly improved by winter in Florida is expected home in May.

—Mr. C. W. Higgins has purchased about four or five acres of land near the Ware farm recently purchased by him, containing the houses formerly owned by Messrs. Hines, Welch and Ramsey. The Hines house will be remodelled and the other two will be taken down or moved away.

—Mr. Charles Chase has moved into his new house.

—The Musicale given by Mr. Goldstein's violin pupils Tuesday evening, was a success, and was attended by nearly three hundred people. The affair was ably matronized by Mrs. Henry R. Turner, who also assisted in the accompaniments and in the ensemble selections. Mrs. Emile Grant of Boston was present and added to the occasion by her skill as pianist, and Miss Mae Shepard was, as always, perfect in her accompaniments. The young lady and gentlemen violinists were well trained in the use of the bow, and their good hard honest practice told well in their rendering of the pieces selected for them. The audience was a most attentive one, and Mr.
Goldstein may justly be proud of the success attained by his class.

—The marriage of Mr. William Albert
Hall to Miss Annie Smith of Newtonville, Ohio, occurred on Tuesday evening, at the home of the bride. Mr. and Mrs. Hall will be at home on Friday, June 16.

—The Cantata of Ruth will be given next Sunday eve at the Vesper service in the Methodist church, with solo voices, Amphion Quartet and chorus. Service at 7.30 o'clock.

—On the afternoon of April 13, a very pleasant company gathered at the home of Rev. Dr. G. M. Steele. A double purpose
animated the minds of those present—first,
to celebrate the 70th birthday of Dr. Steele,
and, second, to form an Eastern Alumni Association of Lawrence University, of which school Dr. Steele was president from 1863 to 1879. The association was formed and Dr. Steele was elected president.
Twenty-two were present, and a large number of letters of congratulation to Dr.
Steele and of sympathy with the second object of the meeting were read. Among those there were Pres. Raymond, the president of Wesleyan University, Middletown, Conn., Prof. Olin Curtis of the school of Theology of Boston University, and several well-known clergymen and missionaries, who had come long distances, some of them, to

CITY GOVERNMENT.

THE SUBURBAN RAILROAD PEOPLE APPEAR TO EXPLAIN THEIR SCHEME—JOHN E. COLBURN APPOINTED ASSISTANT ASSESSOR IN WARD FIVE.

The mayor presided at the board of aldermen meeting Monday evening, Alderman Bothfield being the only one absent.

A communication was received from the city solicitor declaring it illegal to apportion sewer assessments in 10 equal parts after the expiration of the 60 day limit.

ASSESSOR RESIGNS.

The resignation of Moses G. Crane as assistant assessor in Ward Five was received, and on motion of Alderman Roffe the mayor appointed Alderman Bothfield, Roffe and Plummer a committee to meet representatives from the lower branch and nominate an assessor.

PETITIONS.

Petitions were received from Horace Cousins for license to erect building 35 by 33 feet for two stores and tenement on Station street; E. W. Preble, Brighton, for in holders license on Beacon street, Ward Six; S. V. A. Hunter for drain and sewer in Lake avenue; Peter Madden for wagon stand at Lower Falls; T. F. Melody for two hackney carriages at Auburndale; Mary F. Kollins for intelligence office on Clinton street, Ward Two; Patrick Linnehan for building 28 by 20 feet on Edinboro street; Crowell, for store and tenement 37x75 feet on Watertown street; for stable 20x26 feet on Linwood avenue; Benj. Merritt and others for sidewalk on Nonantum street; Geo. W. Bush for nine hackney carriages and stand; Geo. A. Strout for removal of catch basin; Geo. H. Talbot for sidewalk and edgestones on Walnut street; H. A. Spear for one hackney carriage and stand.

$1,303 FOR WATER MAINS.

The water board were authorized to lay water pipes in Prince, Lenox and Seaverns streets at a cost of $1,303.

BOND APPROVED.

The bond of the city treasurer for the current year was presented and approved.

Alderman Rumery presented an order appropriating $525 for the purchase of 700 feet of hose to be charged to the special appropriation for the equipment of the Nonantum hose house. Passed.

Alderman Thompson presented a petition signed by J. B. Newell and others objecting to the manner in which the streets are watered. Also a petition from W. M. Mick, J. F. C. Hyde and others for street lights on Parker and Dedham streets. Referred.

ASSESSOR APPOINTED.

Alderman Roffe for the special committee of conference reported the name of John E. Colburn for assistant assessor in Ward Five, vice M. G. Crane resigned. In a joint convention of the two branches this nomination was confirmed and Mr. Colburn elected.

THE SUBURBAN RAILROAD.

After the aldermen reassembled the mayor said that the representatives of the suburban railroad were present to explain their intention and he introduced Mr. Charles Abbott, Prince, counsel for the N. Y. & N. E. railroad.

Mr. Prince said he appeared, as it seemed Newton was unacquainted with the purpose of the road, and to enlighten the city council as to their intentions.

He introduced Mr. Franklin B. Locke of A. W. & F. B. Locke, civil engineers, who assisted in the survey and Mr. Veasey. The new road will form a junction at grade with the Woonsocket division of the N. Y. & N. E. road and then running northerly will cross Eliot street over grade leaving the grade of the street unchanged. At Boylston street and Meredith avenue under grade raising the street 14 feet over the Boston & Albany circuit railroad, over Woodward street lowering the street grade six feet, crossing Walnut street next at the junction of Beacon under grade, raising both streets 14 feet at this point, crossing Homer over grade lowering the street two feet, over Mill and Cabot streets, grades unchanged, over Newville avenue lowering the street three feet, over the main line of the Boston & Albany road with a 170 foot span, crossing Washington street at the junction of Adams 18 feet above the street level, the grade being unchanged, crossing above Pearl street grade, unchanged, running under California street raising the street 22 feet thence over the Charles river and through Watertown to Waverley station on the Massachusetts Central road. The construction to be mainly of earth work, with probably iron trestle work over the B. & A. main line and Washington street.

The total length of the line is about 6.1 miles and the estimated cost is $650,000. The mayor asked if the proposed change in the grade of the Boston & Albany road had been taken into consideration, providing they should raise their tracks.

No, sir.

If the tracks were raised 14 feet and you must run 15 feet above them as required by law, your tracks would be 32 feet above the present level of the B. & A. tracks, and the construction would be trestle work?

Yes, sir.

Mayor Fenno thought the citizens of Newton would object very decidedly to such a construction close to two of the largest villages in the city.

SURPRISED AT OBJECTIONS.

The mayor—Do you not think you are asking a good deal of the city of Newton to run your tracks through the heart of the city?

Mr. Veasey—No, sir, I think it would be one of the most beneficial things that could happen to the city. The country where it is intended the road shall run is not built up, and this will help to develop it. I was surprised when I heard there were objections to the road running here.

An audible smile passed round the circle.

In response to inquiries by Mr. Prince, Mr. Locke said the construction would be quite different as laid out, and in the event of the Boston & Albany raising their tracks the cost of construction would be increased about $50,000, but passing over the road at this height was no obstacle, only from a financial standpoint. The route laid out was the most feasible, and property damages had been avoided as much as possible.

At this point John J. Kenney, representative of Morse & Lane asked Mr. Prince if he claimed the right of eminent domain under the present act.

Mr. Prince—Yes, sir.

There was a request for the names of the property owners affected by the suburban road, and in response Mr. Veasey commenced to read them, but the aldermen were spared this ordeal by the mayor.

Mr. Prince said the N. Y. & N. E. railroad had 31 miles of railway in their Woonsocket division, which, cut off as it is, cannot be developed unless connected with the main line division or with some ally of the road. With that end in view a special charter was asked in 1891 to construct a road connecting the Woonsocket division and the main line. A preliminary survey was made and the charter granted with opposition. Much delay was caused by Boston's dissatisfaction with the locations and four new locations had to be laid out. When this difficulty was adjusted it was deemed advisable finally to extend the suburban railroad from the Massachusetts Central. The road is not designed alone for freight as some seem to believe, but for freight and passenger traffic, and as a connecting link between the Boston & Maine and the N. Y. & N. E. This opens up the Norwich line to New York for through traffic from the northern New England states. With this aim in view Newton was approached in a hostile spirit, and when it was found how the matter was viewed here it was thought best to come and explain. This is not a marginal road but an extension of the Woonsocket division to a terminal with the Boston & Maine. Speaking about the park lands through which the track will run, Mr. Prince said any amendment to their construction through the public parks would be gladly received.

Alderman Thompson thought Newton would not be greatly benefited by the through traffic from Waverley to New York or by the road as a convenience to Newton men doing business in the city. Mr. Prince said Newton people could go direct to cities on the B. & M. system by this means without going through Boston.

Alderman Plummer asked why a connection with the Massachusetts Central at Weston would not do as well as Waverley.

Mr. Prince said it was too far out. He said also that the road from Cook street to the main line of the N. Y. & N. E. would be built.

The mayor said there was no objection to the location to Dorchester, but the citizens were very much opposed to having the suburban road. He then asked if the would consent to strike out section two.

Mr. Prince said he had a great regard for the citizens of Newton but to that he could not agree.

The sum allowed for land damages is $85,000. Mayor Fenno thought that was a very small sum.

The aldermen then went into executive session.

Common Council.

President Weed presided at the common council meeting Monday evening, Councilman Knapp being absent.

Papers from the other branch were passed in concurrence.

LAID ASIDE.

When the order passed at the last meeting of the aldermen appropriating $725 for the purchase of the Clafin land for the High school came up no attack was made upon it but it was very unceremoniously relegated to the table.

HIGHWAY ORDINANCE PASSED.

The new highway ordinance requiring the clearing of snow in Wards One and Seven from asphalt walks within twenty-four hours, passed by the aldermen, received a good deal of attention.

Councilman Tolman wished to amend it by striking out the article relative to ice on the sidewalks. He had interviewed forty or more citizens of Wards One and Seven and all were in favor of the ordinance as far as it relates to snow, but objected to the ice clause.

Councilman Howes said he had talked with several but had found none in favor of the ordinance in any way.

Councilman Hatch expressed himself as in favor of the ordinance as at present drawn.

Councilman Degen said this matter had been coming up for over a year and the demand had always been from these wards. The majority of citizens there wanted it, he understood, and he believed it best they should have such an ordinance. He thought the striking out of the ice clause was superfluous. If the snow were cleared away there would be very little chance for ice to form.

After some further discussion Councilman Tolman withdrew his amendment.

Councilman Bristow thought the matter might lay over with profit and moved to table it. His motion was defeated.

Councilman Degen then proposed a slight amendment, which was accepted, and the highway ordinance passed to be enrolled.

A PETITION.

A petition was received from the Newton Centre Improvement Association asking that Union street near the depot and a portion of Institution avenue be widened at once. The petition was very urgent as a large brick block is just about to be commenced and unless the widening is done before this is erected it will be impossible to change the width of the street. Referred.

The True Remedy.

To the Editor of the Graphic:

In his argument before the committee last week Mr. Goodwin set forth very graphically the rush and hurry of our present school system and the consequent nervous strains upon both teacher and pupil. He said the college set the pace for the secondary schools, and that the Newton High school was trying to do in four years with a daily session of four and one-half hours, what other schools of high standing did in five years with a daily session of five hours. Now these statements are true and convince the candid reader that something ought to be done to remedy such a condition of affairs. No doubt the addition of ten minutes to recess and three minutes to each recitation would slightly benefit the existing state of things, but would the possible advantage of such an arrangement outweigh the positive disadvantages?

Much has been said by parents and physicians upon the length of time that should elapse between breakfast and the next substantial meal. This interval even with a cold lunch to break it is too long for good health and the well being of the pupil. Then only two or three hours would intervene between dinner and the usual tea when all the family assemble at the close of the day. The irregularity could not fail to bring about evil effects. Another difficulty presents itself. Suppose the ten minutes were added to the recess, would boys be likely to bring more substantial lunches or eat them with any greater degree of deliberation than at present? The fact is the average boy detests a cold lunch—who does not—and the few stock articles one can bring upon rail and horse appetite and grow distasteful. Of course the pupil can fall back upon the school restaurant, but the majority cannot afford the expense that a daily lunch there would involve. No one believes in the necessity of the lunch more firmly than the writer, but as a matter of fact, given the average boy, would the anticipated arrangement bring about the results so earnestly desired by the head master?

Does it not appear then that the most effective method would be either to employ more teachers and reduce the size of the school, or to have a lunch which could be paid to the preparations of the pupil, thus avoiding that rush and hurry incidental to large classes, or else, do as practised elsewhere, make the preparation for college a five years course. Every thoughtful person will agree that the condition of affairs, as presented by Mr. Goodwin, is of great importance, and demands most careful consideration. What is the additional expense of one more teacher or an added year to the course, in comparison with the best welfare of the pupil and the highest efficiency of the school? PARENT.

THE REUNION

OF FORMER WEST NEWTON ENGLISH AND CLASSICAL SCHOOL PUPILS.

The Executive Committee on the reunion of the West Newton English and Classical school, fifteen in number, are hard at work, having held two or more meetings each week since their appointment.

Sub committees have been appointed as follows: President of the day, invited guests, literary exercises, reception of teachers and guests, music, collation, decorations, badges, dancing, autograph album, R. R. facilities, printing, tickets, photographs and carriages.

In addition, over one hundred and fifty ladies and gentlemen (being two ladies and two gentlemen from each class year) have been nominated by the Executive Committee, to act informally as a Reception committee on the day of the reunion.

The president of the day has been selected, and has accepted the honor of presiding; the music committee is negotiating with several of the leading bands of this and neighboring states, and the other committees have their work well in hand.

Invitations will be sent out within ten days to about 2,500 former pupils, and will include wives, husbands, or lady or gentleman friend of former pupils.

The newspaper notices of the proposed reunion has already awakened an extraordinary interest among past pupils, and those resident hereabouts report that their school-mates at a distance are willing for a reunion. Many of the Newton pupils are also extending to their particular friends living elsewhere, invitations to spend a few days with them at the time.

The Executive committee intend to invite every pupil who has ever attended any department of the school since January, 1884, and in the afternoon the races will be held at the new Waltham Bicycle Park. Over $2,000 in prizes will be offered for the eight races that will make up the afternoon sport. This is an unusually large amount for a one day race meet but the Associated Cycling Clubs are determined that they will leave nothing undone that can tend to make the races a complete success. They expect that it will be the largest race meet, in point of attendance, that has ever been held in this part of the state. It certainly will be so far as prizes and racers go. Beile and Taylor, two of the fastest men in the world, will be present and a host of others will undoubtedly be there to take away the good things in the shape of prizes. The following races will be held: one mile novice; one-third mile scratch; one mile handicap, two mile handicap, two mile scratch, two-thirds mile scratch, two mile handicap, one mile scratch, one mile team.

The Waltham Club is making active preparations for the big race meet that they will hold at the Waltham Bicycle track on June 17. A big list of prizes will be offered and there is no doubt but that they will be very successful in their undertaking. It will be the second race meet on the new Waltham Bicycle Park.

Coming Races at the Waltham Track.

The meet of the Massachusetts Division, L. A. W., on Decoration Day will surpass anything that has ever been held in this line. The Mechanics' building, Boston, has been engaged for the ball.

In the forenoon there will be a monster parade by all of the bicycle clubs of Boston and vicinity. This will take place in Boston. In the afternoon the races will be held at the new Waltham Bicycle Park. Over $2,000 in prizes will be offered for the eight races that will make up the afternoon sport. This is an unusually large amount for a one day race meet but the Associated Cycling Clubs are determined that they will leave nothing undone that can tend to make the races a complete success. They expect that it will be the largest race meet, in point of attendance, that has ever been held in this part of the state. It certainly will be so far as prizes and racers go. The Waltham Club is making active preparations for the big race meet that they will hold at the Waltham Bicycle track on June 17. A big list of prizes will be offered and there is no doubt but that they will be very successful in their undertaking. It will be the second race meet on the new Waltham Bicycle Park.

BOOKS AND MAGAZINES.

HARPER'S FOR JUNE.

A new novel by Mr. William Black will begin in this number, entitled "The Hand of the Hammer." The reviews of the magazine will reluctantly part company with the Huguenot lovers of Mr. A. Conan Doyle's historical romance, "The Refugees," which will be concluded in the June number. Miss Woolson's novel, "Horace Chase," will be continued. The number opens with a paper, beautifully illustrated from paintings by Mr. William M. Chase, entitled "An Artist's Summer Vacation" by Mr. John Gilmer Speed. Another of Mr. Julian Ralph's graphic Western articles will describe the state of Wyoming. An exceedingly interesting article, giving a true and intimate sketch of the Emperors of Austria, will be contributed by one of the ladies of her court. A characteristic New England story, entitled, "Pogit Way," with illustrations by Mr. W. T. Smedley, will be contributed by Miss Grace Livingston Furness, Dr. W. W. Keen will contribute an article on "Visitation and Brain Surgery." "The Evolution of New York," will be the subject of an interesting paper by Mr. Thomas A. Janvier, illustrated by Mr. Howard Pyle. Mr. Henry Looms Nelson will continue his studies of the French Canadian in an article on "New France under British Rule." "The Editor's Study," by Mr. Charles Dudley Warner, and the other editorial departments, including the "Drawer," with an introductory story by Mr. Thomas Nelson Page, will complete the number, the opening of the eighty-seventh volume of the magazine.

The "Pansy" for May has a fine picture of James Russell Lowell, and gives a good view of Mr. Lowell's study. It has another equally good portrait of William Cullen Bryant. These pictures accompany the American Literature papers, which are excellent reading, and adapted especially to the comprehension of the young people. D. Lothrop Company, Publishers, Boston.

"Our Little Men and Women" for May is odorous of the breath the month symbolizes. Not only May Day with the May queen and her retinue, but it offers a loving tribute to the "soldier old and gray," and speaks tenderly of the "Blue and the Gray." It has stories to instruct, stories to entertain, and bits of history and physiology told in a way best suited to the beginner. D. Lothrop Company, Publishers, Boston.

"Babyland" for May has out-door stories and pictures, and dainty little rhymes for Baby to learn. There is a funny little play which another Baby tells about, as well as the doings of a Baby way out on the Pacific Coast. D. Lothrop Company, Publishers, Boston.

(From the New York Herald.)

He—I have come to ask for your hand.

She (Boston)—Well, I fear I could not endure the surgical operation. I am afraid you will be forced to take me with it.

I have not used one bottle yet. I suffered from catarrh for twelve years, experiencing the nauseating dropping in the throat peculiar to that disease, and now nearly almost cured. I tried various remedies without benefit until last April, when I saw Ely's Cream Balm advertised in the Boston Budget. I procured a bottle, and since the first days' use have had no more trouble—the soreness is entirely gone.—D. G. Davidson, with the Boston Budget, formerly with Boston Journal.

LET WELL ENOUGH ALONE.

RESOLUTIONS OF NEWTON CIVIL SERVICE REFORMERS.

The annual meeting of the Newton Civil Service Reform Association was held in Allen's Hall, West Newton, Monday evening. The reports of various officers were read and accepted. That of the secretary, Mr. Stephen Thatcher, stated that Mr. H. E. Bothfeld, chairman of the committee on ordinances of the Newton city council, had secured a report favorable to the adoption of an ordinance forbidding activity of city employees in political conventions, caucuses and clubs.

The report also alluded to the action of the executive committee of the association in regard to the attempted change in the tenure of office of Newton city officials. The committee favored the provisions for office-holding fixed by the present city charter, which incorporates the good behavior clause. The city charter of Newton was regarded as nearer the ideal because it was the only one in the state, which, with a few exceptions had done away with annual elections, and the liability of political influence.

From the report of the treasurer these statistics are gleaned: Receipts from contributions, $170; balance left over from preceding year, $5.09; total receipts, $175.09; expenditures, $157.17; balance on hand, $17.92.

The following resolutions, offered by Mr. Raymond L. Bridgman, were passed unanimously:

Resolved, that we recognize with cordial appreciation the firm stand taken by President Cleveland to discourage the importunities of office seekers. His efforts at Washington deserve to be supported at home by all public spirited citizens the country over, by doing everything in their power to prevent office-seekers from going to Washington with the endorsement of their neighbors and friends. We believe that public opinion should be hostile to all candidates for governmental service whose qualifications are mainly political, and that it is the duty of every man to discourage the tendency of the times to set public office. We believe that petitions for office should not be signed, not even for our personal friends, unless it is clear beyond a reasonable doubt that the public would be better served by the appointment of the petitioner, and that no reasonably competent and faithful officer will be disturbed in his position, or be less likely to secure reappointment.

Resolved, that a long step in advance has been taken by Postmaster-General Bissell in his declared purpose that competent and honest Republican postmasters shall be allowed to serve out a full term of four years. We trust that in enforcing his policy to make no removal without the establishment of sufficient charges no event will occur to show that charges can be lightly made or entertained, but rather that each case of removal will be so clear that all fair-minded men, regardless of party, will say that the removal was justified. Proof should be clear and the officer against his future continuance in office, not a trivial excuse for a change really for political reasons.

Resolved, that the good of the service and the right sentiment of the people demand that the postmaster-general go much further than to retain Republican postmasters for four years who are honest and competent. They should be continued in office as long as their honesty and competency are unquestioned, no matter how many Democrats would like the place, no matter how much political pressure is made for a change. We insist that the fourth-class postoffices are not the spoils of office in any degree.

The postmaster-general has done well to admit that they are not spoils to the degree of rendering incumbents liable to removal with a change of administration. We desire him and all Democrats who aspire to these offices to recognize the truth that they are not rightfully the property of any party in any sense.

Above party the public has a right to honest and competent service. Such service is improved, other things being equal, with the experience of the incumbent, with his familiarity with the details of his business and with his knowledge of the history and traditions of the governmental service.

We urge that well-qualified Republican postmasters be reappointed upon the expiration of their four year term, and that thus the administration will not only render signal service to the people, regardless of party, but that it will also improve this opportunity to raise the standard of governmental practice to a higher plane, failing in which it will fall short of an evident duty, and will permit others to win the honor of a reform which must surely come.

We pledge our personal efforts to this reform and hope for the active co-operation of those who are likened with us. The following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

President, Henry Lambert; vice-presidents, Leverett Saltonstall, Edwin B. Haskell, William P. Ellison, Edwin P. Seaver, Nathaniel T. Allen, Warren P. Tyler, and Stephen Thatcher; secretary, James P. Tolman; treasurer, H. E. Bothfeld; directors, D. C. Heath, G. E. Gilbert, Thomas B. Fitz, R. L. Bridgman, Joseph H. Smith, Edwin F. Kimball.

LASSELL AT CHICAGO.

HER RECEPTION ROOM AT THE WORLD'S FAIR.

The Lasell exhibit at the World's Fair will be one to attract many visitors, who have so many pleasant memories connected with the school.

A Boston firm has designed a very dainty enclosure, within which will be the Lasell exhibit, and where the daughters of Lasell from all parts of the country can meet and renew old associations.

The structure is built of wood and is nearly three cornered in shape, one corner comprising the main entrance built in semi-circular form to fit a portion of the centre circle, formed by the various exhibits in the room for headquarters of organizations in the Woman's building, where Lasell will be located.

The enclosure is finished in ivory and gold decorated with flowers and vines, festooned in relief and touched with gilt. Approaching the main entrance "Lasell Seminary For Young Women" greet the eye above the doorway in gold letters in relief with a background of blue, the seminary color, dainty columns supporting the top which is finished in renaissance. Festooned draperies of "Lasell" blue silk hang gracefully at either side and to the right are open panels in artistic designs of blue silk. The side entrance with "Lasell Seminary" above supported on minute columns, corresponding in finish to the main doorway. Entering amid all this dainty ivory, blue and gold one finds a soft Wilton carpet beneath the feet, and the scene in no wise loses charm. The rear walls of the enclosure are formed in panels and each is devoted to a representation in bold relief upon a background of pink, of some study, letters in gold leaf below explaining the representation.

Cooking is represented by culinary apparatus of various designs, and an anchor with a coil of rope and a pair of rowlocks represent boating. The crossed fencing foil and sword are sufficiently comprehensive and scissoring, a square, etc., explain the mysteries of dress-cutting. Physical science is illustrated by laboratory articles, while drawing and painting with pallet and brushes, and music with the harp and scrolls, followed by gymnastics with rings, clubs and weights and mathematics represented by the compass, cube, etc., bring one to the close of a very interesting and pretty exhibition.

Against the walls recline boat hooks, oars, rifles and paddles representative of the panels described.

Within the enclosure a table, sofa and chairs all in dainty ivory blue and gold, harmonize with the beautiful whole.

The firm who designed this exquisite production were Messrs. Allen Hall & Co. of 384 Boylston street, Boston, and it was constructed by Mr. A. Torno, cabinet maker, of Harrison avenue, Boston.

The structure was taken apart and packed for shipment to Chicago in sections on Wednesday.

Noise From a Toad.

It is a matter of common observation that the loudest sounds are not always made by the largest animals. The roar of the lion exceeds in sonority the cry of the elephant. Any one who has only heard without seeing a bullfrog might well suppose that its fearful voice breaking the silence of the night must certainly come from the throat of an animal of formidable dimensions.

But perhaps the most remarkable case of vocal power in an animal is that related by a recent traveler in the highlands of Borneo. He was informed by natives that they had heard a tiger roaring in the neighborhood. Such news is always startling to a stranger in the jungles of the east and hardly less so to the natives.

An investigation was accordingly set on foot, which resulted in the discovery that the alarming roars had been emitted by a toad! This toad of Borneo, however, was by no means an ordinary member of the family. It measured no less than 14 inches around the body.

That the natives should not have recognized the true source of the sound shows that the existence of such toads was either unknown to them, or that, at any rate, they had never discovered the remarkable vocal capabilities of the animals.—Youth's Companion.

Three Curious Words.

Filibuster, freebooter and buccaneer are words curiously interrelated. The French and the English sea adventurers once made common cause against Spanish settlements in the new world, and all three of these words came in time to describe the rude sea soldiers who spoiled the Spanish main and the towns upon the coasts of the Spanish possessions. Filibuster is said to be the result of an attempt to make a French word of freebooter, and the English borrowed it back from the French because it sounded less frankly brutal than the English word.

Buccaneer was originally French in form, and it meant at first one who hunted the boucan or wild cattle and hogs of the West Indies; then one who made jerked meat of their flesh, and finally, because this meat was used to provision the ships of the sea rovers, a filibuster or freebooter.—New York Sun.

A Hint For Rainy Weather.

During a recent stormy day a gentleman who had no umbrella, and who had just come into town by a local train, perceived before him as he stepped into the street a person whom he took to be an acquaintance, and who had a fine new umbrella hoisted over his head. Running up to him, therefore, he clasped him on the shoulder, saying as he did so by way of a joke, "I'll take that umbrella, if you please." This individual thus addressed looked round, and disclosed a perfect stranger, but before the other could apologize he said hurriedly: "Oh, it's yours, is it? Well, I didn't know that. Here, you can have it," and broke away, leaving the article in the hands of the first party to the conversation. This narrative, which is strictly true, affords a valuable hint to persons who may be caught out without protection from the rain.—London Tit-Bits.

They Did Not Go to Sleep.

"The itinerary of a Methodist minister may have its unpleasant features," remarked a well known divine to a newspaper man yesterday, "but it has its advantages too.

"There is one little dried up Scotchman who used to be on the southern Ohio conference list who never failed to get even with his congregation. At one station he fared badly, and on the last evening he addressed the church he began, as all settled back to listen with ease: 'Now, brethren, he said, 'it is not fair to go to sleep as ye always ha' done until I get along w' my sermon. This is my last one—so wait a wee till I get along, and then if I'm nat worth hearing sleep awa' w' ye, and I will not care, but dinna go before I ha' commenced. G' me this one chance!'

"And then he was pretty well awake by that time, so he went on: 'I shall take for my last text among ye the two strong words 'Know thyself,' but I will say before I begin the main discourse that I would nat advise this congregation to make many such profitless acquaintances!'

"You may believe that there was not a snore or a nod in the house that evening."—Cincinnati Commercial Gazette.

A HAPPY MAN.

The Last Day of His Mental Balance a Happy One, He Knows No Tomorrow.

I have seen at last a happy man, the happiest I ever knew. He is perhaps 45 years old, and his happiness has been unbroken for two years or more.

Hear his story. He is a gentleman in every sense of the word. He has means, social position and a large circle of devoted relatives and friends. He has a fine physique, a handsome face. But we did not call him a happy man, "such a happy man," until two years ago, when the great change came. He never married, and the Miss X, of whom I tell you was no more to him than his lifelong comrade, his best of friends—an old neighbor, related to him in many ways, but never by the tender tie.

Perhaps he had been more of an invalid than he knew or than his friends dreamed. One summer day he went to the little lake not far from his native village, a popular inland resort, and spent what he called upon his return that night "a perfect day." Skies were never bluer, he said, nor flowers fairer nor the lake so lovely to him as upon that day. Only he had expected to meet Miss X, there and to have had their usual sail together.

He would go again on the morrow, take her with him and so double and increase the joy. He went to her house that evening to play whist as usual. It was Saturday. She had gone to spend Sunday at the lake. He was very glad she had gone, he said; he would join her the next day. During the game he alluded many times to the happy day he had passed. And what is there in life after all like a tomorrow full of promise?

That night after reaching his room he had a paralytic stroke—not a severe one, only a slight shock, but it clouded his brain, if we can call that a cloud which fixed forever in his mind the happiness reigning there when it came.

Every day since then has been that happy Saturday to him. He has just returned from the lake. No matter if the snow is drifting or the rain is beating the windows, it has been a perfect day, everything in divine harmony. He will go over to X's for a game of whist. Even if Miss X meets him he asks if she is at home, as if he were addressing some one else; then he is so glad she is up at the lake; he is going back tomorrow; there is every sign of perfect weather, etc., all in his old time charming way. Then he takes up his cards and plays a capital game and goes home in the sweet expectation of a happy tomorrow.

All else in life seems a blank to him. In that one fair niche of memory he sees all of the past, the present and the future. He appears to be reading oftentimes when the book he holds is up side down. Death means nothing to him. When his friends die, he does not weep nor question nor miss them. He has had such a happy day, and he is going to repeat it tomorrow.

Naturally his case is of interest to specialists. He is never troublesome. He goes about the village and exchanges cordial greetings. Nor does he always speak of what is in possession of his mind, unless you hold him too long. Then he has excuse for breaking away.

Question—If that last day of his mental balance had been an unhappy one, say a day black with anguish or remorse or embittered with rage and revenge, would he now be the opposite of what he is—a wild beast in toils—the remainder of his life the horrible evolution of an incident, who knows but an accident, mood?—Atlantic Monthly.

From Riches to Abject Poverty.

An old man with a thin, bent form and a few locks of white hair peeping from beneath a rusty old fashioned silk hat hobbled painfully through Broad street one afternoon last week and took his stand near the Mills building. He leaned wearily on his stout stick and appeared to be in pain. His manner was absolutely passive. He paid no attention to surrounding objects and spoke to no person. He simply stood still. Within half an hour after the close of business in the exchanges at least half a dozen well known brokers in passing this old gentleman slyly slipped a coin or a crumpled note into his hand. "Who is that old man?" asked the phase writer of a gentleman who is regarded as a landmark in Wall street.

"I won't mention his name," was the reply, "but he used to be one of the high rollers down here. He was probably worth a couple of millions once and was for years one of the best customers that the stockbrokers had. Some of those prosperous men who give him a quarter or a half dollar now and then have in times past made their thousands out of his skill as an operator."—New York Times.

To Tax Scenic Advertisements.

The practice of defacing natural scenery with great advertisements is not so prevalent in the United States as it was a generation ago, and public sentiment is steadily growing stronger against it. This practice has recently developed in England to such an extent that lovers of nature recognize that some definite action must be taken. The Thames valley, the most picturesque mountain spots in Wales and the loveliest corners of Devonshire have been greatly injured by huge advertisements. The well known architect, Mr. Waterhouse, has proposed that if they cannot actually be prohibited they should at least be diminished by the imposition of a heavy license tax.—Chicago Herald.

English Hospitals.

As regards hospitals, the teeming millions of London can count upon only one bed per 1,000—a proportion which is unique among the large towns of Great Britain. Glasgow, Newcastle, Wolverhampton have 3½ beds per 1,000; Edinburgh, 3½; Dublin, 3½; Norwich, Belfast, Brighton, Liverpool, Manchester and Bristol have an average of 2½ beds per 1,000.—Exchange.

What Indeed!

Hunker—Do you propose to marry, Spatts? Spatts—Well, what other object would I have in proposing?—Vogue.

People Who Take Offense Easily.

In this world there are a certain class of individuals who roam about with a chip on their shoulders, daring others to knock it off just for the luxury of indulging in a first class quarrel. To the gentle mannered, sweet dispositioned ones this seems a very questionable sort of enjoyment, yet to some a worthy war or a full fledged feud constitutes the chief excitement of their lives.

These people always have a quarrel on hand. If it isn't a family affair, then outsiders must suffer. They are quick to take offense, both in public and private, and have no scruples about expressing themselves on paper when they haven't a chance to do so verbally. It is this penchant for writing letters that helps to keep them continually in hot water, as the black and white characters are decided evidence against them even after their anger has had time to cool.

Now, if there were any sense in this sort of conduct, there would be some excuse for it, but there isn't, and, moreover, it makes you doubly unhappy to be always on the outs with some one. You may pretend not to care, but you do just the same, and though pride and temper keep your spirits up for a time in your secret heart you wish you had not been quite so ready to quarrel.—New York Commercial Advertiser.

A Connecticut Poet.

There is a movement in Connecticut to erect a monument to the memory of the poet, James Gates Percival. He was a peculiar man and had all of the poet's idiosyncrasies. On one occasion he was invited to meet a number of gentlemen in New Haven, who were in their turn notified that they were to have the pleasure of meeting the poet. He was to be, in fact, the honored guest of the evening. They were all on hand, but Percival did not put in an appearance. Allowance was made for his utter indifference to the passing of time, and up to midnight he was expected.

At last, as morning drew near, deeming it certain that the poet had forgotten the invitation, the guests went home and the host put up the bars and went to bed. At about 2 o'clock in the morning he heard some one at his front door, went down, asked the object of the call and found that it was Percival. The astonished host let the poet in, and the latter blandly said that he had inferred from what had been said that there were to be others present. The host told him that the others had all gone home. The poet expressed regret and settled himself down for a good smoke and talk, which kept up, to his host's embarrassment, till the sun rose.—Boston Transcript.

General Vallejo and Fremont.

When the destiny of the province of California hung in the balance, and England and Russia, as well as the United States, eagerly held out hands for the prize, General Vallejo unhesitatingly gave his adherence to the stars and stripes. Fremont doubted and imprisoned him, but soon set him free.

One day during that imprisonment a young American officer, doubtless a spy sent by Fremont, rode up to the family residence in Sonoma, and offering to Mrs. Vallejo an English and an American flag asked in Spanish, "Senora, which of these do you prefer?"

The lady looked at him a moment as if to read his purpose; then clasping the American flag to her bosom she kissed its folds and said: "This is the flag my husband has taught me to love. It is the one he wishes to see wave over his beloved California."

The officer smiled, and bowing gracefully to all present took his departure.

A lady who stood watching the courteous American as he rode away turned to Mrs. Vallejo and said, "No es Oso" (That is no Bear), meaning that is not one of the Bear Flag party.—Emily B. Powell in Harper's.

Bad Manners In the Use of Words.

The laws of common courtesy hold in the use of words as well as dishes. As unconsciously as you turn the handle of the pitcher in passing it should you turn the handle of your sentence and present your thought right side up. You would not toss the book you are asked for across the floor and leave your brother to pick it up. Why toss your answer in similar hit or miss rudeness?

It is not rudeness of manner to which I refer, but the rudeness of not making your sentence at least neat. The most admirable and affectionate of persons will fill your ears with a thousand needless words that do but conceal their meaning, or make some noncommittal reply which forces you to repeat your question.

A very large part of the misunderstandings in life, with all the sin and sorrow resultant, is traceable to this same carelessness, this stupidity, these inexcusable bad manners, in the use of words.—Charlotte P. Stetson in Kate Field's Washington.

A Cheeky Customer.

"I had a unique but tantalizing experience the other day," said a clerk who works in a Kansas City hair store. "A man came into our place and asked to look at some false beards. Of course he was accommodated, and he spent over an hour going over the lot, trying them on and examining himself in a glass. He took up my time, and after he had examined everything in that line in the store he thanked me and said he was considering whether to raise a beard or not and wished to see how he would look in the different styles."—Kansas City Star.

Deaths Due to Bad Milk.

Five thousand little graves are dug each year in Philadelphia for babies, and 5,000 little headstones are yearly set up over their graves, all due to deaths traceable to the diseases which spring from wrong feeding. In the overwhelming majority of instances the poor food of which these babies die is bad milk, diseased milk or skimmed milk. Death's heavy harp is of little babies in Philadelphia is rendered possible by the absence of a sound milk law.—Philadelphia Press.

CASTORIA

for Infants and Children.

"Castoria is so well adapted to children that I recommend it as superior to any prescription known to me." H. A. ARCHER, M. D., 111 So. Oxford St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

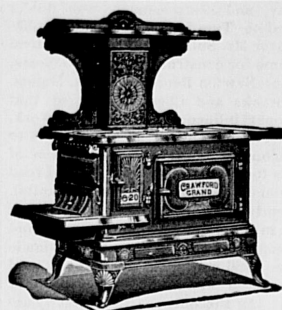

"The use of 'Castoria' is so universal and its merits so well known that it seems a work of supererogation to endorse it. Few are the intelligent families who do not keep Castoria within easy reach." CARLOS MARTIN, D. D., New York City.

THE NEW RAILROAD SCHEME.

The parties interested in the new railroad to be built across Newton appeared before the board of aldermen Monday night, and explained their intentions at some length. They claimed that the road was to be used both for passengers
and freight, to connect the New York
& New England and the Boston & Maine systems, but these explanations seemed only to show more plainly the damage
such a road would be to Newton. It would be of no advantage to the city, as Newton people do not need it either for freight or passenger facilities, while it would interfere with a great number of streets and disfigure the most attractive part of the city.

According to the engineer who laid out the road, it will interfere with the following streets: Boylston street will be crossed under grade, and the street will have to be raised 14 feet. Woodward street will have to be lowered six feet to pass under the railroad. Walnut and Beacon streets will be crossed at their junction, and both streets will have to be raised 14 feet. Newtonville avenue, where there is a very steep
descent now, will be lowered three feet,
and the road will cross at the junction of Washington and Adams street, 18 feet above the two streets. This will hardly be possible, however, as if the Boston &
Albany tracks are raised to do away
with the grade crossings, the new road will have to be raised above them, and the height above Washington street
would probably have to be nearer 40 than 18 feet. California street would have to be raised 22 feet to allow the road to pass under. Watertown street will be crossed in Watertown, and the interference with that street was not given, but Pearl street will not be interfered with.

The counsel for the new road pretended to be greatly surprised that Newton people objected to have their city
"developed" by such a railroad, but as it is certainly mainly for freight and through traffic, it is difficult to see what single advantage the city would derive from it, while such an elevated structure
would be an ugly blot on the landscape, and crossing so many streets, it would add another element of danger to the streets, which most people consider are fully dangerous enough already.

For the good of the city and for the sake of all the improvements with which the road would interfere, it should be opposed by every means in the power of the city government. It may be a nice scheme for the two railroad systems to be connected, but it would be of untold damage to Newton.

THE HIGH SCHOOL SESSIONS.

There was a very lively session of the school board, Monday night, and the report of the proceedings is worth a careful reading. The question of the change in the length of the High school sessions was debated at some length, and with considerable feeling.

The High school committee made their report, and represented themselves as perfectly convinced by the arguments of the Superintendent and Mr. Goodwin that the change was imperatively needed.
But the most cogent and plausible arguments can be made on both sides, and judging from the rather curt nature of the committee's report, they were so fully convinced by the arguments in favor of the change that they did not give much attention to the arguments against it.

There is no need of any feeling over the matter, the change might be an excellent thing, but if the parents do not wish it made, what is the use of stirring up a heated controversy, arousing ill-
feeling between the parents and pupils
against the school authorities, and causing no end of trouble, which will certainly do more harm to the school than the addition of twenty minutes to the session could do good.

The election in the 7th district was rather disastrous for Mr. Barrett, whose upward career receives a decided check,
and Prof. Everett will succeed Congressman Lodge. The Republicans of the district seem to be entitled to the credit of Mr. Barrett's defeat, as his methods were not approved by the more particular of the voters, who believe that a candidate should represent some well-founded principles, and that the end does not justify the means, when the means are not what they should be. It is said that Mr. Barrett received many Democratic votes, so that he must have lost a considerable number of Republican ones, and Mr. Lodge's profuse expenditure in former elections has rather demoralized

the district. Had Mr. Hayes been nominated, the result would probably have been different, but Prof. Everett, with all his eccentricities, will not be a bad representative, as he is a thoroughly honest man, and is sound on the most important issues now before the country.
He is certainly the most scholarly gentleman this state has sent to Washington for many years, and is not a professional politician. The contest does not seem to have excited much interest among the voters of the district, judging from the very light vote cast, and perhaps Mr.
Lodge's convenient "sore throat" may have had some influence on the result, as that excuse was evidently understood by his friends. The personal relations between the defeated candidate and the Junior Senator will evidently continue in a severely "strained" condition for some time to come.

There was a sharp fight over the Suburban Railroad bill in the house on Wednesday, and postponement was finally carried to Tuesday next. The dispute was over Mr. Sullivan's motion to extend the time for construction for two years,
and the Newton Representatives, Messrs.
Estabrook and Chester, charged that improper influences had been at work.
Mr. Chester offered an amendment to strike out all relating to an extension of tracks to the Massachusetts Central road
at Belmont and to an increase of capital.
Evidently there is a strong influence at work in favor of the Suburban road, and some of the members seem to have made it a personal matter, to see that the road gets what it wants, for some reason or other. As the only parties directly interested in the road are two railroad corporations, it is difficult to account for the zeal with which the thing is pushed,
as of course the lobby law has eliminated
all improper influences.

The legislature has decided not to attempt to pass any measures looking to the purification of the Charles River above the dam at Watertown, owing to the great opposition by the towns along the river, which have factories on the banks. A bill has therefore been prepared covering only that part of the river below the Watertown dam,
where the need of some effective purification is certainly urgent, judging from the smells which are wafted over when the tide is out.

The sidewalk ordinance has really passed the Common Council, and citizens of Wards One and Seven are rejoicing
over the prospects of having clean sidewalks another winter. In several of the other wards there is considerable hard feeling because they were not included,
but this ordinance is only the entering wedge, and in a few years there will be an urgent demand for its extension.

The bill to allow the Newton & Boston Street Railway Company to increase its capital stock, extend its location, and issue bonds, has been laid on the table to await
a general act which will cover all street railways.

NEWTON SCHOOL BOARD.

A STORMY SESSION—CITIZENS' PROTESTS HAVE LITTLE WEIGHT WITH MANY MEMBERS.—THE MAYOR INVESTIGATES.

The school board held a meeting Wednesday evening, the mayor presiding and all the members being present except Messrs. Hollis and Weed and Mrs. Davis.
Quite a number of parents from Newton Centre, Newton Highlands and Newton were present and protested strongly against a lengthening of the sessions of the High school, but the majority of the board refused to yield the authority vested in them as members of this authoritative body in response to the entreaty of the people whom they are sent there to serve, and the High school matter was referred to the committee on rules and regulations consisting of Messrs. Hale, Mason and Brackett, and will come up for adoption at the next meeting, May 24.

SUPERINTENDENT'S REPORT.
The report of the superintendent gave an encouraging account of the progress of the kindergarten schools at Thomp-sonville, Lower Falls and Upper Falls.
He recommended that Latin be an optional study in the higher grades after Sept. '33, and called attention to the overworked state of the Adams school where more permanent teachers would be necessary unless the school should be relieved by the parochial school now finishing.

The recommendation regarding Latin study was referred and Mr. Hornbrooke presented the following list of text books which were adopted: Algebra
Lessons and Algebra Tablets, Stickney
Series of Readers, Pilgrims and Puritans,
From Colony to Commonwealth, Cyril's First Reader, Church's Story of the Iliad, World at Home Geographical Readers, for primary and grammar grades, and Hauff's Maerchen for the High school.

The report of the committee on rules
and regulations comprising minor changes was then adopted.

APPOINTMENTS.
Mary P. Sylvester and Mertil J. Hopkins as kindergarten teachers at $550 and $500 per year, respectively, Mary W.
Holden as assistant in Pierce school at $620.

The sum of $12,557.64 was appropriated for current expenses.

An order was referred appropriating $1296 after May 1 for janitor's service at the High school.

COMMITTEE ON HIGH SCHOOL.
The report of the committee on High school, which was presented by the chairman Bond, who said the report had the cordial support of the whole committee. It is as follows:

TO THE NEWTON SCHOOL COMMITTEE.
The committee on the High school, to whom, at a special meeting of the school committee on the 12th day of April current were referred sundry petitions in regard to the sessions of the High school,
respectfully report as follows:

Your committee, after long and careful consideration of the matter of the High school sessions, are unanimously and strongly of the opinion that in order to keep the school up to the high standard heretofore maintained, and which is demanded by the citizens of Newton, and at the same time to avoid impairing the health of its scholars, a five hours session is essential.

Your committee feel that the able and well-considered statements by the superintendent of schools and the head-master of the High school, submitted to the board at its special meeting are conclusive as to the question of the length of session, and they desire to call your renewed attention to them.

The regulations of the public schools, as they stand at present call for a five hours session of the High school with a twenty minute recess. We have, therefore, no recommendation as to the length of the session. Inasmuch, however, as it may be found desirable by these having charge of the school to lengthen
somewhat the length of the recess, we recommend the amendment of the regulations so as to provide that there shall be a recess not to exceed thirty minutes
in length, and we submit herewith an order for amendment.

Respectfully submitted,
Committee on the High school,
by LAWRENCE BOND, acting chairman.

The report was received and thereafter presented as an order but failed to receive support.

REV. MR. HORNBOOKE SPEAKS.
Mr. Hornbrooke wished to know whether it was proposed to have the High school rule into effect now or next fall. He thought the end of the year would be a poor time to subject the scholars to such a radical change. He was not prepared to say whether it was advisable to take the advice of the High school committee now or then, but certainly now would be a bad time when the school and community were so stirred up about the matter. Three years ago
a committee was chosen to investigate
the relative standing of the Newton
High school with institutions of a similar grade, and they reported it as far advanced and efficient as those found anywhere. There was no lamentable deficiency either in standing or progress made,
and why now should such stress be laid upon increasing the sessions a few minutes. He was glad the reports of the superintendent and head-master had been distributed as it was a largely educational value, but he believed it would have been a great deal wiser course if they had been sent out before action was taken by the board.

"The people of Newton can be persuaded, but Mr. Mayor, they are not people who can be driven," suppose this rule is imposed by this committee against such a flat opinion, it cannot be made effective. We certainly have the right to pass such a rule but each member should be guided by the people of his community. Matters which concern the schools and people should be guided by public opinion, and it is dangerous and useless to coerce the people. We have the authority, some may say, but in America
there is only one authority, that of the people whom we cannot control. He spoke of Abraham Lincoln who was not above asking the opinion of others on important questions and he thought this policy would not be a bad one for the Newton school board. Mr. Hornbrooke then moved that the amendment should not go into effect before the next term.

Mr. Bond said he should move a reference to the committee on rules and regulations. Neither motion was seconded.

A discussion of some length then took place, Mr. Ward finally interrupting and asking that the matter be thrown open for discussion, his request being granted.
Mr. Ward thought this whole question was a very foolish one, for the school board to allow it to cause so much outside feeling. All this agitation was for the sake of giving the children ten minutes to be divided into six recitations

and he could not conceive how the school committee could be so foolish as to vote for this small increase against such opposition from the people of Newton. It is not the committee or superintendent who should have most to say about these things, nor is it they who pay the bills.
A prominent Boston educator was asked by him the benefit of such a change,
and he replied that they could pump out
in four hours all they could get in five hours from a pupil. He called attention to the circular sent out through the children asking opinions of parents as to where the increase to five hours should be made. He thought them unfair and knew they had conveyed a wrong impression to many.

THE MAYOR INVESTIGATES.
Mayor Fenno had heard unfavorable comments on this circular which had been sent out and wished to find out by whose authority it was issued.

Mr. Bond of the High school committee was asked if that committee was responsible?

Mr. Bond—They were not sent out by the High school committee.

Mayor—Who sent them out?

Mr. Bond—I do not know by whose authority they were issued, but the High school committee are willing to assume the responsibility.

The Mayor—I do not wish the committee to assume the responsibility. I wish to know who authorized it.

Mr. Bond—The committee had knowledge of the circular but gave no authority for its issuance. It was sent out, he believed, from the superintendent's office
or from the High school.

Mayor Fenno thought it was an assumption of power on the part of some one to issue the circular with no authority from the committee. He wished to ventilate the matter before the full board
and ascertain where the responsibility
lay. Superintendent Aldrich was asked if he knew how many circulars were sent out and how many answers were received from them.

Superintendent Aldrich—I cannot state
the exact number of hand. The clerk of the committee has the correct figures.
Trusting wholly to memory there were perhaps 300 answers received.

The superintendent wished to make an explanation, but the mayor declined absolutely to listen, saying he would have an opportunity to speak later.

Mayor Fenno—Mrs. Sherwood, how many replies were received?

Mrs. Sherwood—About 350 or 360.

The Mayor—Did any state a preference
for a four and a half hour session?

Mrs. Sherwood—Yes, perhaps sixty of those who replied. The mayor stated simply when they preferred the session to begin.

Mr. Smith—Was any mention of the petition made?

Yes, in several instances the majority approving a change for physiological reasons.

Superintendent Aldrich was then given an opportunity to speak by the mayor and said it had been frequently remarked that if a change were contemplated it would probably be the general desire to commence school earlier, and suggestions had been made that these opinions might be gathered from the parents and through the pupils, hence the circular for which he alone was responsible with the knowledge and tacit approval of the High school committee. The wording of the circular seemed to have conveyed a wrong impression. His intention had simply been to get their opinion in case
a change to five hours were made.

Mr. Smith spoke strongly in favor of giving the longer sessions a trial at this end of the school year. At this would demonstrate whether the change was wise or not. As a former teacher, he knew the value of a breathing space between studies. Mr. Goodwin's record as superintendent of the High school should entitle him to the confidence of the parents,
when he comes and asks an increased session, or at least giving it a trial. He did not wish to antagonize Newton
parents in any way but believed Mr.
Goodwin's record with the school entitled him to some consideration.

CITIZENS SPEAK.
Mr. Charles E. Eddy felt that parents had right to be heard in matters pertaining to the health of their children. The child's health in the eyes of a parent is paramount to education and then the fact that this increased session is proposed at the end of the year when the pupil is fatigued from winter work and at the beginning of the warm season
when such a burden will rest all the more heavily, he strongly protested against. The length of recess is now fifteen to twenty minutes of the pupils and a shorter or no recess at all would be better. A light lunch eaten at five minutes is sufficient when a hot dinner is awaiting them at home at six o'clock, as is the general custom. The speaker was told by a member of the school committee that he had nothing to say in this matter, a position which he thought untenable to be taken by the school board of Newton. Parents have been refused a hearing by the committee. This rule should be changed so that parents in Newton, and there are to say nothing,
it is no wonder antagonism has been aroused against the school board, superintendent and teachers of Newton. The feeling against this matter has not been sectional, but is spontaneous. He was surprised that the school board should favor such a matter just because the superintendent proposed it. The superintendent recommends, and the school board acquiesces. What is the board for, if not to weigh and decide according to their best judgment.

Ex Senator G. D. Gilman said the High school had rushed into now four and a half hours and every citizen in Newton is proud of its work. Let well enough alone. This is a season of the year when

Prior to the reception there was a literary feast. The topic was, "What Women Can Do in the Future to Intensify and Broaden the Spirit of Patriotism." There were several speakers. Some general subjects were given attention, one paper being read on "What Women Can Do in the Direction of Stopping the Sensationalism of the Press." Refreshments were served in the ladies' cafe, which was adorned with tropical plants and flowers.

—Grand Commander Soule and suite of the Jurisdiction of Massachusetts of the Rhode Island paid an official visit to Gethsemane Commandery, K. T., Tuesday evening upon the occasion of a regular convocation. Many visiting Masons were present from various parts of the state, and the entire company comprised a body of over 200 of the brethren. The templar degree was conferred upon two candidates. After the ceremonies, a substantial collation was served in the banquet hall, followed by the customary after-dinner exercises.

—Merrill, the 8-year old son of Edward Sands, was run over in the square Wednesday afternoon. He started from the sidewalk, below J. F. Payne's store, to cross the street, passing under a watering cart and stepping in front of O. C. Lyons' lumber wagon. He was knocked down by the horse and the wheels of the cart passed over his body. He was picked up in a rather dazed condition and taken to Dr. Hunt's office by Mr. Lyons and Dr. Hunt. The latter attended to the little fellow's injuries, which besides a severe shaking up and the effect of the shock, consisted of a cut in the back of the head and a bruise on the forehead. Officer Bosworth took the boy to the home of his parents on Court street after he had been cared for by Dr. Hunt. It is thought that he sustained internal injuries and that his complete recovery is only a question of care and a few days' confinement.

—A very interesting musicale was given by the pupils of Miss E. M. Holt, last Saturday afternoon, at her home on Chesley place. After the program, light refreshments were served, and the remainder of the afternoon was spent in sociability and games.

—Miss Jeannette A. Grant goes to Chicago, to be present at the opening exercises of the Columbian Exposition. Miss Grant was a member of the "Cabin Cabin" family, at the "Centennial" Exposition held in Philadelphia in 1876 where many Newton people will remember having seen her. There is to be another New England Log Cabin at Chicago, a larger and improved copy of that at Philadelphia. In connection with it will be a Colonial dining room and kitchen. The buildings are situated at 550 E. Roselle Court, Midway Plaisance. All Newtonians will be especially welcome.

—Ground was broken this week for the new Power House of the Newton & Boston street railway, to be situated on the south side of Homer street, at the head of Bulfinch's pond. The building will be of brick, mill construction, and will set back some distance from the street. The plans for the building are prepared by Messrs. Lockwood & Greene, architects, and the award for its construction is made to H. F. Ross of Newtonville. Messrs. Westinghouse, Church, Kerr & Co. are the engineers in charge of the entire construction and also the contractors for the steam plant. Mr. Church of this firm is a resident of Newton Centre, as is also Mr. Greene the architect. The engines will be compound condensing engines driving Thomson-Houston multipolar generators and taking steam at 130 lbs. pressure from Babcock & Wilcox boilers. The present installation is for 400 H. P. with a total capacity in the building for 1,000 H. P., and the station is to be in operation July 1st.

—Miss Lizzie Potter is quite seriously ill with nervous prostration and has been obliged to discontinue her studies for a while.

—Mr. C. W. Florence is laid up with an attack of grip.

—Tuesday evening a meeting in the interest of the Hampton Institute, Va., was held in the Ugarian church. Mr. Duggs, who is connected with the financial department of the institute gave the principal address. He gave an account of his own experience to gain an education, and his career since. He was followed by two of the Indian students, one a Sioux, the other a Winnebago and several of the negro students of the various special classes. The addresses were interspersed with songs by the colored quartet, greatly enjoyed by the audience.

—The applicants for sixth-class liquor licenses, comprising 21 of the druggists of the city, have been in a rather anxious state of mind because it has been whispered about that the board of aldermen had decided to grant only a portion of the licenses. The consideration of the granting of the licenses was assigned for a special executive session of the aldermen held Monday evening. The subject was gone over in detail, and it was finally decided to grant sixth-class licenses to all the applicants, the evidence submitted to the board indicating that all the druggists were complying with the conditions imposed by law. The action has afforded a great deal of satisfaction to the druggists, but has caused some unfavorable comment among the temperance people who believe in licensing only one druggist in each of the several wards.

—Bridget Ryan, aged 75 years, residing in apartments in a wooden tenement block on Washington street, near Elm, was found dead in bed Tuesday morning. It is thought that death resulted from heart disease. Her daughter occupied the same room and was interrogated by Officer Purcell of police headquarters, because of a report that there had been some sort of a family row during the night. The woman said that her mother retired at the usual time apparently in her customary health. She said that there had been no trouble of any kind. Officer Purcell believes that death resulted from natural causes. The woman died, probably, soon after retiring as the body was found in the morning, and it was apparent that she had been dead several hours. She was lying slightly on her left side. There were no marks of any kind on the body and the room was in good order. Medical Examiner Mead investigated the case and returned a certificate of death caused by heart failure, due to an enfeebled condition, the result of old age.

—The new City Hall project is being broomed just now. It is proposed to erect a substantial structure, most in the vicinity of $200,000. For several years, the necessity of a new building has been apparent and it has been talked up at various times, but it is to date never taking any definite shape. One reason for delay has been the varying opinions concerning the best location for the structure. The present building is located here, and the residents would like to have the new building. The people of the Newtonville district want it there, and are willing, it is said, to give a handsome sum toward the purchase of the land and building fund. To bring matters to a head, a canvass is being made in Newtonville to get at the amount available by subscriptions, and if the hopes of those interested are realized, some definite proposition, it is said, will be made to the city council.

—An innocent chap was taken into custody here a few nights ago who turned out to be a man of straw, a poor stuffed creature designed as a huge joke. The sham man was placed in a recumbent position in a doorway not far from the depot and soon attracted the attention of an officer. It is claimed by some that the reclining object snored lustily. It must have been some heavy sleeper in the neighborhood for it would seem almost uncanny to cherish the belief that a snore could emanate from a species of the scarecrow variety. Anyway, the officer, it is said, proceeded to investigate and not succeeding in arousing the "fellow" from his slumbers in the usual manner, tapped him gently with his club, but even then failed to get a response. It was apparently a case of "stiff drunk" and one where some assistance would be required in getting the man to the station. Finally, the startling discovery was made that the thing was a dummy. The revelation came with the settling of a collection that some one had been hoaxed. There is not much more to be said but it would be interesting to know in whose fertile brain the scheme of deception originated. The usual quiet here has been much disturbed by the affair. I don't know any one who wants to furnish a tip to unravel the mystery?

—Prof. Lewis Mills Norton, associate professor of organic and industrial chemistry, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, died at his residence on Hancock street, at 2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon. He had been ill about a week with pneumonia, which developed rapidly into pneumonia. He was born in Athol, Dec. 26, 1835, and was the son of Rev. John Foote Norton. His early education was received in the public schools of Athol and Keene, N. H., and he removed with his family to Natick when he was 17 years of age. He was a member of the class of 1875 at the Institute, where he remained for two years as an assistant, after completing his course, and then went abroad studying for two years at Berlin, Paris and Göttingen in which latter place he took his degree of Ph. D. He was employed by the Ameskeag Mills at Manchester for two years, he accepted the position offered by the Institute as an instructor in chemistry. Being faithful in his duties and being a competent instructor, he was soon raised to the position of assistant professor of organic chemistry, which he held until 1885, when he was made an associate professor of industrial and organic chemistry. The chemical course was under his charge, and the popularity of that course is due, in great part, to the interest he exhibited in his work and the students under him. As a teacher Prof. Norton was at the head of his profession. He had a thorough knowledge of everything pertaining to chemistry, was a deep thinker, and had the power of imparting his knowledge to others in an eminent degree. His popularity among the students was due to the fact that he took a deep personal interest in each and every one of them, and did all in his power to better their stations in life. The Institute loses by his death a man whose position will be impossible to fill, one whose standard was the very highest, and one whose personality did much for the advancement of learning. Prof. Norton was married to Alice, daughter of Rev. F. N. Peloubet, in 1883, and after his marriage came to Auburndale, where he continued to reside until his death. He was a member of the Auburndale Congregational church, and had always been active in its Sunday school. Beside his widow, five children survive him.

—A Singular Coincidence.

—"I am not a fatalist," said T. Davitt Henning, "but occasionally I run across things that puzzle a great deal. Not long ago Dr. Tom Hewitt of Leadville, Colo., died. Hewitt was somewhat of a fatalist and believed in a great many things that I didn't. Omens and harbingers of evil he was much given to believe in. You have undoubtedly heard stories of people dying and the clock stopping at the same time, or some numerical of its face popping out. Hewitt had a sign in his office window in his residence which read, 'Dr. Tom Hewitt.' It was composed of 11 white letters glued to the pane. Hewitt took sick about 16 months since. A few days after his illness I noticed that one of the white letters had dropped off and was gone. The illness of the doctor caused the family to forget most everything else, and so the letter was not replaced.

—"A month" later Hewitt was still sick, and I noticed a second letter was gone. He lingered along, up and around now, and then sick again, for a period. Meantime the white letters were not replaced. Month after month went by, and every succeeding month saw a letter disappear. Hewitt noticed it, and then he would not allow them to be replaced. After over 10 months of sickness, and when 10 of the letters had disappeared Dr. Tom got an extra severe spell of illness and died. The morning after his death I visited the house and noticed as I passed in that the last letter was gone."—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

WOOD SONGS.

Ask me not why—I only know
It were thy loss if I could show
Thine cause as for a lesser thing.
Remember how we searched the spring,
But found no source—so clear the spring,
Within its earth bound depths did lie.
Give us thy joy its wings,
Unto thy heart its song, nor try
With questioning
The throbbing throat that sings.

For in thy clear and steadfast eyes
Thine own self wonder deepest lies,
Nor any words that lips can teach
Are sweeter than their wonder speech
And when thou givest them to me
Through dawns of tenderness I see,
As in the water sky
The sun of certainty appear.
So ask me why,
For then thou knowest, dear,
—Arthur Sherburne Hardy in Scribner's.

PLAYING WITH FIRE.

It was 5 o'clock of a hot August afternoon at Luc-sur-Mer. The bathers were roaming over the beach or ensconced in cozy, sheltered spots. Women, rosy pink with the heat, were leisurely crocheting and gossiping, emphasizing their remarks with the movement of the white ivory needles. Bright eyed men, their smiling listeners, idly traced hieroglyphics on the sand. Happy children, watched over by white capped nurses, made mud pies to their hearts' content.

Over one small group of loungers presided a young woman, whose pensively graceful, delicate featured face was one of rare sweetness. Her hair was blond, her mouth fresh as a child's, while in her black eyes quivered lights and shadows as on a placid lake. A crowd of young men were gathered about her, each one anxious to claim part of her attention by some trivial little speech. Now and then she would quietly drop a word, and every one stopped talking to hear and applaud her.

Marguerite Helm was a Norwegian. She had married for love a countryman of hers, a painter, but he had died soon after. Gifted with a marvelous voice, she had resolved to make it her means of support. Going to Paris, she had shut herself up for a year with her grief and her musical studies. Her stay at Luc-sur-Mer was the first dissipation of her widowhood.

Just now the conversation had turned on a foreigner's difficulty in using French idioms. All her admirers seized the opportunity to compliment her on her proficiency in the language.

"Gentlemen," she said suddenly, "you shall each tell me which word in all your language you prefer."

After a moment's hesitation the contest began. To the men it was a pretext for new gallantries.

"Marguerite," sighed one.

"Norway," murmured another.

"Love!" suddenly exclaimed a boy's undeveloped voice—a voice just undergoing a change.

The word was so impulsively uttered that everybody started. Marguerite herself bent forward to see the speaker. It was Jacques Lespar, a mere boy of almost girlish beauty. His white forehead, his straight nose, with its sensitive nostrils, his slender, refined hands—all betokened good blood. His penetrating eyes fixed themselves upon those of Mme. Helm. Hers were filled with a sweet, indulgent curiosity.

"Well, there really are no more children. Make way for the young!" were the remarks heard from the men.

Happily the dinner hour was near, and the group dispersed. Jacques and Mme. Helm remained together. They both felt a little embarrassed at being alone, and neither knew what to say. Finally they began to talk of the weather, of the superb days and warm evenings. Then the boy escorted Marguerite to her hotel and went home.

Ever since the beginning of the season he had silently admired Mme. Helm. A subtle fascination irresistibly attracted him to her. When she took her morning stroll, he instinctively walked behind her, like a dog following his master. When she sat down on the beach amid her admirers, he furtively slipped in among them, envying, with all the strength of his ingenious youth, the young men who could laugh with her or the old gentleman who called her "Dear child." How often he had tried to speak to her! But the great sadness rising in his heart at his utter insignificance would choke the words in his throat.

An orphan from his cradle, he was entirely alone in the world. A distant relative had become his guardian and directed his education. He grudgingly managed Jacques' finances and bestowed only a scant affection upon his ward. The boy's generous nature was starved in this atmosphere of indifference, and he at once loved Marguerite with all the energy of long suppressed feeling. It was his first passion, and like a rich spendthrift he laid at her feet all the treasures of his heart. As to being paid in return, he never dared think of that. He would have been satisfied if, like a priest at God's altar, he might be allowed to worship Marguerite all his life.

After that August afternoon Jacques and Mme. Helm were frequently together. They talked over their plans, and being mutually attracted learned to know each other well. Every day after breakfast they walked on the quay, and the boy made the young woman his confidant. Marguerite heard his grave speeches with a smile and reciprocated by giving good advice with almost motherly tenderness.

Time passed on, and often when returning from their walk the day died with the setting sun. The women coming home would greet them with some half audible, jesting remark; the ragamuffins would giggle at them on the road, and the men bow, with a sort of pleased, boorish politeness.

It was the first time since her departure from Norway that Mme. Helm forgot her sorrow. She liked her role of tender mamma and put an unconscious coquetry into her conduct. She would often prelude her remarks with, "I, M. Jacques, who am an old woman!"—and she smiled to think of her three and twenty years.

She did not dream how this child adored her. Only once did a slight doubt enter her mind, but Jacques' conduct quickly dispelled it. He treated her like an elder sister and did not mind appearing ridiculous in her eyes. To him this was sufficient proof that he was not in love. Anxious to warn him against life's snares, she continued to show him a calm, motherly affection, and the thought of having for Jacques any other sentiment would have shocked her.

After spending the greater part of an exceedingly hot day indoors, they went one evening for their accustomed after-dinner stroll in the fields. The setting sun poured its purple rays over the country, tingeing sky and meadows, houses and trees with fire. The ocean was mottled with red spots, forming bloody streaks.

Hardly a haystack's irregular cone stood out in melancholy profile against the sky.

"Let's climb it!" said Jacques. Marguerite gleefully clapped her hands. Jacques went on to reconnoiter. The road was deserted. No one was to be seen in the neighborhood.

She began the ascent with great difficulty. Her feet would slip, her fingers lose their hold, while the bits of dry hay scratched her face. Her more sturdy companion followed and helped her along. Reaching the top, they sat down and looked at each other, then burst out laughing like schoolboys stealing fruit or serious persons caught in a foolish act.

The descent was more easily accomplished. The gayety had passed, and both opened books they had brought. Jacques lay flat on the ground, resting upon his elbow. Marguerite was stretched on a pile of hay which formed a sort of chaise longue. Her tiny feet just peeped from under the hem of her gown. The thin cloth shoes perfectly outlined her arched instep and delicate ankles.

It was too hot to read. They were both silent. Jacques' eyes were riveted on Marguerite. Her red lips trembled like a flower under the breeze. Her soft, white throat was smooth as the surface of a lake. At every breath her bosom heaved, and the thin material of her dress swelled like a sail. Her whole personality exhaled the subtle perfume of elegance. It was the first time Jacques had noticed these charming details, and unconsciously he became absorbed in their contemplation. Little by little his thoughts became confused; his soul rose to his eyes. He breathed with difficulty, and a languor crept over him. The heat of the day mounted to his head and intoxicated him.

The country around was resting after the day's heat. In the faroff fields women were gathering potatoes, and near them little boys threw clods of earth at each other. From time to time the cows lying on the grass would low and turn their heads toward the setting sun as toward a departing friend.

Suddenly through the silent fields rang the cries of an angry voice.

"The field guard!" exclaimed Marguerite.

In the distance was a man gesticulating threateningly at this couple, who had pulled down his carefully stacked hay.

Like two guilty children, their first thought was to fly from the ruined haystack. The boy was up with one bound. But in her haste Marguerite lost her balance and fell. He caught her in his arms and righted her.

They ran across the field. For an instant they hid behind a large mound of earth, then made straight for the beach. Here they sought shelter in a hut used only by the customs officers and kept very still, fearing to give their pursuer the alarm.

Seated on the narrow bench Mme. Helm leaned against Jacques. She had never seemed so beautiful. Out of breath from the run her cheeks were red, her nostrils quivered. With bended neck and wide open eyes she listened in laughing anxiety for the steps outside.

His ecstasy was complete. Putting his arm around her waist he drew closer to her. Turning to him in childish glee she said, "Jacques, we are saved!"

It was the first time she had called him simply Jacques, and the boy lost his head; with a brusque movement he seized Marguerite's hand and imprinted on her wrist a passionate kiss.

Very pale, she rose, not knowing what to say or think. A great remorse struck her like a knife. Had she shown too much affection for Jacques? Had she been guilty of coquetry toward him? The days of their intercourse flashed through her memory, and she found herself guilty.

Instantly she resolved by some cruelty which Jacques could not forgive to kill the love she had inspired. She cast upon the boy one last look of infinite tenderness; then, gathering all her strength for the deathblow, she said in her cold, beautiful voice:

"You little fool!"—Translated For Argonaut from the French of Albert Guinon by Ziska.

The Use of the Telephone.
A caution emanates from a French medical school respecting the use of the telephone. For ears that are not positively sound and healthy the telephone is regarded as being positively injurious, and even in a comparatively robust organ its continuous use may be followed by a formidable list of physical disturbances, any one of which may become chronic. A sparing use of the instrument is therefore advised by those whose ears are sound, and an absolute abstinence from it in those whose organs are weak or imperfect.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Babies of Today Are Indeed Fortunate.

This present generation of babies is certainly far from being spanked for what were once known as "tantrums," but that now come under the head of "emotions." Tender provision is made in these days for this cropping out of the old Adam.—New York Times.

AT SEA IN A SAILBOAT

BATTLING FOR TWENTY-EIGHT DAYS WITH ADVERSE WINDS.

Part of a Ship's Crew Undergo a Terrible Experience After Being Wrecked in the Pacific Ocean—A Brave Woman Was One of the Sufferers.

Captain Peterson of the bark Lady Lamson, his wife and five seamen arrived in Honolulu in an emaciated condition. They came in an open boat only 18 feet long and reported that they had been 28 days tossing about on the Pacific. While the occupants of the frail craft were not entirely without provisions during their long battle with the elements, the effects of short commons and lack of sleep and shelter were palpably apparent. Mrs. Peterson, who was clad in a thin black gown, was worn nearly to a shadow, and her strength failed her completely as she was lifted from the boat and taken into the Eagle House.

The men were sunburned, leaden eyed and listless. Their heads drooped, and it was with difficulty that they could be got to speak, but Captain Peterson told in a few words that the Lady Lamson had been wrecked at night on a reef near Palmyra island when 44 days out from Sydney, and the crew were compelled to take to the boats. He was very weak and spoke in a whisper, at the same time begging that his wife be taken where she could get nourishment and a little rest.

The Kanakas lent willing hands to help the waifs of the ocean into hacks and carriages, and they were quickly driven to where they could command attention. The little boat in which they had journeyed over 1,000 miles became an object of interest for hundreds of people. It was partly decked in with canvas, and strips of the same material had been stretched above the gunwale on either side to prevent her being swamped. In the boat were a couple of nearly empty water kegs and a small quantity of biscuit and canned goods.

"I haven't had my clothing off for 28 days," said Captain Peterson when seen at the Eagle House. He was hollow cheeked and unshaven and looked indeed as if he had suffered both mentally and physically. "The Lady Lamson," he said, "was from Sydney, and we were bound to this port with 600 tons of coal for Wilder & Co. We left Sydney last November and were 44 days out when the vessel struck. We had had bad weather near Feejee, having been in a hurricane for 24 hours, but after that we had fine northeast winds until we got near Palmyra island, when the weather became dirty. It was 5:30 o'clock on the morning of Jan. 16 when we struck. I had not had an observation for two days. The night had been dark and stormy, but the water was smooth then. I knew I was to the east of the island, and that there was a sunken reef somewhere around. I was on deck myself and had two men on the lookout aloft. There is a strong westerly current there, and I guess we were going about five knots an hour with all sails set.

"Five minutes after she struck she began to break up, and I ordered the boats out. We lowered the two boats. I took charge of one, and First Mate Harry Miller took the other. In my boat there were, besides my wife and myself, Second Mate C. Brown and Seaman W. Carlson (both Liverpool, F. Weller, W. Hayden of Liverpool, F. Weller, the cook, who is a German, and E. Everson, a Norwegian sailor. The mate's boat contained a German sailor named Snyder, Oscar Magnerssen, a Swede; J. Jorgensen, a German, and a seaman named Martin.

"We started for Palmyra island in company about 7 in the morning, having only five gallons of water for the two boats. The island is only 40 miles from the reef, but the current and tide were so strong that we were trying for nine days to make headway against them, but couldn't. We drifted to the westward, so I resolved to put back to the bark. We suffered greatly through want of water, and we had barely enough to moisten our tongues, which were swollen and dry.

"We found the bark settling down and the water washing over her, so we got aboard quickly and put some canned goods, biscuit and water into the boats. We rigged the boats with canvas and then started again for Palmyra island. We tried for two days to make headway, but the heavy swell and wind baffled us. Thinking I would lose sight of the mate's boat, I told him to steer for Honolulu, and I steered for here myself. We lost sight of the other boat and have had heavy gales ever since. I have only had an hour's sleep at a time during the day, and have never laid down. At nighttime the spray came over, wetting us all to the skin, and in the day we dried our clothes in the sun, if there was any. The men have been quiet and uncomplaining, even though on short allowance of food and water, and, thank goodness, we lost nobody from our boat. It was a terrible experience, though, the worst I have met with during 14 years of seafaring.

"After we passed the island of Maui we struck a storm, and the boat half filled with water. We thought then it was all over after passing through so many other dangers, but we managed to bail her out and keep her right. The first vessel we saw since we struck, 23 days ago, was a steam schooner off Diamond head this morning. I hope the mate's boat is safe, and if he steered to the eastward I think they are all right."

The Lady Lamson was well known in San Francisco. She belonged to J. J. Moore. Captain Peterson owned a quarter share in her and had his interest insured for $10,000 in the Fireman's Insurance company. He reckons that he has lost $3,000 in instruments, furniture, charts and short insurance.—Cor. San Francisco Examiner.

A Small Boy's Reasoning.

In a small city in western Wisconsin there is a small boy who lives with his parents. One day not long ago he and his mother were walking quietly down street when the little fellow noticed a number of young cattle grazing along the edge of the sidewalk. Said he: "Mamma, I wish Mr. So-and-So would keep his 'halfers' off the street." His mother, thinking to correct his pronunciation, said: "Heifers, Paul, not 'halfers.'" The boy looked at her a moment and replied: "No man ma; I think I'm right in the matter. Ain't they half a cow and half a calf? I guess they are, and according to that they are 'halfers,'" said the boy, triumphantly.—Chicago Herald.

Husband and Wife Both Benefited.
"My wife and I have derived great benefit from Hood's Sarsaparilla so that we think it an indispensable medicine in our house. It cured me of general debility and mal-assimilation of food, and made me strong and healthy. It brought my wife back to health, after suffering for nearly ten years with nervous debility, sick headache and loss of appetite. She was in very weak and discouraged condition, as the medicines had all failed. But Hood's Sarsaparilla has completely cured her."

BOSTON AMUSEMENTS.

"1402" AGAIN—The engagement of Rice's Surprise Party in Barnet and Pflueger's historical extravaganza, commencing at the Globe Theatre, Monday, May 1, is for positively one week only, and it is understood that Manager Rice is making this 20th and farewell week's engagement in Boston one long to be remembered by all lovers of good music and pure fun. Many new costumes have been provided, a new finale to the last act added, also a new song for Miss Theresa Vaughn. Sig. Perugini will make his farewell appearance with the company prior to his departure for Europe, and Mr. Herbert Johnson, the favorite Boston tenor, will appear in the leading role at the Wednesday matinee and Friday evening performances only. A new and charming fantastic toe dancer has been added to the combination. The company is billed to appear for the entire summer season at Palmer's Theatre, New York, commencing Monday, May 15.

GRAND OPERA HOUSE—"Incog." Mrs. R. Pacheco's funny comedy will be presented by Mr. Charles Dickson at the Grand Opera House next week. Mr. Dickson has entertained Boston audiences in pretty nearly all of his successful roles, including his creations of Jack Dexter in "The Wife," the correspondent in "Held by the Enemy" and Jack Mauly in the "Still Alarm." He was for a long time the leading man of Robson & Crane, and critics say that besides his own personality he resembles the latter and the elder Sothern rolled in one. His support will be found to be strong. In the company are Messrs. E. J. Connelly, Teddick, Anderson, Gustave York, Franklin Garland, Barton Baucroft, Louis Mason, Edgar Allen and the Misses Maud Haslam, Louise Muldener, Clara Lipman, Anita Bridger, Virginia Ross and Stella Burkhardt. Of "Incog." it is only necessary to say that it is one of the brightest comedies on an American stage. Its plot is clever, its lines bright and original and the "business" new and novel. There are sure to be no regrets after witnessing a performance of "Incog."

Miss Annie Clarke will play Romeo to Miss Maud Hoffman's Juliet and a thoroughly organized company will fill out the last in a grand production of "Romeo and Juliet" at the Grand Opera House following the engagement of "Incog."

BOSTON THEATRE—"As You Like It," with Otis Skinner as Orlando and John A. Lane as Jaques, will be presented by Modjeska, next Monday night at the Boston Theatre, as a testimonial performance to Mr. Harry M'Glenn. The balance of the week's engagement will witness Modjeska's new and grand revival of Shakespeare's "Henry VII." The play has been the favorite of crowned heads during its long and varied history, and although George II. commanded three performances of it in one season, yet it has never been known as a great money maker because of the extraordinary expense attending its presentation.

Modjeska, who had portrayed almost every other Shakespearean heroine, decided to add Katherine, and thereby completed the list, and in doing so she has given to the stage of the present day a most soulful, majestic and inspiring characterization. All the appalling griefs that beset the pathway of the unhappy Katherine find marvellously human portrayal at Modjeska's hands, so it is said. Her production will be brought here intact, just as given at the Garden Theatre New York, where it not only took rank with Mr. Irving's revivals, but created a success seldom attending the presentation of standard drama.

PARK THEATRE.—At the Park, last Monday, was seen the usual large crowd gathered to enjoy the 143d performance of Hoyt's, "A Temperance Town." It was the beginning of the sixth month of continued performances; this play that have been given in Boston. It is evidently being realized by the theatre-goers, not only of Boston but all New England, that this is the last week but two that this merry satire has to remain in Boston, and with the heavy demands that are being made for seats for these remaining performances, it is plainly seen that the opportunities are few. The 150th performance occurs Monday, May 1st, and will be celebrated with souvenirs. They will be the most elaborate that Messrs. Hoyt & Thomas and the Park Theatre management have ever given in this city, and among other features of it will be the reproduction of numerous scenes from the play, including a group picture of the entire company.

BOSTON MUSEUM.—100th performance of "Shore Acres." But for the enforced closing of the Boston Museum, May 27th, consequent upon the alterations to be made in that establishment the coming summer, it is next to a certainty that Mr. Herne's "Nath'l Berry" in his great play of "Shore Acres" would run for months and months longer. This celebrated production will rank with the best and most famous Boston has ever known, and on the 17th May the one hundredth performance will have been reached. The total number of representations will be one hundred and thirteen, an extraordinary run, but by no means what would have been recorded were it not for the peremptory closing of the regular season. As the Boston Transcript remarks, "Mr. Field's production of 'Shore Acres' is a conspicuous success, not alone of the season, but of a dramatic generation."

HOLLIS STREET THEATRE.—Bronson Howard is recognized at the leading American drama, and his latest play, "Aristocracy," is the best effort of his pen. An attentive hearing of the dialogue convinces one of the care expended upon its construction. No words are wasted, each syllable apropos and the vein of comedy running through every scene fairly sparkles with wit and humor. At least half of the success of "Aristocracy" is due to the acting of an almost perfect company, to the elaborate stage settings and the costumes of the ladies. Leading honors should be awarded Wilton Lackaye, a fine actor, whose performance of the California millionaire is clean cut and vigorous; to Frederic Bond who is delightfully breezy and charmingly wicked as a French nobleman; to Miss Viola Allen, who plays the daughter of the millionaire, and to Miss Blanche Walsh, who plays Miss Allen's young and pretty stepmother. The play will draw large gatherings at the Hollis Street Theatre for some time to come.

COLUMBIA THEATRE.—Monday, April 24, marks the beginning of the fourth week at the Columbia Theatre, and the seventh week in Boston of Thomas Q. Seabrooke in the "Isle of Champagne." Amid the excitement of the week just past the "pop" of that merry musical entertainment, "The Isle of Champagne," was heard by many thousands of fun-loving people at the Columbia Theatre. The play was "pop" in plenty, all about town, but no where was the jollity more pronounced than in the little kingdom of Pommery Sec'd. Thomas Q. Seabrooke added largely to his innumerable admirers by his unctiously humorous impersonation of the poverty stricken and much oppressed monarch, and developed many new funnysims.

Take half a gallon of Chilton Paint and add to it nearly a quart of best linseed oil and you have a paint that costs very little money, and is very much better than the majority of paints. We suggest that as a method of getting a good deal for a small outlay of money. You get a thin coat of paint, and the coats of paint are better than thick. Have your points well brushed out and applied to a dry surface and satisfaction is sure to follow. The majority of mixed paints are worthless because the manufacturer tries to see how low cost an article he can turn out depending upon the price alone to sell it. Beginning in a town with every assurance of success on account of the price, he lives to see customers pass his agents by till the agent himself, thoroughly disgusted with his loss of trade, reviles the manufacturer whose goods he has tried in vain to foist upon an unwilling public. The Chilton Paints sell best in the towns where they have sold longest. "Chilton Paint Co., New York and Boston."

Columbian Music Festival.

A feature of the Columbian music festival to be given at Mechanics hall, Boston, May 4-7 inclusive, will be a grand orchestra of 65 women, selected and drilled by the Boston musician and composer, Arthur W. Thayer, under whose baton they will perform important works in connection with the Sousa band, under the management of D. Blakely, whose idea it is to prove women's ability in a field where they have not yet had a favorable opportunity. These women will play with the band Meyerbeer's Torchlight dance in B flat, the Battle hymn from Wagner's "Rienzi" and the "Gathering of the Armies" from "Lohengrin," and will be heard by themselves in the overture to Nicolai's "Merry Wives of Windsor" and other brilliant works.

The Organ as a Relief.

In journalism an organ is a publication which says things done by its party are right, because its party does them, and things done by the other party are wrong, because the other party does them. An organ cares wholly for the deed and little for the deed. An independent journal regards mainly the deed, and only incidentally the doer. Organism is going out of fashion like spinning wheels, spinnets, midday dinners, sounding-boards over pulpits and other archaic recourses for which civilization and science are furnishing better substitutes; but there are examples of organism in journalism still existing, and they are interesting in their venerableness in the exact degree to which they are not—in their vigor.—Brooklyn Eagle.

FIFTY YEARS.

INScribed TO MR. AND MRS. JOHN STEARNS, ON THEIR GOLDEN WEDDING DAY.

We meet to celebrate tonight,
Within these pleasant portals,
The golden hour of married life
Unbroken to many mortals;
Indeed so rare a boon it is,
With joy we haste to meet you,
With loving hearts, and tender words,
O parents dear, to greet you.

These fifty years of wedded life
You've travelled on together,
Through light and shade, through sun and storm,
Regarding of the weather;
For love and warmth were in your hearts,
The purest and the sweetest,
Such love as makes the horizon earth
The dearest and the completest.

Five daughters and a son beloved
Unto your home were given,
To guide them each aright, dear hearts,
How nobly you have striven;
And now your children gathered here,
Your faithful care confessing,
Would pray that they may ever prove
Your greatest earthly blessing.

Grandchildren too have come in love,
Two generations showing,
How fast the circle widens out,
How fast in numbers growing;
With smiling happy faces,
Familiar forms once more appear
In old accus'd places.

Upwards of three score years and ten
Unto your past are banded,
Life's joys and sorrows, hopes and fears,
Alas! so swiftly vanished;
We could not if we would recall
The dear old days long perished,
But oh, we know within your hearts
Their memory still is cherished.

The golden wedding day is here,
And you so long united
Still grace our happy childhood's home,
Where not a flower has blighted;
Each tiny bud, and blossom fair,
Tonght fresh and brightly blooming,
Love's garden sweet—this beautiful hour
With fragrance rare perfuming.

May you, our honored parents dear,
Long mingle in our pleasure,
The purest joys of earth be thine
In overflowing measure;
And may the chain, unbroken now,
When death each link shall sever,
Be perfect even, most perfect still,
Where life flows on forever.

April 13, 1893. E. P. R.

Fifty years of wedded life,
Fifty years my own dear wife,
Since you and I were hand in mine,
Vowed in storm and gloom and shame,
To be fond and true, and true,
Ah! God's blessing unto you,
Well that holy truth you kept
As care's shadows o'er us crept,
Love and trust have calmed all fears,
Brightened all these fifty years,
This is our golden wedding day.

Children's children round us play,
Fifty years ago my bride,
Still we journey side by side,
Since you laid your hand in mine,
Like white orange blossom fair,
And they tell me smiling age,
Shows my face a well worn page,
God did bless our bridal morn,
All the years that have since gone,
Bless the gloaming, Lord we pray,
Life's long golden wedding day.

Will Be Interested in

THE SUNDAY HERALD

OF NEXT SUNDAY, APRIL 30.

It will be the greatest newspaper ever published in New England, containing all the news of the day—many special articles—fashion notes—personal and social gossip—stories—editorials—letters from special foreign correspondents, fine illustrations, &c.

Also, in compliment to the World's Fair, opening May 1st, this edition will appear in a full-sized cover in colors, illustrating the old Puritans of New England standing on an eminence looking at the World's Fair at Chicago in the distance.

This colored cover in itself is a history of the growth and prosperity of the United States—it will appeal to every one.

Be sure and order next Sunday's Boston Herald of your newsdealer at once.

Just Married.

How loving they are; this is always a sure sign. After the first year sometimes it don't hold good. When Charles comes home to you groggy and cross, snoring and snoring, unable to relish the nice dinner you have cooked, and feels as if there was a ton of pig iron in his stomach, he is troubled with dyspepsia, and Sulphur Bitters is the only medicine that will cure him.

Love is frequently satisfied with quantity; but friendship demands quality. —Puck.

$100 Reward $100.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

NEWTON CENTRE.

—Ivers & Pond piano, Farley, Newton.
—Mr. Arthur C. Walworth is in New York city.

—Mr. John Capron returned to New York this week.
—Mr. Hosmer of Melrose has moved into the Hammett house on Homer street.

—Mr. E. H. Dennison of Sumner street, who purchased the L. S. Ward estate quite recently, has commenced to build a house for his own occupancy.

—Mr. C. W. Royce has sufficiently recovered to resume business, commencing Monday of this week.

—Mr. C. W. Corey of the Hill and family have gone to Cambridgeport.

—Mr. Ezra Dudley and Miss Dudley started for his western ranch on Monday.

—This ward was well represented at the school board meeting Wednesday evening in Messrs. A. C. Walworth and A. L. Rand, both of whom were present and spoke very emphatically against a lengthened session at the High school.

—Miss Carrie W. Hunt spoke at the First Congregational church Sunday, representing the Atlanta University for freedmen in the South.

—Mr. Wittaker of Needham has purchased an interest in Mr. D. H. McWain's business here and will have general charge of this store when Mr. McWain opens his place in Boston.

—Wilson Bros. relinquish their express business to its late purchaser, Mr. Bragdon, the first of May.

—The Chase house on Parker street which has been remodelled, is nearly ready for occupancy.

—Mr. Arthur Hodges of Newton Highlands has leased and will occupy a house on Sumner street.

—Prof. Chas. R. Brown has moved into his new house on Parker street this week.

—Mr. F. N. Thatcher and family are again at home at their pleasant residence, Beacon street.

—The last session of the Congregational society for the season was held Wednesday evening, taking the very pleasant form of a reception to Rev. D. L. Furber, D. D., and Rev. and Mrs. Theodore J. Holmes.

—The concert by the Technology Glee Club at Associates hall this week was not largely patronized.

—A cake and candy sale were held at Mrs. Warren R. Holt's residence, today, for the benefit of Trinity church.

—Mrs. Suydam, who has been visiting her niece, Mrs. J. M. English, Beacon street, died last week after a short illness. Prayers were held at the house Monday morning, and the remains taken to her home in a western state.

—Mr. William Byers and family of Moreland avenue have moved to their new house on Lake avenue.

—The funeral of the late Prof. Oakman Sprague Stearns occurred at his late residence Monday afternoon at one o'clock. The house was filled with friends of the deceased. The service was very simple. Rev. Lemuel C. Barnes, pastor of the Baptist church, officiating, and music was furnished by a male quartet from Boston. The remains were taken to the Newton Cemetery.

—A meeting of the Baptist society was held Friday evening and the resignation of Rev. Mr. Barnes was accepted with sincere regret. Sunday morning after service the audience were requested to remain at the house for the reading of the report of the committee on the resignation of Rev. Mr. Barnes, leaving and bidding him God speed. This communion between pastor and people was very touching.

—The poems read at the golden wedding of Mr. and Mrs. John Stearns will be found on another page.

—Mr. John F. Capron who came home four weeks ago sick with diphtheria, has returned to his business in New York city fully restored to his usual health.

—At the Unitarian church next Sunday, service at 10:30 a. m., conducted by Rev. J. F. McDaniel of San Diego, Cal. Sunday school at 12.

—The Chickatawut club of Boston discussed "Good Citizenship" at the Hotel Thorndike, Tuesday evening, and Miss Alice Thaxter Read gave several recitations in a way that won her much commendation.

—At the meeting of the Boston Baptist Social Union, Monday evening the guests were the professors of the Newton Theological Seminary. The graduating class had a spokesman in Andrew T. Riggs, of Princeton, Mo. Prof. Hovey told of the wants of the seminary, stating that $200,000 was necessary to place the school on a high standard. It is proposed to have a new building for the library at a cost of $65,000, and to make a chapel out of the old library. Rev. R. J. Adams, Hon. E. C. Fitz and Hon. Chester W. Kingsley each had a word in defense of the progressive work being done at the seminary.

—Rev. and Mrs. J. R. Patterson and child of Nauvoo were visiting their former parishioners, Mr. and Mrs. O. J. Hall on Tuesday.

—A beautiful spot for a twenty thousand dollar house on the north side of Crystal Lake. The lot contains 19,000 feet.

—Mr. and Mrs. S. V. A. Hunter of Lake avenue are in Chicago, where he has the supervision of the building of the new machine Co's exhibit at the World's Exposition.

—The electric track is laid to Homer street with the exception of a short distance on Sumner street, where the sewer department is still at work. It may be of interest to know that it is at last possible to drive on Sumner street without going away round by Gibbs street as has been necessary all winter. The residents of Sumner street appreciate the reopening of the street.

—Epworth League Day will be observed at the Methodist church, May 14. Retold the great tenor will sing.

—There are letters at the postoffice for Mrs. James W. Cahill, B. Clapp, Ann Giddes, 2, Kate Scully, Joseph L. Ward.

—The night that Rev. Lyman King's house was burglarized, Mr. James White's house was gone through and 22 cents were taken, two large amounts of money were in the house but not found, and probably would not be should they try again. The house of Editor M. C. Ayres at the Boston Advertiser was also entered the same night and a few cups and some other articles taken. All these gentlemen preach sometimes. Burglars apparently have an enmity or a love for preachers, as they think they have money.

—The friends of Miss Georgia Bucknam will regret to learn of the sudden death of her only brother, Meldon M. Bucknam, in San Francisco on the 7th of April.

—On Monday next, Mr. James Gammans and Miss Edith Gammans will leave for Portland, Oregon, where they expect to remain a year, having leased their house on Beacon street to Mrs. Kistler.

—Mrs. Albert L. Dyer and daughter, Miss Grace, who have spent some time in Italy, will sail for America on the 24th.

—Doctor Merrill of Etta, Me., spent Sunday here with his sister, Miss Laura Merrill, at Mr. W. Thorpe's.

NEWTON HIGHLANDS.

—Pianos, rented and tuned, Farley, Newton.
—List of letters are as follows: George W. Frost, Maggie McQueen, Jacob W. Osborn, Honora Sullivan.

—M. E. services next Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock in the Congregational chapel.
—The Chauvauque circle will meet next Monday with Mrs. Hollis.

—At St. Paul's church next Sunday the Rev. Thomas L. Fisher of Clinton will officiate. Services at 9:45, 10:45 and 7:30 Sunday school at 12:15.

—Interest in base ball is so engrossing among the boys this season, that the boys' club have postponed the trip to Charlestown, which was planned for next Saturday.

—The people of St. Paul's church gladly welcomed Rev. Edward T. Sullivan of Newton Centre last Sunday evening. Mr. Sullivan won many friends during the year in which he officiated monthly at St. Paul's.

—The Ladies' Aid Society of St. Paul's church met last Wednesday at Mrs. W. H. Mansfield's, Hillside road. Successful efforts have been made to increase the membership of this society.

—Rev. Mr. Jaynes will have charge of the Unitarian services next Sunday at the Episcopal chapel at 4 o'clock.

—The death of Mrs. Knight, wife of Mr. George W. Knight, took place on Wednesday. The funeral service will be at St. Paul's church on Friday at 2:30 o'clock.

—Mr. J. P. Estabrook is confined to the house on account of an attack of the grippe.

—Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Scandlin have gone west and will visit Chicago and other large cities, and will extend their travels to Alaska, and expect to be absent about ten months. Their residence has been leased to Mr. Wright, of the firm of Seelye & Wright of Boston.

—The marriage of Mr. John P. Keating to Mrs. Susan T. Black, who has been a resident of the Highlands for the past year, took place on Monday the 22nd inst. Mrs. Keating having a sister, could they have postponed their wedding trip and she has taken charge of her household.

—Mr. J. S. Roraback is having his lately purchased estate improved by having the grounds finely graded.

—The next meeting of the Monday Club will be with Miss Chatfield, Hartford street.

—After May 1st, the library books will leave the agency at 8:45 instead of 9 o'clock.

—Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Appleton have gone to Chicago. Mr. Appleton will have charge of an exhibit at the World's Fair and will be absent a month or more.

—The Monday Club was represented at the meeting of the Science Club at the Newton on Wednesday.

—We learn that a grand concert is soon to be given in the Congregational church in aid of the music fund. The church male quartet, which is given such satisfaction, will be ably assisted by popular outside talent and every one should be interested to fill the church.

—Rev. Dr. Webb will conduct the services at the Congregational church next Sunday morning and evening. This will be the last Sunday of Dr. Webb's engagement, whose ministrations have been very satisfactory. Rev. Mr. Dunning will resume his labors here the following Sunday.

—Meeting of the Young People's Christian Endeavor Society at the Congregational church Tuesday evening at 7:30, topic, "The Light of the World." All cordially invited.

—Mr. A. J. George, of the Newton High school, is conducting a class in the study of Sophocles. This class meets next with Mrs. Nickerson on Wednesday, May 3. Mr. George has conducted classes in Eschylus here during the past winter with great success. The present work grew out of previous study with Mr. George.

—Mrs. Minerva Stone was a delegate from a visit of two weeks in New Hampshire to the Woman's State Federation of Clubs in Boston on Thursday.

—A Girls' Club was formed last Tuesday in the vestry of St. Paul's church and the following officers were elected: President, Edith Warner; secretary, Alice Moulton; treasurer, Helen Simpson; doorman, Hattie Brigham. The object of the club is devotional and educational with beside the social pleasure of its meetings. Meets alternate Tuesdays at 4:30 p. m.

—Mr. John R. Henderson has returned from a visit of two weeks in New Hampshire among relatives and is somewhat improved in health.

—The Patterson block has reached its destination, having made a safe journey on rollers.

—Mr. James Morton of Woodward street, who has been a long time ill, is not improving.

—Mr. A. J. Hodges, who has occupied the house on Boylston street belonging to Mr. Amasa Gray for two or three years, has removed to Newton Centre and taken the house of the late Job Bailey on Sumner street. Mr. Hodges and family were much respected and the Highlands will be much by their removal.

—Mrs. W. E. B. Ryder, having suffered a relapse from an attack of the grippe, is now suffering with pleurisy. Mr. Willie Ryder, who was several days ill, has returned to his usual business.

NEWTON UPPER FALLS.

—Joe Ma on is in New York and took in the naval parade yesterday.

—A petition is in circulation to have the names of the Prospect school changed to that of the Wade school. A more appropriate change could hardly be proposed.

—The library books leave 15 minutes earlier in the morning, at 8:30 o'clock.

—Edward Flagg was taken ill Friday and removed to the Massachusetts General Hospital by advice of Dr. Dean. He has not fully recovered but was able to return home this week.

—Tom Coughlan, Jr. had his thumb badly crushed between two balls on the lawn at the bowling alleys the first of the week.

—Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Florence Crowley. A boy.

—Mrs. E. C. Frost disposed of her household goods Saturday and has gone to Denver, Col., where she will reside with her mother.

—T. G. Woodman has commenced the erection of a store 12x18 near Echo Bridge which will be used during the summer to dispense cool drinks, fruit and confectionery. A soda fountain is to be part of the fittings.

—Dexter Johnson decided to leave Mr. Lowe's block this week.

—An Italian will open a fruit store where Mrs. James Wildes has been located in Lowe's block, next week.

—An encouraging amount has been subscribed for the relief of Mrs. Oakley.

—The car station on High street has been commenced by Wm. Kerriyan who is to keep it. Kerriyan will give up his place at Mr. Pitts' store.

—It is stated on good authority that quite an extensive plan is to be carried out during the summer made feasible by the electric cars. The fine grove of five or six acres owned by the Silk Mill, Messrs. Phipps & Train, on the Needham side of the Charles river, is to be cleared and enclosed in for the accommodation of picnic parties or the public. A foot bridge will be constructed across the river to the silk mill grounds giving easy access, and the house near the grove is to be fitted up for the accommodation of patrons. The grove is to be provided with 300 incandescent lamps for lighting by electricity which can be used when desired, and at slight cost to the owners as they have their own dynamo for lighting the mill. Band concerts and attractions of a like nature can be arranged, and with the natural beauties of the location it should become very popular.

—There will be special services in the Methodist church of this village next week. The Rev. Daniel Richards of Somerville will preach Sunday 10:45 a. m. Rev. W. T. Whitaker of Lynn, Tuesday evening 7:30. May 2d, Rev. John W. Mansfield of Somerville, Wednesday evening 7:30. May 3rd, Rev. George W. Mansfield of Charlestown, Thursday evening 7:30. May 4th, Rev. W. T. Perrin of South Boston, Tuesday evening 7:30. May 9th. The above are all members of the Sunday school of this church when they were boys.

—The petition circulated here this week claiming the present system of street watering in Newton to be unsatisfactory, and that the "free use of water early in the autumn of last year was a fertile source of the malarial element in parts of Newton" has occasioned some talk. Until last year citizens were unable to get the streets here watered, and now there are those who are inclined to think the watering is found fault with. There only needs to be a little more discretion in spreading the water they say, which Mr. Keating has promised to remedy.

—The signers of the petition include Messrs. J. B. Newell, O. T. Pettet, L. P. Everett, F. J. Hale, R. T. Sullivan, O. G. Billings, J. W. Mitchell, W. H. Hill, Fredrick, Frank Fanning, W. O. Colburn, H. A. Sherman, J. O. Lagerty and George Pettet, all well known citizens, and the petition will doubtless have just the effect desired of watering our streets in a more efficient manner avoiding the muddy condition now so prevalent.

—Mr. Geo. H. Chambers has fitted his barber shop up very tastefully this week and has put in marble shelves beneath his mirrors.

—The Worcester Coral Street Methodist church gave a very elaborate reception to Rev. J. H. Emerson, last week, on his return to them for another year.

—The Pettet Machine Company is to build six single and two double houses, for the use of its employees, near its works from plans by Bailey & Lemon.

NEWTON SCHOOL BOARD.

such a change would be most injurious to the school, and to adopt a rule because the superintendent proposes it, seemed to him very weak on the part of the school board.

Mr. A. C. Walworth was decidedly opposed to any change. The peace of the city had been upset for a very little thing of no great benefit to the pupils. He believed the parents had a stronger argument in the health of their children for which their regard is naturally greater than that of a teacher. The school stood on a par with the classical schools of Boston and was so near perfection now, no improvement was needed.

Mr. A. L. Rand said his daughter came home so exhausted from school as to necessitate lying down for a time before eating her dinner, and he believed an increase would be of greater injury to her health. He did not think the board should have much hesitation in deciding this question after receiving the protest of 400 parents.

Mr. Frank Edmonds did not want the session lengthened.

Mr. Hornbrook thought too many inferences were taken from the circular issued. In justice to the superintendent he thought there was no question but it is sent out on all honest and fairness.

Dr. E. P. Scales looked at the matter both as a parent and physician. The change would be unjust with no commensurate benefit. A longer recess for a larger lunch would tend to derange the system and make the pupils dyspeptic.

It is a pretentious to suppose this would relieve the pressure. They are under this pressure from the opening until the close of school.

Rev. Dr. Calkins from personal school experience, as instructor, believed in shortening the recess ten minutes. The twenty minutes is too much and thirty minutes would be a still greater waste of time. He believed the best way for the superintendent and head master to regulate their lost popularity and the goodwill of the people, would be to shorten the recess to ten minutes and close school ten minutes earlier. They would receive the thanks of all parents and the school would be benefited.

Mr. Ober thought many Auburn's people signed two petitions under a misapprehension, also that many of those signing were not parents of High school children. There were 400 who signed, but there are 11,000 parents in Newton who did not sign.

After some further discussion Mr. Hornbrook presented this resolve to set the opinion of the board on the matter. Resolved, That in the opinion of this board it is unwise to increase the length of recess.

Ye—Mr. Ward, who believed in the board expressing an opinion. They came there to weigh and decide a matter, not to give an opinion.

The mayor explained that a favorable opinion would dismiss the question forever without further action.

Mr. Hornbrook then withdrew the motion to allow Mr. Hale to move an indefinite postponement, to which Mr. Drew had not the slightest objection. Before this motion was accepted another controversy came up, and Mr. Hornbrook's motion was thought to be the one best calculated to close the discussion.

Mr. Munro arose to protest against an "attempt to browbeat the board."

Mr. Hornbrook thought the gentleman was mistaken. He desired to express his opinion and he gave other members a chance to do the same. It was a free vote and each could vote as they pleased.

Mr. Drew thought the board should have further time to consider the matter. Mr. Hornbrook thought nothing would be gained by further delay. The minds of all are made up by this time.

Mr. Hornbrook's motion was presented once more, seconded by Mr. Ward, and the vote was as follows:

Nay—Messrs. Mason, Smith, Boyden, Ober, Monroe, Bond and Mrs. Martin.

Ye—Messrs. Ward, Hornbrook, Drew, Brackett and Hale.

NOT SETTLED.

The motion was of course lost and Mr. Bond then renewed his motion to refer to the committee on rules and regulations and after some discussion it was so referred and the board adjourned.
